SUN BRIGHTENS EASTER PARADE; THRONGS WATCH

Society Promenades in Spring Finery.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Another Easter parade of fashion has come and gone. As usual the weather was too cold for much displaying of new spring suits and coats, but the old winter coats were brightened up and given a decidedly springlike appearance by new accessories—hats, veils, gloves, bags and shoes—and, of course, by the proverbial Easter bouquets which this year consisted in most cases of a couple of gardenias or orchids.

It was a beautiful day for the parade, however, and never in this reportorial memory, which goes back over fifteen years, has there been a bigger or more brilliant promenade along North Michigan avenue, where all of society takes the air after the services at the Fourth Presbyterian, St. James's and St. Chrysostom's churches.

Record Crowd on Boulevard.

Never before was there assembled such a crowd outside the Fourth church to watch the fashionable congregation come out after the services. The throng grew and grew until I was sure that some celebrity was worshiping there and that the crowd was present to see this noted personage.

Consultation with the sergeant in charge of the ten or twelve policemen who were trying to keep a narrow pathway between the church door and the curbing, failed to bring forth any information about such a personage, however, so I decided it must be just the nice weather that had brought out the throngs of spectators.

The modest worshipers thought this great crowd of men, women, and children must have assembled for some other reason than to see them and a number of them stopped and asked policemen, reporters, and photographers what the reason might be.

Annual Stroll Shortened.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick and her escort, Edwin Krenn, who always before have walked as far south as Chicago avenue on their annual Easter morning stroll, did not go further than Delaware place yesterday, apparently preferring not to attempt to push their way through the crowd.

Mrs. McCormick was wearing a black cloth coat with a wide cape collar of Persian lamb that she has worn all winter, with several inches of a brick red crêpe gown showing below the coat. Her hat was a narrow brimmed black felt with a red, yellow and blue feather at a jaunty angle trimming it. She wore two gardenias on her shoulder.

Many Society Folk Absent.

It did not seem as if there were as many fashionables in the congregations of these three north side churches as there ordinarily are on Easter morn, but perhaps that was because so many of the "pretty world" are spending the spring vacation away from the city with their children of boarding school age. The first really nice Easter since 1927 brought forth more silk hats and morning coats and smarter masculine attire than has been seen on the avenue in many a year. And the men in the parade came near outshining the feminine paraders.

All the accessories that go to make up a smart costume this spring seem to be shiny, for many of the new straws are shiny and patent leather bags and shoes seem to be in great favor. I'm sure there will be a dearth of silver foxes after this season, for every woman who wore a suit or coat untrimmed with fur yesterday had a lovely silver fox around her shoulders.

At the Fourth Presbyterian.

At the Fourth Presbyterian among the early arrivals were Mrs. Waller Borden and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson. Mrs. Borden very smart in a black and gray plaid tweed coat with a silver fox scarf and a shiny black straw hat trimmed with an emerald green velvet bow. Mrs. Stevenson's long mink coat almost covered her dark blue silk dress and she wore a burning blue turban with flat rose leaves encircling it.

Hints Lindbergh Baby's Return Near

AGENT REPORTS RAPID PROGRESS IN NEGOTIATIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—Negotiations for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh child are in the "semi-final" stage, John H. Curtis, wealthy Norfolk ship yard owner, said tonight upon his return from an overnight airplane journey to keep a rendezvous with the abductors.

Mr. Curtis refused to reveal where he had met the kidnapers but said, "My trip was very satisfactory." Asked in his home in Norfolk if he had completed final arrangements for the recovery of the child, he replied:

"I would rather say I made semi-final arrangements."

Will Consult Lindy Today.

Mr. Curtis said he would go to Hopewell tomorrow to lay all the facts before Col. Lindbergh. The shipbuilder, who consulted a Norfolk doctor on his return from his meeting with the supposed kidnapers, said he would be accompanied to Hopewell by Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, and the Very Rev. H. Dobson Peacock, both personal friends of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, who are associated with Mr. Curtis in negotiations with the supposed kidnapers.

The purpose of the visit to the Lindbergh home was not revealed, although Mr. Curtis made it plain that he regarded it as a vital step toward a successful culmination of his negotiations for the return of the baby. He declined to reply when asked if payment of ransom was the subject to be discussed.

The first authentic word that a new contact had been made with the kidnapers and that two year old Charles Jr. might soon be safe at home after having been lost for almost a month brought renewed hope to the desolate house in the Sourland hills of New Jersey.

The Lindbergh family had spent a dreary Easter in their lonesome Hopewell home. A beating spring rain had kept them indoors, and a chill wind had discouraged callers. The Jersey police were occupied chiefly in keeping intruders outside the estate.

Comes Home Tired.

The Norfolk boat builder appeared very tired when he returned to his home and at first refused to see any one. After an hour's rest he held his conference with newspaper representatives.

"In order to do certain work in carrying out matters started several days ago," Mr. Curtis said, "it was necessary for me to leave town. As to where I went and to whom I talked I will not say at this time. I had a successful trip and negotiations for the return of the baby are moving along smoothly. I am trying to get in touch with another party to obtain additional information and if I succeed tonight I will tell you what there is to be told."

Publicity Causes Delay.

"He is to inform me when everything is ready for the return of the child," said Dean Peacock, "and will leave to bring it back to its parents. He said he had to do several things to get the negotiations back where they were before the publicity occurred."

Mr. Curtis left his home early Saturday morning and took the ferry to Fox Hill, Va., where he eluded those who had attempted to follow him. It was reported that Mr. Curtis had boarded a plane at Langley field after outdistancing his followers and that he flew to some desolate place along the coast, south of Norfolk, for his conference with the abductors.

The Norfolkman returned to his home at 5:30 this afternoon after having been away 33 hours. He brushed his first callers aside and said he wanted rest.

Clergyman Gets Report.

The reporters immediately interviewed Dean Peacock, who admitted Mr. Curtis had taken him completely into his confidence. The clergyman said he was positive the baby was not aboard a yacht in Chesapeake bay as had been reported, and said he did not believe the child would be released in Norfolk. It might turn up, the clergyman said, in New York, Philadelphia or "any other place along the coast."

WHY OUR DOVES DON'T RETURN

MOTORIST OUTRUNS ALABAMA TORNADO AT 80 MILES AN HOUR

Birmingham, Ala., March 27.—[Special.]—An eighty mile an hour race with a tornado which today struck points in central Alabama was described by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Miller of Birmingham. They were returning in their automobile from Montgomery to Birmingham.

"My husband was driving," Mrs. Miller said. "He bent to the work of driving full speed on wet pavement against constantly shifting and very powerful winds; our speedometer shot up to 40, 50, 65.

"Seen from the rear glass of our car, the tornado was swirling and boiling like a topheavy column that spun like a top. Near the ground and squarely in the center of the highway were eight separate digit-like appendages hanging out of the major cloud.

"'It's gaining,' I told Mr. Miller, and we speeded up to 80 miles an hour, making 85 or more down hills.

"We raced twenty miles until the tornado veered off to one side and away, lifting its huge bulk high in the air."

PLOT TO KIDNAP AN ARCHBISHOP IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Cal., March 27.—(AP)—A police guard was thrown about the home of the Dominican Fathers here tonight to protect Archbishop Francisco Orozco from kidnapers overheard plotting his abduction.

Archbishop Orozco, police said, was exiled by the Mexican government and abducted at Guadalajara, Mexico, a month ago. He escaped and fled Mexico, seeking protection of United States authorities at Laredo, Tex., police were told.

A Mexican member of St. Ignatius church overheard the kidnapers plotting and told the Very Rev. Edward J. Whelan, rector and president of San Francisco university, who in turn called police.

Starts Out to Save Dime; Bandits Take His $97.25

L. D. Macher's desire to save 10 cents on a drug store sale of razor appliances turned out into a total loss last night. He left his apartment in the Park Lane hotel, 2842 Sheridan road, and walked south in Cambridge avenue. Two men stopped him, one asking for a nickel to buy some coffee. Macher started to hand him a quarter. The other man menaced him with a revolver. They robbed him of the quarter and $97.

L. M. Shaw, Ex-Treasury Head, 84, Dies

Washington, D. C., March 28 [Monday].—(AP)—Leslie Mortimer Shaw, 84, secretary of the treasury under President Roosevelt, died today after nearly a month's illness with double pneumonia.

Shaw, who had been vigorous despite his years, contracted a cold following his return from a business trip to New York several weeks ago, and it soon developed into pneumonia, from which he failed to rally.

Mrs. Shaw and their daughter, Mrs. John McMullin, were in constant attendance upon the former cabinet officer and Iowa governor before his death. Their son, Early, had been notified in Milwaukee of his father's condition. With the family also was Representative Cyrenus Cole of Iowa, lifelong friend of Shaw's.

PROVED GENIAL GOVERNOR.

Leslie M. Shaw's love of a good joke made him as genial a figure as ever sat in the governor's chair in Iowa or in the cabinet of a President.

But the same keenness of perception which enabled him to fling back a point of humor with dexterity gave him a deep insight into economic and social problems and won him national note as an authority on finance during his service as secretary of the treasury under Roosevelt.

Business reverses after his retirement from public service turned Shaw in his later years to writing and lecturing, and he made his home in Philadelphia and Washington, where he had financial interests.

Long Resident of Iowa.

Iowa was his home, however, from youth until he went to serve in the cabinet, and the state recalled, years after his departure, the clear and forceful speeches against the "free silver" agitation which first brought him to prominence in the nineties.

As characteristic as his good humor was Shaw's devotion to the affairs of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he was a constant attendant throughout his lifetime. Four times he was a lay delegate to the general conferences of the church, and he liked to recount that he had helped to elect bishops.

Native of Vermont.

Shaw had all the ruggedness of the New England country around Morristown, Vt., where he was born Nov. 2, 1848. Coming to Iowa in early youth he graduated from Cornell college in that state, then won a law legree in 1876 at the Iowa College of Law. Married a year later to Miss Alice Crawshaw, he practiced law at Denison and became interested in banks at Denison, Manilla, and Charter Oak.

In banking Shaw turned with tremendous energy to the study of finance, and when the free silver issue came into politics he startled the state and nation with crisp and powerful arguments for the gold standard. This preceded his nomination by the Republican party as governor of Iowa, and he served two terms, from 1898 to 1902.

Made Treasury Secretary.

Roosevelt had heard him speak during the free silver campaign in the west, and called him from the governorship to the secretaryship of the treasury, where he served until 1907.

At that time he went to New York to become president of the Carnegie Trust company at a salary of $36,000 a year, but was forced out the following year, after having weathered the panic of 1907. The reason for his resignation was said to be the objections of his associates and backers to Shaw's ambition to be a candidate for the presidency, an ambition never realized.

Active as Public Speaker.

After leaving New York he turned to the speaking platform. He traveled throughout the country as a lecturer for the American Bankers' association.

His appearance was that of a stooped figure, but his health remained excellent long after he had passed his prime, and he was always possessed of boundless energy. He counted among his close friends many distinguished public men of his time, one of them an ardent foe in politics—William Jennings Bryan.

Jewelry valued at $32,000 was taken by two Easter lily robbers who terrorized Norman E. Bensinger, wealthy bowling and billiard chain operator, his family, and three maids in their apartment at 2920 Commonwealth avenue yesterday.

The men gained entrance to the apartment, which consists of the entire thirteenth, or top, floor of the building and a penthouse, by carrying a 3 foot potted Easter lily through the open garage in the rear and up the rear automatic service elevator.

Meets Masked Bandit.

Mrs. Bensinger arose late and attired in a dressing gown, went downstairs for a few minutes from the bedrooms in the penthouse. When she returned upstairs the large Easter lily was standing near the door. A robber with a blue handkerchief over his face marched her downstairs with a gun at her back and the second robber appeared from the corridor into which the service elevator opens.

Mr. Bensinger appeared from the library and the bandits herded him and his wife and the three maids, Mary Arndt, Betty Holly, and Nora Barry, into one of the servant bedrooms. While the blue handkerchief bandit stood guard the other, who wore a white mask, forced Bensinger to go with him upstairs into the penthouse.

Demands Valuables.

"Now show me the valuables and nobody will be hurt," said the robber.

From a dresser drawer Bensinger handed over a diamond necklace, valued at $12,000; a diamond ring, valued at $10,000; a diamond and emerald ring, $4,000; a sapphire ring, $1,500, and a coral and crystal pin, $1,800. He also handed over his platinum and diamond watch, valued at $2,700, and $100 in cash from Mrs. Bensinger's dressing table and $15 in cash from his own pocket.

Warned Not to Call Police.

The robber then marched Bensinger back downstairs. The family was warned not to notify police for 15 minutes. One bandit went out through the corridor leading to the service elevator. The other went upstairs and down a fire escape to the 13th floor roof, where he could get the elevator. After a 15 minute wait Bensinger called Sheffield avenue police.

The Bensingers' 3 year old daughter, Pamela, was not disturbed in her own room. Bensinger is the nephew of the founder of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company and his wife is the daughter of Moses L. Annenberg. They were married in 1925 after he was divorced.

STATION MIXUP HAS CARDINAL INTRODUCE JAZZ

Boston, Mass., March 27.—[Special.]—Cardinal O'Connell's drive against crooners and jazz on the air met with a sudden set back today when he personally, but unintentionally, introduced a dance program to a huge audience of radio listeners.

He had thought to introduce the choir of the North American college at Rome in a program of seven Latin hymns appropriate to Easter, but instead of the chords of one of the foremost choirs in the world, the sounds which followed the cardinal's remarks were those of an Italian band attempting, without much success, to interpret American jazz music.

Station WEEI, from which the program was broadcast, issued an official statement tonight expressing their deep regret at the unintentional mixup, and explaining that operators in the Italian Broadcasting station at Rome had neglected to switch from their own local program to the international broadcast from Vatican City.

The result was that instead of hearing the elaborate religious program carefully arranged for American listeners on Easter, those who tuned in on the program heard music intended for local broadcast in Rome alone.

EXCISES LISTED AS SUBSTITUTE FOR SALES TAX

New Bonus Demands Haunt House.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—While the capital echoed today with rumblings of further insurgency in the house against the program of the Democratic and Republican leaders for balancing the budget the ways and means committee worked until a late hour tonight on its schedule of taxes to take the place of the rejected 600 million dollar sales tax.

With the aid of treasury experts, the subcommittee is preparing estimates of the revenue obtainable from excise taxes on more than a score of articles and services. The estimate of the aggregate amount of revenue derivable from the sources so far surveyed exceeds one billion dollars.

The subcommittee, it was learned, will not attempt to frame a substitute for the sales tax section of the billion dollar tax bill and will make no recommendation of the taxes to be selected for the required yield of 600 millions. It will report to the full ways and means committee the results of its survey of the entire field of feasible taxation together with the estimates of probable yield from each item and leave it to the larger body to select the subjects of taxation.

Sales Tax Method Survives.

The subcommittee has found it impossible to get entirely away from a sales tax. In fact the greater part of the schedule of feasible taxes it has prepared so far partakes of the nature of a selective sales tax. For example, the subcommittee has listed taxes on sales of automobiles, auto trucks and automobile accessories which the treasury experts estimated would yield not less than 100 millions.

Then there are taxes on sales of radio and phonograph equipment estimated to yield 11 millions, a one cent a gallon tax on gasoline sales 165 millions, and a 7 per cent tax on domestic consumption of gas and electricity 94 millions, real estate sales 10 millions, and an increase in the tax on tobacco sales 58 millions. Other articles, the yield of a tax on which the committee is investigating, include matches, mechanical refrigerators and candy.

Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] said tonight that the house will proceed with consideration of the tax bill tomorrow, although the ways and means committee may not be ready to report the substitute for the sales tax till Tuesday or Wednesday. It will take at least a week more and possibly two weeks to dispose of the bill in the house.

Insurgents Not Squelched.

There is no promise apparently, of a cessation of the bipartisan insurrection against the budget balancing program of the Democratic and Republican leaders. In fact, Representative Joseph T. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house committee on appropriations has attracted considerable support for his demand that efforts to balance the budget next year be abandoned and that the government borrow the money necessary to fill the gap between income and expenditures which now exceeds two billions of dollars a year.

Then there is the movement for legislation providing for loans to veterans of the remaining 50 per cent of the value of their adjusted compensation certificates which is growing apace and is about to come out into the open. To finance these loans would require two billions and render impossible the balancing of the budget for an indefinite period, according to administration officials.

Although the American Legion, following President Hoover's plea at its Detroit convention, refrained from asking this additional loan, which would be tantamount to immediate redemption of the certificates maturing in 1945, the veterans have been deluging senators and representatives with organized appeals for such legislation. Leaders of the movement in the house have procured assurances that the ways and means committee will consider the bonus loan bills as soon as the tax bill is disposed of.

Fears Veto if Passed.

With the congressional election in the offing it is altogether likely that a bonus bill will be passed by both houses. It is taken for granted that President Hoover would veto such legislation.

The bonus bill advocates are confident that it would be repassed over the veto, although a two-thirds vote in each house would be required, as was the present bonus law over Mr. Hoover's veto and the adjusted compensation bill over President Coolidge's veto.

Everywhere that politicians gather there is speculation on the political consequences of the house insurrection against the tax bill. The more the development is considered the more clearly it is seen to be a materialization, though in an unexpected manner, of that radical balance of power which it was predicted would be one of the consequences of the election of an almost evenly divided house.

The conservative Republican leaders, although sharing with the conservative Democratic leaders the repudiation of their proposed legislation by the insurgents, are deriving much comfort from what they conceive to be the certain effect of the debacle on the political prospects of the Democrats. From the viewpoint of the Republicans the spectacle of the defection of a majority of the Democrats from support of the tax bill their leaders had framed will convince the country of the soundness of the traditional Republican charge that the Democrats lack capacity for the management of public affairs.

Upsets Campaign Plans.

The Democrats are in the majority in the house. They elected the speaker and organized the committees. They hold the position of responsibility for the framing of legislation. Moreover, they had set out to convince the country and particularly the business world that they could safely be trusted with the responsibility not only of legislation in this congress, but of administration as well as legislation after March 4, 1933. The Democratic record in this session was to be a cardinal selling point of Democratic stock in the presidential election next November.

In this first test of the capacity to fulfill the mission they had chosen for themselves the Democrats came a cropper with resultant damage that has not been completely assessed. One of the byproducts of the disaster appears to be the total wreck of Speaker Garner's boom for the Democratic nomination for President. The speaker, who had espoused the sales tax, beat a precipitate retreat in the face of the revolt in his party, leaving a widespread impression that he does not measure up to presidential stature.

Revives Republican Hopes.

This aspect of the plight of the Democrats has revived the hopes of the Republicans, who had sunk to about the lowest depths of dejection over their party prospects in the approaching election. With hard times still prevailing they were privately confessing that any Democrat would be able to beat Mr. Hoover. Now, however, they are beginning to feel that there is a fair promise of Democratic blundering assuring the reëlection of the President.

This view of the situation is shared by a good many conservative Democrats, who fear that their party is fast ruining its prospects of victory next November. This was the thought in the mind of Representative Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.], acting chairman of the ways and means committee, when he told his fellow Democrats who were pressing for higher tariff duties disguised as excise taxes that they were destroying their party.

Among the Democratic insurgents a different view is held. They will tell you that in their revolt against the sales tax they are reflecting the convictions of their constituents, and that sentiment is running strongly throughout the county in favor of what the insurgents demand as compared with what the conservatives stand for. They will tell you that this sentiment is operating powerfully in favor of the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt by the Democrats, and that once he is nominated it will operate no less powerfully in favor of his election over Mr. Hoover.

According to this view the episode of the last week is a manifestation of the radicalism bred by hard times, which will be a factor to reckon with in the election. It is Roosevelt's appeal to the radical element that has arrayed Al Smith and Raskob against him.

JUNGLE EXPERT JOINS HUNT FOR LOST EXPLORER

Will Trace Report Col. Fawcett Lives.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, March 27.—Gen. Candido Rondon, an explorer familiar with Brazil and its uncharted jungles, doubts that Col. P. H. Fawcett, British explorer who disappeared seven years ago in the western wilderness, is still alive and an Indian captive, as reported here by Stephan Rattin, a Swiss trapper. However, he announced today that he will cooperate with Rattin and the British consulate in tracing the report.

COL. P. H. FAWCETT [Keystone Photo.]

Story Deemed Worth Probing.

Rattin came to Sao Paulo recently and said that on Oct. 18 last he had found a white man, long-bearded, tanned and clothed in animal skins, living with Indians between the headwaters of the Tapajoz and Madeira rivers and about 500 miles from the town of Dead Horse.

Rattin's description of the man, especially of his rings, and his assertion that the man gave his name as Fawcett and then mentioned the name of the British minister to Brazil, convinced the British consuls, Charles Goodwin and Arthur Abbott, that the story is worth investigating.

On Monday, March 21, Rattin plunged back over his trail to verify his claims. Fawcett had gone into the jungle with his son, Jack, and friend, Raleigh Rimmell, to find evidences of a civilization which Fawcett believed much older than those discovered on other continents. The son and friend are dead, according to information conveyed by Rattin.

Distrusts Rattin's Story.

Earlier Gen. Rondon had expressed disbelief in Rattin's report. To those who know Brazil's hinterlands, Rattin appears as one of many so-called discoverers of a Brazilian "mystery land," and so is not the first to come from the jungle telling tales regarding Fawcett, according to Rondon.

Gen. Rondon, who once accompanied the American president, Theodore Roosevelt, through the Brazilian jungles, wrote a letter to Rio newspapers voicing his distrust in Rattin's tale. He said that Rattin's description is his own achievement and that he might at least be mistaken.

"I am in a position to assure you that Rattin's assertions may be a mystification," he stated. "However, I have promised the British consul I would do my best to coöperate in the investigations, and I will do so."

Mother Identifies Woman Who Tried to End Life

A woman who was found unconscious with a chloroform soaked towel over her head in a room at the New Drake Apartment hotel, 6352 Maryland avenue, was identified at the county hospital last night as Miss Ethel Vincent. The identification was made by a woman who said she was Mrs. Lottie Vincent, 6453 Maryland avenue, mother of the victim. The latter, who is 30 years old, had registered at the hotel as Mrs. Marie Hall. Her condition is still serious.

TRADE LEADERS TO MEET HERE TO FIGHT TAX WASTE

Delegates of 93 Cities Convene Tomorrow.

Means of combating government waste and high taxes will be discussed by representatives of 93 cities in 17 states at a conference tomorrow called by George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The most powerful business and trade organizations in the area from Pennsylvania to Montana and Colorado on the west and Tennessee on the south will be represented.

Mr. Rossetter called the conference to discuss the following general subject:

"The growing menace of increased federal taxation and the necessity for business organizations to make their voices heard in congress in assuring the balancing of the budget and the elimination of every possible waste."

Fred Sargent to Speak.

Among the speakers to be heard, besides Mr. Rossetter, are Fred W. Sargent, president of the North Western railway and chairman of the new committee of 100 formed to bring about governmental economies, and Charles Barham, vice president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway and president of the Nashville chamber of commerce.

"In the face of a slump that saw the national income of the people of the United States reduced by 38 billions of dollars in the period from 1929 to 1931," said Mr. Rossetter, "and with additional important income losses feared for 1932, we have seen the cost of government rising by leaps and bounds.

"In 1913 the cost of government throughout the United States totaled two billions of dollars. In 1931 it was eleven billions. In 1932, judging from appropriations already made or being discussed by national, state and municipal tax spending bodies, this burden probably will be increased by another two billions of dollars.

Taxes Eat Up Incomes.

"In other words, total taxes this year have gone so far out of line when income is considered that for every dollar in American wages or trade in 1932 we may be taxed 40 cents. This unheard of tax burden compares with a combined revenue demand of only 6½ cents in 1913 and 22 cents in 1931."

Results of the conference are to be forwarded to congress and to business leaders throughout the country.

EGGS 40c EACH IN MOSCOW, 490 CARLOADS ON WAY

MOSCOW, March 27.—(AP)—The people of Moscow, who have felt an acute shortage of eggs for more than two months, and with the few left selling at 40 cents each, today were promised relief soon in the form of a shipment from distant points.

Shipments of 490 carloads of eggs and 1,120,000 laying hens are expected to arrive April 1. Owing to a heavy demand for exports, no eggs have been available here since mid-January except in the best hotels and on the private market, where they sold for 80 kopecks [about 40 cents] apiece, or eight times their regular price in the coöperative stores.

HOME GUARDED AFTER THREAT

SCHOOLBOYS ROB TO GET SPENDING MONEY; CAUGHT

Two 16 year old high school students, dissatisfied with the amount of spending money they have been receiving, started out with a pistol to get more last night.

They entered the Illinois Central station at 59th street and compelled the agent, Miss Cecelia Sanovic of 7340 Jeffery avenue, to surrender $8. The holdup was reported to the police and a little later the two youths were arrested at 55th street and Dorchester avenue by a squad headed by Sergt. Con Czernikowski. They admitted the robbery.

The youths are Owen Woods, 5519 Kenwood avenue, who is in his second year at Tilden High, and Albert Van Sieleghem, 5487 Harper avenue, who attends Hyde Park High school. The pistol used by the young bandits and the money were found in Woods' home. His father is janitor of an apartment building.

19 Barrels of Real Scotch Whisky Cast on Shore

Long Beach, L. I., March 27.—[Special.]—While barrels of pickled herring continued to drift ashore at Long Beach today, making a total of more than 1,700 salvaged thus far, 19 barrels, each containing three cases of Scotch, were picked up in the surf by the coast guard at Arverne, Queens, three miles away. The Scotch containers all were linked together with rope. The mystery of their floating ashore proved as great as that of the herring invasion, as no ships were reported to have foundered off Long Island recently.

ANOTHER THREAT TO KIDNAP CHILD MADE IN CAPITAL

Home of Granddaughter of Havana Guarded.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—A police guard still watched the residence of Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson, granddaughter of Mark Hanna, tonight, although members of the household and Supt. Glassford of the police attached little importance to the telephoned threat to kidnap her 6 year old daughter.

Following closely written threats against Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Sir Willmot Lewis, British newspaper correspondent, and threatening communications to other prominent capital residents, the telephoned warning to Mrs. Davidson that "Your child is in danger" and demand for $2,000 spurred police investigation.

Davidson tonight characterized the incident as "ridiculous" and the work of a crank. Glassford made it clear he did not take it seriously, although providing the usual precautions. Davidson said that while police were not notified until late Saturday and members of the household had not even been informed of the call, a newspaperman asked about the matter not three hours after the call was received.

A 24 hour guard also is being maintained at the Lewis home. Police are seeking a marine absent from his post here for questioning in connection with the Longworth threat, but that home is not under guard.

Spain's Ex-King May Get Part of Marquis' Fortune

SANTANDER, Spain, March 27.—(AP)—The Marquis de Valdecilla, who died yesterday, was buried today in the family pantheon at Valdecilla. Thousands attended the funeral, many of them arriving by special trains. Among the numerous telegrams of sympathy were two from former King Alfonso and his wife. The marquis, noted as a philanthropist, is reported to have left a fortune worth more than $2,000,000, part of which, his friends believed, would go to the former king and queen, who were his close friends.

IRISH DENOUNCE ENGLAND; CALL FOR A REPUBLIC

Easter Uprising of 1916 Observed by Throngs.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 27.—Irish republicanism roared its defiance at the British government today. Throughout the length and breadth of Ireland the technically illegal Irish republican army demonstrated its strength in commemoration of the Easter rebellion of 1916, while its members denounced Great Britain from hundreds of platforms. There was no disturbance here or in any part of the country.

EAMON DE VALERA

"Complete severance from England and the British empire!" was the day's slogan.

The men of the Irish republican army warned Eamon de Valera, new president of the Irish Free State, that even the abolishing of the oath of allegiance to the British king and the withholding of land annuity payments would not satisfy them.

Carry No Arms.

Wearing no uniforms and carrying no arms, 5,000 republicans marched in military formation through Dublin streets with the precision of well trained soldiers. Opposite the post-office in O'Connell street, where De Valera led a group of rebels during the fiercest fighting 16 years ago, the buglers sound a salute, the flags were dipped and the order, "Eyes left!" echoed down the line from the officers.

Behind the silently marching men with set faces paraded 15,000 others—members of the Fianna Fail, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, women's auxiliaries, and smaller affiliated groups. They followed the army to Glasnevin cemetery, where the victims of the 1916 uprising are buried.

About half of Dublin's half million population lined the streets to see the marchers. There were no cheers, and there were no smiling faces in the marching line, which included both boys and gray haired men. Every marcher wore an Easter lily in remembrance of the rebellion. The women were picturesquely dressed in green belted uniforms with saffron shawls.

Hurl Defiance at England.

At the graves the republican forces formed a hollow square and many women knelt in prayer. A proclamation was read, breathing defiance to the British government in every line.

"The need for the Irish republican army will exist as long as Ireland is held forcibly within the British empire and the shackles of the so-called treaty remain upon the country," the statement said. "This treaty was imposed by force. It is unnatural and immoral. To undo it absolutely is our duty!"

Maurice Twomey, member of the Irish republican army council, reiterated the army's determination to set up a republic, smash the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921, which ended the strife between Great Britain and Ireland, and set up the Irish Free State and remove British interests from Ireland.

Insists Treaty Must Go.

"A free people and an independent republic is what the uprising of 1916 meant and nothing less will satisfy us now," he shouted to the army. "The treaty must go lock, stock, and barrel!

"Great Britain has forty million people to our four millions and they should be able to make their own case and fight for it if they dared. It is not a question of legality or honor involved in our relations with England. Rather, it is a dishonor to remain as we are. The republican army will be as always the first to attack."

After the speech the throng marched back to the tune of the late John Philip Sousa's march, "The Double Eagle," and dispersed.

Today was the first time since the civil war in 1923 that the Republicans had emerged into the open. Suppressed by the William T. Cosgrave government and proscribed by the Roman Catholic bishops last October, they mustered impressive strength not only in Dublin but in every large town of the Free State.

All the demonstrations were orderly, possibly because no member of President de Valera's government participated and also possibly because the regular uniformed army of the Free State was confined to barracks.

Despite its orderliness, today's demonstration left an uneasy feeling in Dublin that there would be friction between the Free State army and the Republicans before long. There was no sign today of De Valera's policy satisfying the Republicans who have stored arms and ammunition in various parts of the country.

Police Keep Peace in Ulster.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, March 27.—(AP)—Strong bodies of armed police kept peace throughout Northern Ireland, where many Republican demonstrations were held today in commemoration of Dublin's Easter rebellion of 1916.

"Owing to the presence of armed soldiers of England, there will be no oration here today," said Malachi Quinn, noted Ulster Republican, to 300 persons who assembled in St. Mary's graveyard at Newry, County Down.

All roads leading to Newry were patroled by armed police. A large force of the police also assembled at the cross in the center of the cemetery. At the foot of the cross Mr. Quinn placed a wreath in memory of those who fell in the 1916 uprising and read their names.

Police Occupy Cemetery.

The police from midnight on throughout the day occupied the cemetery in the city of Londonderry, where a number of Republicans are buried. Five hundred Republicans gathered, however, at the rear of a Catholic church. There a Republican leader spoke and prayers were said for the dead. As soon as the ceremony was over a strong contingent of police rushed up and remained on duty for several hours.

Win Support of M. P.'s.

BLACKPOOL, England, March 27.—(AP)—George Buchanan and James Maxton, Independent Labor members of parliament, were "backing the Irish government" in its intention to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British king, Buchanan told the annual conference of his party here today.

"As far as the Independent Labor party group in the house of commons is concerned, we shall oppose strongly any attempt to bludgeon or browbeat the Irish people," Buchanan said.

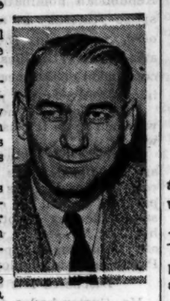
100 CHURCH BOYS VOTE TO REVOLT TO KEEP TEACHER

Unanimous Against Elders on Social Activities.

One hundred boys, members of the Sunday school class of Dr. Howard Dabbs, a physician, in the Rogers Park Congregational church, Morse and Ashland avenues, voted unanimously yesterday to withdraw from the church unless Dr. Dabbs is retained as their director.



DR. DABBS.

The vote was taken at the conclusion of Easter services, which drew full attendance of the class. The action of the boys followed a recent announcement of church leaders that Dr. Dabbs had been asked to resign because of his overemphasis of athletic, dramatic, and social functions, including dancing.

C. W. Longman, chairman of a special committee which is to pick the successor or successors of Dr. Dabbs, addressed the class meeting. A hymn followed his talk. After the hymn Dr. Dabbs motioned to one of the boys to extinguish the candles on the altar and then drew curtains across the altar.

Vote Without Discussion.

He announced the curtains were drawn to signal a business meeting of the class. The special meeting needed no explanation, he said. Walter Gamage, president of the class, took the floor to call for a standing vote in support of Dr. Dabbs, after stating no discussion was needed.

The boys all leaped to their feet. Mr. Longman dropped his head into his hands. He, alone, did not rise.

After the boys were seated, Gamage stated that on Monday night there would be a meeting concerning the class. "We have not been invited to the meeting," he said. "They are going to do things about us without asking us to take part. I appoint Leonard Dean to pick a committee to attend the meeting and ask that Dr. Dabbs be reinstated.

"If they don't reinstate him, we'll do something else. Several churches in the neighborhood have asked us to come in. Anyhow, there's nothing to worry about. We can take care of our problems."

The speaker was loudly applauded. A boy leaped to his feet to say he was from the Edgewater Presbyterian church and could bring 300 boys to next Sunday's meeting to participate in a demonstration for Dr. Dabbs. Another boy asked that Dr. Dabbs speak.

Dabbs Defends Record.

Dr. Dabbs denied that in his five years as director too great a stress had been placed on athletics and social life as against religion. He blamed the demand for his resignation on Nicholas Hess, janitor of the church. Hess, he said, objected to the extra cleaning he had to do in the church because of the young people's activities and he began collecting evidence consisting of a whisky bottle found in the men's room, cigaret stubs, and the like.

Dr. Dabbs also told of the demand for his resignation, made by Dr. Frank L. Knapp, chairman of the religious education committee. "He asked me secretly, "Dr. Dabbs said. "I said I can't hear you, you're not talking loud enough. He said I would be kicked out. I told him he looked too small. You know he is only about so high. [The doctor demonstrated with his hand as the class laughed.]

"Dr. Knapp said the doors would be locked. I asked him if the boys would be locked out too. He said yes, that they would start over with a new teacher and new pupils if necessary. You all know the trouble is the new janitor. It is either me or the janitor. The church isn't big enough to hold both of us.

"I've never told you how he has treated me but you see the end. The older people won't admit it's the janitor. They haven't the nerve or backbone to do justice."

Janitor Refuses to Talk.

When the doctor finished the boys cheered. Another vote was taken and they unanimously agreed to meet in the doctor's office at 1607 Howard street unless he is reinstated.

As the boys filed out the janitor, a small heavy chested man, nattily clad in a gray suit with a double breasted vest, rushed into the room. He went about slamming down windows and scowling at Dr. Dabbs. He snorted when he was asked for his version of the dispute.

TELL OF MISSION IN AFRICA

Finds City Orderly

The Rev. William C. Terril, used to having boa-constrictors and hippopotamuses lying around underfoot in the jungles of Portuguese East Africa, was amazed to discover on his return here for his first furlough in 11 years, that Chicago isn't the gangster-governed place Africa thinks it is.

"In Johannesburg the theaters portray Chicago as a city ruled by gangsters," declared the missionary yesterday. "When we so much as admitted we were going to Chicago the people were certain we would be in great danger. But I am happy to find this is not so, and that clear-thinking citizens have taken things into their own hands."

The Rev. Mr. Terril, a graduate of Garrett Bible Institute, was selected 25 years ago for the post of Methodist Episcopal missionary in South Africa and Portauguese East Africa.

With him on his vacation are his wife and their two children, Maybelle, now 18, and Frances, 14, both born in Africa. All said they are anxious to return.

WOMAN AND MAN ROB CALIFORNIA TRAIN AND FLEE

Two Detectives Among Those Held Up.

San Francisco, Cal., March 27.—(AP)—Authorities today sought a woman and her male assistant who last night robbed passengers of a Southern Pacific train of $800 and valuable jewelry, but missed $2,000 carried by a traveler forced to act as collector of the loot.

Enter Train at Frisco.

Victims of the robbers included two Los Angeles detectives, Harry F. Herhardt and A. L. Bergeror, who lost $15. They said later their service revolvers were packed away in their bags.

The bandits entered the lounge car of the southbound train as it left the San Francisco station and with drawn guns announced a holdup was in progress. They elected J. W. Horsman, San Francisco, to pass the hat among the 30 passengers.

He walked down the aisle and wallets and jewelry were tossed into his hat as the bandits followed his progress with their pistols. Less than five minutes after the holdup started the bandits leaped from the train. Police believed an accomplice in an automobile on the nearby highway aided their escape.

Mrs. Frances J. McEnerny, Los Angeles, a passenger in the car, told officers she thought one of the bandits was a woman. She said she noticed the eye brows were plucked to a fine line and hair was plastered to the bandit's face to resemble long sideburns.

One Thought Injured.

One of the robbers was thought to have been hurt when he leaped from the train. Passengers saw him fall and strike a concrete abutment at the entrance of a tunnel into which the train was moving.

Officers investigating today found a pistol there with one cartridge exploded. They said the gun had been recently fired, possibly when the bandit fell.

G. O. P. HAS 3 FIT CANDIDATES FOR ATTY. GENERAL

Kerner Is Indorsed in Democratic Primary.

The Tribune today continues publication of a series of reports on candidates for nomination in the April 12 primaries. Where it has recommendations to make to the voters they will be included in the discussion of the office for which the favored candidates are running.

ATTORNEY GENERAL
REPUBLICAN

In the opinion of THE TRIBUNE, there are three good candidates for the Republican nomination for attorney general. In the order in which their names are listed officially, they are Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel, Charles W. Hadley, and John E. Northup.

Northup, as first assistant state's attorney, recently won his long battle in the sanitary district case which was under his personal direction and control from its inception.

He first attracted public attention when, in 1912, he was appointed special state's attorney in the prosecution of vote frauds. In 1921 he was made a special assistant United States attorney general in the investigation of mail robberies which sent "Big Tim" Murphy and others to the federal penitentiary.

Up to this time there has been no organized support appearing for him except that of the Deneen group.

Hadley Victor in Small Suit.

Hadley was an assistant under Edward J. Brundage when the latter was attorney general and was assigned to the civil suit to compel Len Small as former state treasurer to pay to the state all money collected on public funds while he was state treasurer. Attorney General Carlstrom retained Hadley in the state service and he brought the Small case to a successful conclusion in the Illinois Supreme court. Small settled the claim against him for $650,000.

Four years ago Hadley became a candidate for the attorney generalship, but withdrew when his superior, Carlstrom, withdrew from the governorship race and announced himself as a candidate for another term as head of the state law department. Following the election, Gov. Emmerson appointed him to the chairmanship of the Illinois commerce commission, a post he resigned to enter this race. Before he was an assistant attorney general, Hadley had served as state's attorney for Du Page county.

So far Hadley has kept himself clear of the Republican governorship fight.

Gentzel with Custer.

Judge Gentzel is a running mate of Omer N. Custer, candidate for the nomination for governor, and was sponsored for his place on the ballot by the Harding-Crowe forces in Cook county. He has been on the bench twelve years, his original sponsor having been Homer K. Galpin. As a candidate for the Superior bench he has had the indorsement of the Chicago Bar association. He was a candidate for the nomination for secretary of state in 1928, but was defeated.

Other Republican candidates for this nomination are Lowell B. Mason of Oak Park, a former state senator, a dry, who was defeated in 1930 by a wet Democrat, and Attorney Sumner S. Anderson of Charleston.

DEMOCRATIC

THE TRIBUNE recommends to Democrats that they vote for Judge Otto Kerner for nomination for the attorney generalship.

Judge Kerner is the regular organization candidate. He was selected by the Cook county central committee and was indorsed by the state central committee as a member of the Horner-Dieterich-Courtney slate. He was elected to the Circuit bench on the coalition ticket of 1927 and since his election has made a record for hard work. He is said to be a good lawyer.

State Representative Truman A. Snell of Carlinville is a running mate of Michael L. Igoe, candidate for the governorship. For years he was a rabid dry, but in the last regular session of the assembly voted for the Weber-O'Grady bill. Prior to his election to the assembly, where he now is serving his sixth term, he had been county judge of Macoupin county. In the house he has been recognized as keen and forceful, but in the recent special sessions has been charged with "playing politics" beside Igoe.

There are ten less important candidates. One of them is Charles C. Craig of Galesburg, a former member of the Supreme court, who also has seen legislative service. It is said he is not deeply interested in this campaign. Others are Earl Downes, an employé in the Chicago city law department, and Victor Frohlich, another Chicago attorney.

STATE AUDITOR
REPUBLICAN

State Auditor Nelson is not seeking another term, and twenty Republican candidates are seeking this place on the November ballot. The last man to enter was State Senator Harry G. Wright of De Kalb, who has the support of Nelson and the state administration. His chief opponent is believed to be David H. Jackson of Chicago.

Wright is a physician and a banker. He has been elected to a short term and three full terms in the state senate, where he is recognized as a member of Senator Richard J. Barr's following in most matters, except those in which he is personally interested.

He is a dry. That fact is being cited against him in the wet centers of the state, as is the fact that he was one of the legislators participating in a $25,000 junket to Europe last summer. In Cook county also his opponents are calling attention to a statement issued by Wright when he was a candidate for the senate two years ago. This was a declaration against constitutional reapportionment, a declaration against giving "Cook county and the other large cities any greater representation than they now have."

Jackson, originally a Lundin man, broke with "the poor Swede" last year in the mayoralty primaries and is now counted in the Small camp. He received two important appointments from Small while the latter was governor. One was the presidency of the Lincoln park board. The other was the chairmanship of the state commerce commission. For a time he was head of the securities division under Secretary of State Stratton, but was ousted from that place by Lundin.

The other entries are considered of little significance, although William G. Tegtmeier of Chicago, who ran for sanitary trustee two years ago, is said to have gathered some local strength. The others include Thomas J. Houston, former insurance commissioner; Patrick Sheridan Smith, former city clerk, and Robert M. Perbohner, confidential man for the last Republican city administration.

STATE AUDITOR
DEMOCRATIC

Democrats generally concede that Edward J. Barrett, now state treasurer, will win their party's nomination for auditor. He broke the regular slate in 1930 when he was an unknown, but was taken up by the organization among whose leaders and members he immediately made himself popular.

He was only 17 years old when he enlisted in the 131st infantry. He was wounded in the Argonne forest, and while convalescing, studied in government camps and hospitals until discharged. He was graduated from Mayo college. He is the youngest treasurer ever elected in Illinois, being 28 when he took office. His conduct of the office has not been criticized. He has an experienced banking man in charge of the heavier details.

McGrath Runs with Igoe.

T. B. McGrath Jr. of Chicago is now identified with the Igoe ticket. He received considerable publicity last year, when, as president of the institution, he notified all depositors of the Mayfair State bank to come and get their money, paid them in full, and closed the bank. He started out as an independent and sought the Igoe connection.

There are four other candidates, among them Robert W. McKinlay, former county commissioner and former chairman of the election board.

SECRETARY OF STATE
REPUBLICAN

William J. Stratton, the present secretary of state, has no opposition that the politicians consider important. He was originally a Lundin-Small man. Small made him first a game warden and later head of the new department of conservation, but Stratton ran for his present office four years ago against Small's wishes and since that time Stratton's only political allegiance has been to Lundin. He has kept clear of the governorship fight.

When he took office Stratton startled the old timers by retaining the experienced staff built up by Emmerson, his predecessor. His friends boast that he is the first secretary who has turned over his cash receipts promptly, has paid interest on them, and made public statements of his accounts.

Of the four candidates against Stratton only two are at all widely known. Paul E. Arnold is a nephew of George B. Arnold, director of labor under Small. He is in the oil business in Chicago. The other is less favorably known. He is Julius Link, a Chicagoan convicted of attempting to extort $10,000 from Congressman Oscar De Priest in 1930.

SECRETARY OF STATE
DEMOCRATIC

The Democratic regular organization entry for secretary of state is Edward J. Hughes of Chicago. After serving several terms in the state senate, he was elected in 1930 to the Cook county board of review. He acquiesced in the abolition of his newly acquired office by the enactment of the Kelly bill for the reorganization of the county tax machinery. It is thought he was given his present place on the ballot as compensation for surrendering his membership on the board of review without protest.

There are eight other Democratic candidates in the field.

ROOSEVELT MEETS SMITH TEST AGAIN IN IOWA AND MAINE

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—Supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will clash again on Tuesday when Democratic state conventions to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Iowa and Maine, and the Roosevelt adherents will attempt to get instructions for their candidate.

No attempt will be made by the Smith backers to get instructions for Mr. Smith, and in Iowa the Smith forces will be reinforced by friends of Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, Newton D. Baker of Ohio, and other possible presidential aspirants in their effort to prevent instructions.

The managers of Gov. Roosevelt's campaign will go to unusual lengths to get instructions in Maine and Iowa, which, if successful, will give the governor a total of 130 pledged or instructed delegates.

In Maine, Senator Clarence C. Dill of Washington, a strong Roosevelt adherent, is scheduled to address the convention, and Robert H. Jackson, secretary of the national committee, has been at work among the leading Maine Democrats urging them to support a resolution endorsing Roosevelt.

EASTER CALLED DAY OF HOPE FOR WORLD'S DESPAIR

Easter means nothing if it does not mean a radiant and victorious Christianity," said Dr. Hugh Black of the Union Theological seminary, New York at the meeting of the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall last night.

"All our modern serious literature," he said, "is full of the paganism of materialism and theatrical stoicism, godless ethics of dauntless despair, utterly opposed to the ethics of Christ.

"The fundamental point of His ethics is that man can trust this world because it is God's world. It hides no treachery.

"Beaten in all His battles, He won the campaign. That's the spirit you need for cleaning up Chicago; a will to do the impossible."

CUSTER HECKLED ON PROHIBITION AT NEGRO RALLY

Candidate Discusses His G. O. P. Opponents.

Omer N. Custer, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, spoke yesterday at a meeting of colored voters in the 8th regiment armory at 3517 Giles avenue. At the conclusion of the meeting a man striving to get near the platform shouted: "Mr. Custer, I hear you are dry; why don't you tell us whether you are wet or dry?"

Custer departed without answering and the heckler was immediately surrounded by persons who barred his progress toward the candidate. At the same meeting another attempt at heckling Mr. Custer was frustrated by an impassioned speech by Aaron Payne, a state employé.

Discusses His Opponents.

Mr. Custer had a few words to say about his rivals. He said one of his opponents is making promises that he will restore prosperity if elected, that he alone knows how to restore prosperity and that it will not be restored unless he is elected to office. Custer pronounced such statements ludicrous.

One of his opponents, a former attorney general, is complaining about the patronage ring but does not hesitate to take any receiverships he can get, Custer said. The attorney general reference apparently was to Edward J. Brundage.

Mr. Custer said another of his competitors for the nomination is promising to reduce taxes 40 per cent.

"How can he do so when the truth is that even if he wiped out the whole state tax it would reduce your tax bill only 10 per cent?" Mr. Custer asked.

"One of the candidates says the racketeers are for me and the gentlemen are for him," he added. "Well, I'm going to be for those who are for me."

First Appeal for Negro Votes.

It was Custer's first personal appeal for votes in colored territory and his efforts were somewhat hampered by a memorial held in the neighborhood for the late Bishop A. J. Carey. The memorial was staged by campaigners for a rival candidate for governor, according to Custer's friends.

The 8th Regiment armory meeting was called by State Senator Adelbert Roberts to give Custer a chance to refute statements being made about him in the wards where there are many colored voters.

"A pamphlet being circulated among you people is a scurrilous lie," Mr. Custer said. "It is an insult to your intelligence. In my youth I learned never to get into a fuss with a skunk so I'll say no more about it.

"You people will get just as fair treatment from me as any other men and women in the state. As to patronage, you'll certainly not get less than you are getting now and more if anything."

Roberts Talks of Patronage.

Patronage was the main topic of Senator Roberts in his introduction of Mr. Custer. Literature on the seats in the armory entitled "To the Colored Voters of Illinois," said that under former Gov. Small there were 81 Negroes on the state pay roll, whereas Gov. Emmerson has 207 colored men and women on his pay roll.

"We lost the important jobs of commerce commissioner and assistant commerce commissioner," Senator Roberts declared, "but we got a man on the board of pardons and paroles, and an arbitrator in the industrial commission. It takes more brains to be an arbitrator than a commerce commissioner and while the difference in pay in these jobs costs us $2,800 a year, we have gained $100,000 a year through the additional jobs Gov. Emmerson gave us."

Payne Shuts Off Heckler.

The first man who sought to question Custer from the audience was said to be the representative of a large newspaper for Negroes. Aaron Payne, the arbitrator for the industrial commission, jumped to his feet and shut off the heckler with statements to the effect that Custer had not discriminated against Negroes when his campaign was launched in his home town of Galesburg.

It was not true, Payne said, that Negroes were barred from Custer's hotel, nor was it true that they could not get served in the hotel dining room or other restaurants except the one at the railroad station. Custer had opened the hotel wide for Negroes and whites alike and welcomed all, his advocate insisted.

TEACHERS TO OBTAIN CANDIDATES' VIEWS ON SCHOOLS, TAXES

All candidates for nomination at the April primary are to be canvassed this week on questions deemed important by the Federation of Women High School Teachers, it was announced yesterday by the president, Dorothy Weil. "Although the organization does not endorse candidates," she said, "it will urge members to make intelligent choice on the basis of definite achievements."

Attention is to be centered on candidates for the legislature. As a background in the case of candidates for reëlection the teachers plan to cite their records, particularly on questions involving the schools.

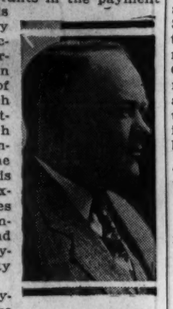
"The first question to be asked," Miss Weil said, "will be, 'What suggestions have you for helping the Chicago teachers to get their money?' Since last April the teachers have received only three months' pay in cash. A survey by the Chicago Principals' club last week revealed dire need among hundreds of the teachers.

Question No. 2 is: "How do you propose to meet the insistence of the citizens' committee that necessary public service, such as schools, be curtailed to meet the threatened reduction in revenue?" Teacher leaders express little hope that maintenance costs will be curtailed and fear that any further reductions will be taken out of salaries which, in large part, they have not received.

TAX COLLECTOR TELLS ERRORS IN USE OF WARRANTS

Instructs Citizens on How to Pay Bills.

Misunderstanding of the use of tax anticipation warrants in the payment of 1930 tax bills caused County Treasurer McDonough yesterday to issue an announcement of two rules which govern his acceptance of such paper. The announcement, the treasurer said, is intended to explain his duties and to save embarrassment and delay for taxpayers and county employés.



J. B. M'DONOUGH. [Walinger Photo.]

"Many taxpayers," he said, "are thronging the office of the treasurer offering scrip and wrong tax warrants in payment of 1930 taxes, only to be informed that such security cannot be accepted under the law. Many others seek to meet their 1930 tax bills by presentation of 1931 tax warrants which may be used only in liquidation of 1931 taxes.

Proportional Payments Only.

"Tax warrants of 1930 issuance are available for tax settlement only in their proper proportion, as allocated to various accounts of the city of Chicago as a corporate municipality; Cook county, schools, the forest preserve and sanitary districts, parks and the state of Illinois."

Amplifying his statement, Mr. McDonough said that tax warrants may be used by taxpayers to retire only that portion of their total bills which is levied by the municipality issuing the warrant. Thus, a sanitary district warrant may be used only to retire an individual taxpayer's debt to the snitary district. In many cases the debt may amount only to a few dollars or even a few cents of the bill.

Illustrating the proportional rule, a resident of South town is assessed at $6.74 for each $100 of tax valuation. Of the rate thus established the various taxing bodies are prorated their shares as follows: City of Chicago, $2.44; schools, $2.01; Cook county, 56 cents; parks, 74 cents; sanitary district, 51 cents; state of Illinois, 39 cents, and forest preserve, 9 cents.

No Cash Available.

One cause of delay and embarrassment, Mr. McDonough said, is the mistaken belief of many citizens that they can get cash balances on their tax warrants by tendering warrants larger than the tax bills they owe. He pointed out that the treasurer's office has no cash to pay out on warrants, and that in order to be acceptable for payment on a tax bill the warrant must be for an amount not greater than the tax levy due to the local government which issued the warrant. It was said that many teachers have been disappointed in their hopes of realizing cash on warrants by tendering them in payment of small tax bills.

W. B. Ross, town collector of Oak Park, announced yesterday that his collection of 1930 taxes in the township, completed Saturday, totaled $1,500,000. He is returning the books to the county treasurer today and the remainder of the levy in the town of Oak Park, which totaled $3,600,000 on real estate and $442,000 on personalty, will be collected by the treasurer. Last year Collector Ross took in $1,400,000 before returning the books to the county treasurer.

CRUSADERS GIVE INDORSEMENTS IN CONGRESS RACE

Nesbit and Day Favored for Nomination.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Preliminary reports on some of the congressional contests at the April 12 primaries were made last night by the Crusaders, militant anti-prohibition organization, which is preparing for a concentrated effort during the final fortnight of the campaign to increase the liberal vote from Illinois in congress.

STEPHEN A. DAY. [Matzene Photo.]

For congressman at large the report recommends Walter Nesbit of Belleville for Democratic nomination. He is on the Democratic organization slate and is a union leader who was nominated two years ago, but lost to Richard Yates, dry Republican, by some 15,000. There are two congressmen at large, and a second candidate is to be recommended this week.

Indorse Judge's Son.

On the Republican side the Crusaders have indorsed Stephen A. Day of Evanston, son of the late William R. Day, justice of the U. S. Supreme court and secretary of state in McKinley's cabinet. A second candidate is to be recommended, and the Crusaders are seeking the liberal with strongest chance of winning. The Anti-Saloon league has been advising the drys to vote only for Mr. Yates.

Van Decker Favored.

3d district: Republican—The report recommends Ford M. Van Decker against Elliott W. Sproul, former congressman, a dry who voted for the Jones 5 and 10 law and was a favorite of the Anti-Saloon league. Sproul is now running on a wet plank. Democrat—Congressman Edward A. Kelly's record on the liquor question is reported satisfactory.

6th district: Democrat—The report says Congressman James T. Igoe has "rendered energetic and valuable service" against prohibition.

7th district: Democrat — Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz is reported to have a satisfactory record on prohibition. Republican—The Crusaders have not yet picked a candidate to back against M. A. Michaelson, former congressman of leaky trunk fame.

Approve of Congressman Britten.

9th district: Republican—Congressman Fred A. Britten's record is called "a most satisfying one" by the Crusaders. The report adds: "He is one of the most active and effective members of congress against prohibition."

10th district: Democrat—Charles H. Weber, county commissioner, is favored. As a member of the legislature he was co-author of the Weber-O'Grady bill to repeal the Illinois search and seizure act. Republican—No action as yet.

Two recommendations have been made by the Crusaders in districts outside Cook county. They are:

11th district: Republican—Edwin S. Goltry of Downers Grove is recommended. He is running against Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora, a dry, the only Illinois house member who did not vote on the Beck-Linthicum resolution to resubmit the liquor question to the states.

23d district: Democrat—The Crusaders recommend Albert E. Isley of Jasper county, a former state senator, against Congressman W. W. Arnold of Robinson. Arnold voted for the Beck-Linthicum resolution, but the report regards Isley as "a fighting liberal."

Two recommendations on the general assembly were announced by the Crusaders as follows:

6th District: Senate, Republican—William G. Knox is recommended in the report for concentrated Crusader support against Senator James J. Barbour of Evanston, dry leader. The report says Knox was picked from a field of four liberals as the one with strongest prospects of organization support.

7th district: House, Republican—Theodore F. Reinhardt of Flossmoor is indorsed. A second candidate is to be picked. This is the home district of Mrs. Anna Wilmark Ickes, one of the five Cook county house members who voted against repeal of the search and seizure act.

Further recommendations are to be made from time to time, the Crusaders planning to announce their findings as soon as they are made in a district, instead of holding them back for a complete report on district fights in which they will participate.

Gen. Greely Marks 88th Birthday

Recalls Days of '84

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—Sitting peacefully before a cheery Easter fire, Maj. Gen. Adolphus W. Greely today observed his 88th birthday anniversary, flooded in memories of the arctic tragedy that shocked the world 48 years ago.

His friend, Brig. Gen. Davis L. Brainard, chatted with him. Together they had laid on the ice of Cape Sabine in 1884 within whispering distance of the icy death that claimed 18 of the party of 25. Brainard was his top sergeant.

They are the only survivors of the seven who were taken from the cape June 23, 1884, after 10 months of privation and suffering, during which Greely, then a first lieutenant, observed his 40th anniversary.

Cutting, Hoover Foe, Named National Committeeman

Santa Fé, N. M., March 27.—(AP)—Senator Bronson Cutting, avowedly opposed to the renomination of President Hoover, is the new Republican national committeeman from New Mexico. He was elected unanimously last night at the state Republican convention.

FATHER OF 8 SHOT TO DEATH AS HE WALKS IN STREET

Carmen Spinelle, 40 years old, father of eight children, was shot to death last night as he was walking in Hermitage avenue, just north of Taylor street.

An anonymous telephone call sent Sergt. John Wall and his squad to the scene where they found Spinelle dead on the sidewalk. When police arrived, the streets in the neighborhood were deserted, and no one could be found who had witnessed the slaying, or even heard the shots.

Sergt. Wall finally found a grocer who said he thought the murder victim was Spinelle. A 12 year old son, summoned from Spinelle's home, 175 West Polk street, completed the identification.

CHICAGO WAITS FOR FIREWORKS IN VOTE BATTLE

Candidates Still Center Efforts Downstate.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The biggest state and county primaries—at least in point of the number of candidates entered—that Chicago has ever experienced will take place two weeks from tomorrow, but from all reports the general public has failed to receive a thrill up to this time and now, so far as the candidates and managers indicate, the political depression is to continue for some time.

Much of the difference between this and former campaigns is attributed to a greatly increased use of the radio over which the candidates read carefully prepared manuscripts. The old red fire, the bombs bursting in air, the bands, and the other means of street demonstrations have been dropped while the office seekers seek the voters "at their firesides."

Little Revival This Week.

The period of dullness is likely to continue well into this week, judging by the statements of the plans of the principal campaigners, those for the governorship. For weeks most of them have been saying that this week would see the opening of the grand climax of their operations, but the various headquarters say that this week will be much like those that have gone before.

For example, there are several of the governorship candidates who will spend some of their time downstate. Supposedly, the speaking tours outside of Cook county have been completed, but the managers say the time has not arrived to "put on the works" here, so the candidates are making short downstate jumps.

Omer N. Custer, administration candidate, will spend today in Peoria. Edward J. Brundage will be in Freeport tomorrow. Attorney General Carlstrom will spend most of his time here, but he also may keep some downstate engagements. The same is true of William H. Malone, who, incidentally, promises one of the few "shows" of the week. He says he will speak at a loop theater some noonday toward the end of the week.

Democrats Go Downstate.

Judge Henry Horner and his associates on the regular Democratic organization's ticket will start downstate this morning and will spend most of the week there. They will stop at Paxton about noon, go on to Champaign for an afternoon meeting to which they were invited by students of the University of Illinois, and will be at Bloomington for a dinner and reception this evening.

Tomorrow the Democratic caravan will be in Pekin and Peoria, on Thursday in Joliet, and on Friday in Streator and La Salle. Those expected to accompany Judge Horner include State Chairman Thomas F. Donovan, candidate for lieutenant governor; State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, now seeking the auditorship; Congressman William H. Dieterich, candidate for the United States senate, and Ward J. Hughes, candidate for secretary of state.

Michael L. Igoe, also a Chicago candidate for governor, and his associates promise to stage two noon hour "shows" at loop theaters during the week. They will be at the Garrick theater tomorrow noon and at the Grand opera house Friday noon. Tonight they speak at the Ryerson school, 646 North Lawndale avenue, at the auditorium of St. Mary of the Angels, 1825 North Wood street, and at St. Hyacinth's auditorium, Lawndale and Wolfrom avenues.

Campbell in Du Page County.

Bruce Campbell of East St. Louis, the third Democratic contender, is to make Chicago his base for the rest of the campaign but he speaks tonight in Du Page county—at the Lombard village hall—and tomorrow night at the La Grange Masonic temple. No dates for his "invasion" of Chicago have been announced.

Campbell issued a long statement yesterday going into Mayor Cermak's statement that he, Campbell, sought an agreement upon himself the day the state central committee indorsed Judge Horner. He said he considered Mayor Cermak a candidate for the governorship at that time and for that reason the conference between himself, Cermak, and Igoe was arranged by another man. He said the meeting had been agreed upon a day earlier, and that he, Campbell, never sought the committee indorsement.

John E. Northup, candidate for attorney general, will open his downstate campaign at Decatur tonight and will spend most of this week and next week outside of Cook county. On Wednesday he will be at Danville at 2:30 and at Robinson at 7:30. Then he plans to go to Harrisburg, Centralia, Edwardsville, and Alton.

Swanson Assails Feinberg.

State's Attorney Swanson issued a statement in which he charged that the plan to elect Julius Rosenwald as a South park commisioner, which was proposed in 1928, was prevented by a bipartisan deal negotiated by Robert E. Crowe who made use, among others, of the vote of Judge Michael Feinberg, a candidate for the prosecutor's office now. He also attacked Judge Feinberg's investigation of closed banks.

"Feinberg is obstructing and delaying the prosecution of cases by illegal and unfair means," said Swanson," while depositors and debtors suffer self-scarifices while waiting for their money. The tactics of this candidate are such that the courts of our entire county will not take or hear a bank case until after primary day, April 12. Attorneys say they cannot get a fair trial because of this candidate's practices.

RUSH TROOPS AS MOB THREATEN 4 HELD FOR KILLING TWO OFFICERS

Lakeland, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—National Guard troops with machine guns were ordered here tonight to guard four prisoners held in the city jail in connection with the killing of two police officers late today.

The troops were requested of Gov. Carlton at Tallahassee by Sheriff James A. Johnson of Bartow when more than 1,500 persons milled about the jail.

The slain officers were T. A. Nicholson and W. T. Barnett. They were killed when they went to answer a call that there were disorders at the home of Sam Acree in North Lakeland.

The four prisoners are Sam Acree and his wife, Joseph E. Johnston and Perry Acree.

Johnston told officers tonight he shot Nicholson as the officer scuffled with Perry Acree and Perry's mother, who was trying to prevent the arrest of her son. Then he dropped the pistol, he said, and did not know who killed Barnett.

TORNADO DIPS INTO ALABAMA AGAIN, KILLS NINE

Rips Through 3 Counties; Fifty Are Injured.

Montgomery, Ala., March 27.—[Special.]—Nine persons were killed and fifty injured today as a second series of tornadoes struck within a week. Last Monday's twisters killed more than 300 persons, injured 2,500, left 8,000 homeless and caused $5,000,000 property damage in five southern states.

The brunt of the storm today was felt in Bibb, Elmore, and Pickens counties, visited by destruction last Monday. Seven persons were reported killed at Lawley in Bible county and two at Pleasant Grove in Pickens county.

Refugees' Tents Blown Down.

The tornado at Pleasant Grove followed the same course taken by the Monday storm. At Union Grove tents in which refugees were quartered were blown down. The tornado struck at 2:15 p. m. and swept a path 150 yards wide.

In Elmore county the tornado struck several fishing camps above the dam and swirled into Jordan lake, where a spray of water spouted into the air and showered over an area of 100 square yards. Fear for the safety of scores of fishermen known to be in the stricken area was expressed.

Heavy Property Damage.

From many other Alabama and Georgia points came reports of a number of injured and heavy damage to property.

H. T. Johnson of Gorgas in northwestern Alabama reported hailstones as large as baseballs fell over an area of three miles in the vicinity of Gorgas.

Issue Storm Warnings.

The United States weather bureau at Chandler field in Atlanta, Ga., said information received from three of the states visited Monday indicated weather conditions in Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee virtually were the same as last Monday. The fourth and fifth states hit by tornadoes Monday were Kentucky and South Carolina.

At Washington, D. C., a storm warning was issued by the weather bureau early today. The warning said, "Northeast storm warnings ordered displayed 12 noon north of Virginia capes to New York, and 6 p. m. north of New York to Boston. Disturbances central over Mississippi valley will move northeastward with increasing intensity."

One Killed in Georgia.

Atlanta, Ga., March 27.—(AP)—Slashing into Georgia at two points, a county apart, tornadoes today left one woman dying at Buchanan, injured six other persons and bowled over 20 houses.

At Corinth, Ga., south of Buchanan, nine persons were injured and seven homes destroyed.

A severe storm was reported to be raging in the vicinity of Cartersville, a focal point for relief operations from last week's tornado.

At East Newnan, 40 miles southwest of Atlanta, two houses were blown away and several persons were injured.

Twenty Hurt in Texas Storm.

Giant oil derricks crashed before the wind. A total of 27 derricks, including a steel tower, were left a twisted mass of ruins.

Seven oil wells began running wild immediately after the derricks had been uprooted. The highway to Arp was blocked several hours as the wells sprayed the fields with hundreds of gallons of oil.

'AUTOGYRO' WITH NO WINGS FLOWN BY DE LA CIERVA

LONDON, March 27.—(AP)—Juan de la Cierva, Spanish inventor of the autogyro, was reported today to have perfected a machine much like the autogyro, except that it is without wings. He is said to have made several flights in it.

The flying machine, which is now at Hamble airdrome, England, is one of the first of the wingless heavier than air type. It is described as capable of bullet-like velocity and can arise and alight in a remarkably short landing space. It descends safely and gently, like a parachute.

Farmer Extinguishes Fire by Pelting It with Eggs

Kirksville, Mo., March 27.—A farmer and his wife were bringing several cases of eggs to market when their car caught fire. Disdaining to scoop up dirt to extinguish the flames, they pegged eggs at the blazing auto until the flames were extinguished.

Pompeii Gives Up Another Story of Its Tragic End

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

POMPEII, Italy, March 27.—The drama of that ancient night of catastrophe in the year 79 A. D., when Vesuvius destroyed this Roman city, was revived today in the mute ruins of the so-called house of Menander in the "street of Abundance." The skeletons of three Pompeiians—two men and one woman—were discovered, together with some gold and silver rings and armlets which they were wearing.

The trio, whom Prof. Amadeo Maiuri, superintendent of antiquities of Pompeii, believes to be proprietors of the so-called Menander house, had apparently remained on the ground floor hoping to be saved from disaster when an unexpected surge of lava compelled them to ascend to the floor above by the servants' stairway. There they had expected to find safety but the roof over this quarter of the house caved in under the weight of cinders which Vesuvius was also emitting, forming a sepulchre from which they now reappear after nearly 1,900 years.

Ring on Woman's Finger.

The three skeletons were found in a group in this room and further search revealed two armlets, three gold rings, and one small silver ring. One gold armlet around the forearm of one skeleton and a small silver ring ending in a serpent's head on one of the fingers leave no doubt in the minds of archeologists that the skeleton was that of a woman.

This is the second group of human remains found in the rich house which antiquarians named after Menander when it was excavated some months ago because of the presence of a fresco of the Greek poet Menander found superbly preserved on a wall. Other paintings and a precious collection of wrought silver indicated that the owners of the house were wealthy patrons of arts and letters.

Discovery of the house is considered the most important in recent years, and systematic excavations have permitted restorations in all its particulars of what must have been one of the most notable houses in Pompeii, and shows how life of the wealthy was lived in the ancient city.

The excavations were first concerned with the part of the house occupied by the masters and then work was continued in the small rustic section of the courtyard surrounding it reserved for slaves and domestics. It was here that the discoveries were made which not only enrich the collection of ornaments, but also introduces a new element in the reconstruction of the tragedy which befell Pompeiians.

Traces were found near the group of skeletons of a passage of other excavators of a century ago when, according to archeologists, unscrupulous diggers used to sink tunnels into the ruins to find gold objects to sell.

Museum Gets Relics.

The portrait of Menander, unearthed recently in the house, is regarded as of exceeding historical and artistic value for classical studies. The flesh tones are done in the usual Pompeiian red against an olive green background. The poet is shown with a scroll in one hand seated in a chair and crowned with an olive wreath in an attitude of reciting his verses.

Professor Maiuri has removed the newly found gold and silver objects and later they will be added to the collection in the Naples museum.

Some days ago the necropolis [cemetery] of the Greek city of Paestum on the coast south of Naples was also discovered, revealing tombs on which the coloring is still fresh though probably dating from the Lucanian period [third century B. C.]. These contained rich ceramics and jewelry.

Plan Model Air Line as Feature.

New designs in aircraft, ranging from a 40 passenger Ford plane to single seater sport planes, will be exhibited for the first time at the National Aircraft show, to be held at Detroit airport for the week starting next Saturday. Many Chicagoans are planning to visit the show, according to Ray Cooper, the manager.

A number of aircraft and accessory manufacturers with headquarters in Chicago, as well as air lines and fuel companies, will have exhibits. New commercial planes will be exhibited and will fly over a 60 mile route touching four airports around Detroit and one in Canada.

This model air line, which will run for the duration of the show, will be managed by Charles S. [Casey] Jones, vice president of the Curtiss-Wright corporation. Most of the larger air lines of the country will loan planes to be operated on the line, which is planned to permit persons who have not made air trips to fly in many types of commercial planes for short distances.

The army air corps and the navy will exhibit the latest types of fighting planes, which include the army's new Berliner-Joyce two place pursuit plane, a gull wing monoplane; the army and navy Boeing pursuit planes, the latest low altitude Curtiss Hawk pursuit plane, and the new gull wing Douglas observation monoplane.

The navy will show the diminutive fighter developed by Curtiss to be carried inside the airship Akron.

During the show three aeronautical organizations will hold meetings, the Society of Automotive Engineers, National Association of State Aviation Officials, and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America. The Bendix trophy will be awarded to Maj. James H. Doolittle, and the Laird "400" racer in which he won the transcontinental dash will be on display. Award of the Wright Brothers' medal for achievement in 1931 will also be made.

DANDRUFF
Ends Overnight!
There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.
You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy never fails.

LAW CATCHES UP TO MILLION DOLLAR FENCE

John Sovetsky Confesses Federal Crime.

John Sovetsky, the so-called "million dollar fence" whom police have tried, unsuccessfully, to send to prison for nearly a decade, yesterday made a confession of receiving stolen goods, which, authorities say, makes him liable to a federal penitentiary term of as much as twenty years.

JOHN SOVETSKY.

Sovetsky was arrested Friday on federal warrants charging him with receiving goods stolen from interstate shipments. Lieut. James Kerr and his partner, Sergt. Harry Guynn, seized $2,000 worth of clothing, stolen by a gang of boxcar thieves, in Sovetsky's store at 6234 South Western avenue.

Knew It Was Stolen.

Confronted with confessions of his partner and other members of the gang, Sovetsky confessed, Lieut. Kerr said, that he had bought the clothing, knowing it was stolen. Federal statutes provide a maximum of ten years' imprisonment each on the charges of receiving and possing goods stolen from interstate shipments.

Lieut. Kerr is assigned to the "Secret Six," investigating merchandise thefts. With Sovetsky he arrested his partner, Sam Ginsberg, 1256 West 63d street, and Albert Kugley, 6450 South Narragansett avenue, and Harry Rognett, 6337 Normal boulevard.

Boarded Moving Train.

Kugley and Rognett, with Harry Thompson and George Welte, now prisoners in the county jail, stole the merchandise, it is charged. Welte and Rognett, Lieut. Kerr said, boarded moving freight trains, broke into boxcars, and dumped the goods out as the train rolled past a country crossing where their confederates were waiting with a truck.

Sovetsky first gained notice in 1925 when he was accused of being the "fence" to whom merchandise stolen from stores in Green Bay, Wis., was sold. Gov. Small refused at that time to honor a request by Wisconsin authorities for extradition papers and Sovetsy never had to stand trial, although other members of the gang were sent to prison.

Convicted Twice.

Sovetsky was convicted twice in Cook county courts of receiving stolen goods, but the convictions were reversed by the Supreme court, the last one in April, 1931. A week ago he shot George McDonald, one of the Green Bay burglary gang, in the hip in his Western avenue store. McDonald, recently released from the Waupun, Wis., prison, asserted that Sovetsky had reneged on a promise to pay for the lawyers who defended him.

BANDIT SHOOTS HIS WAY OUT OF SOUTH BEND JAIL

Grabs Machine Gun and Wounds Guard.

South Bend, Ind., March 27.—[Special.]—Basil Banghart, 36 years old, a bandit and reputed member of the Detroit "Purple" gang, used the sheriff's submachine gun and a handful of pepper today to escape from the St. Joseph county jail. In escaping, he shot Stanley Klosinski, turnkey, in the arm.

Because he had escaped from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., in 1927, while serving a term for violation of the Dyer act, Banghart had been placed in solitary confinement by Sheriff Walter I. Fegan.

Throws Pepper in Trusty's Eyes.

Today Banghart asked Klosinski to take him to a washroom. Klosinski did so, and then went to call the roll of the prisoners on the second floor of the jail, where Banghart was confined. Banghart left the washroom and walked down the stairs toward the turnkey's office. At the door he met a trusty, Edward Wroblewski.

He threw pepper in Wroblewski's eyes, grabbed him by the throat, and forced him through the turnkey's office to an adjoining bedroom, where he shut the door. In the bedroom was a cabinet in which the jail arsenal was kept.

Shoots Guard in Arm.

Banghart kicked in the door of the cabinet and grabbed a submachine gun. Klosinski, notified by another trusty, hurried to the room and opened the door. Banghart, who was evidently unfamiliar with the machine gun, fired one shot at him which struck him in the arm.

At the prisoner's command Klosinski dropped his keys on the floor. Banghart unlocked the door of the jail office and walked to the street, where he threw away the machine gun. He walked a block to the Oliver hotel, where he entered a taxicab and rode to Mishawaka, three miles from South Bend.

Trace of him was lost there but it is believed he is the same man who stole an automobile an hour later in Elkhart, Ind., presumably with the intention of driving to Detroit.

Banghart was captured a few weeks ago in a Detroit apartment, where police confiscated a number of shotguns and revolvers. He was to have gone on trial tomorrow on a charge of automobile banditry for a holdup committed in 1928, an offense which carries a penalty of 25 years imprisonment.

SMITH SUPPORT ON "FRIENDSHIP" PLEA ATTACKED

Boston, Mass., March 27.—(AP)—Mayor James M. Curley, Massachusetts spokesman for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in his bid for delegates to the Democratic national convention, today said appeals for support of Alfred E. Smith as a presidential nominee because of "friendship and affection" were "unthinkable."

Curley directed the force of an address at the Smith group in Massachusetts, led by Gov. Joseph B. Ely, which will contest with a Roosevelt slate in the primary, April 26. He ridiculed Ely's "new found" devotion for Smith, saying that in 1928, although elected as a delegate to the Houston convention, Ely did not "prove by his presence and his vote the loyalty and devotion that he now shouts from the house tops for Alfred E. Smith."

Curley, who was a Smith supporter in 1928, reiterated his contention that Smith was not a candidate and said "the need of America in the present hour is courageous, intelligent leadership of Gov. Roosevelt."

Firemen Carry Out Sound Sleeper in Apartment Fire

Firemen yesterday raised a ladder and rescued J. L. Manus from a second story window after fire had destroyed the stairs in a three story apartment building at 6040 South Union avenue. Other occupants of the building made their escape unaided. Manus, a sound sleeper, did not awaken until the fire engines drew up outside the building.

City Elections in Italy Banned by Parliament

ROME, March 27.—(AP)—Parliament has passed a bill abolishing municipal elections and making city offices nominative.

Several speakers in the chamber of deputies questioned the advisability of the bill. Undersecretary of State Arpinatiu, Premier Mussolini's assistant in the ministry of the interior, answered them.

"Municipal elections were necessary in the past, when, because the national government was impotent, they were an efficacious remedy against abuses of public office," he said. "But now with national vigilance, municipal elections have lost every reason for being."

Hangs Coat on Gas Fixture; Asphyxiated as He Sleeps

William Scofield, 61 years old, a money guard for the American Express company, was found last night in his gas filled room at 2025 West Adams street. He had hung a garment on an old fashioned gas lighting fixture, and it is believed that this turned on the gas, causing his death accidentally.

Santiago, Cuba, Is Rocked by Quake; Panic Ensues

SHOT, WALKS TO HOSPITAL; SAYS IT WAS ACCIDENT

Theodore Kokotak, 35 years old, of 1520 West Division street, described by police as an independent bootlegger, was shot in the right side late last night. The shooting was revealed when he walked into St. Mary's hospital for medical aid. He told Chicago avenue police that he had wounded himself when his revolver dropped from his pocket as he was putting his automobile into the garage in the rear of 1238 Milwaukee avenue.

Detectives said they doubted his story. Shortly before they were summoned to the hospital a shooting in front of 1636 West Division street was reported. The two cases might be connected, they said. They declared that Kokotak has been a target for enemy guns once or twice.

HOPES TO CROSS OCEAN IN 3 DAYS; BOAT LIKE WHALE

POTSDAM, Germany, March 27.—(AP)—Nicolas Bellin, 28 year old engineer, has built a boat, resembling a whale with an airplane motor atop the tail, which he says he believes can span the ocean between Liverpool and New York in less than three days.

The craft is equipped with a 276 horsepower motor, which Bellin said would give it a speed of 62 miles an hour.

After testing the boat this spring, he said, he would attempt a trip around the world, traveling east. He estimated that it would take him 150 days.

Suspects Freed in Evanston Seized by Chicago Police

George Chuck, 35 years old, and John Garvilis, 30 years old, both of 555 Barry avenue, were arrested in Evanston on Friday and were identified as robbers who held up the Liggett drug store at 601 Davis street in the suburb last October. Yesterday they furnished bonds of $10,000 each. But as they walked out of the Evanston police station the Rogers Park police arrested them. Employés of two Liggett drug stores in Chicago, at 1601 Howard street and 1201 Wilson avenue, had identified the pair as bandits.

SEIZE SUITCASE IN HOTEL LOBBY; GET BONDS, DOPE

A suitcase containing between $10,000 and $15,000 worth of apparently valid stocks and bonds on several Italian companies and a pipe and a small quantity of opium were seized early this morning with the arrest of Arnold T. Scott, 32 years old, in the lobby of the Knickerbocker hotel, 163 East Walton place.

Scott and another man, whom he named as William Walker, had registered a few minutes before, but had canceled the reservation when they learned that a Mr. McDonald, a former manager of the hotel, was no longer connected with the place. Both then sat in the lobby. The clerk, suspicious, notified police, and Patrolman Robert O'Connell responded.

As the policeman appeared Walker jumped from his chair and ran away, leaving behind his coat and hat. O'Connell seized Scott, and also the grip. At the Chicago avenue station Scott described himself as a miniature golf course contractor of Bethlehem, N. H.

Lawyer Discovers Bonds He Sold Stolen from Bank

St. Louis, Mo., March 27.—(AP)—Howard Sidener, former circuit attorney here, said today he sold a brokerage firm in Decatur, Ill., bonds with a face value of $18,000 which later were discovered to have been stolen in a robbery of the Farmers' and Merchants' bank of Hannibal, Mo., last October, but that he had no knowledge of the source of the bonds. Sidener said he sold the bonds on behalf of an unidentified client only after he had submitted them to a brokerage firm in St. Louis and also one in Chicago for examination.

U. S. TROOPS GET SET AS POLITICS BOIL IN PANAMA

Canal Zone Police Stand By; Vote Nears.

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA HEIGHTS, C. Z., March 27.—Canal Zone police have been standing by each night during the last few days, ready in case of political trouble across the border in the city of Panama. At Quarry Heights everything is ready should it become necessary for American troops to quell such an outbreak of shooting as marked the revolution of Jan. 2, 1931, when President Harmodio Arosemena and his cabinet were ousted and Acion Communal, an organization of young Panamanians, took control of the nation.

On that occasion, although Gen. Preston Brown, commanding the American forces, and Chief Guy Johannes of the Canal Zone police, remained at the American legation during the fighting, with a detachment of military police on guard, the troops were not brought in.

U. S. to Stop Revolt.

It is stated, however, that a repetition of the revolution will not be tolerated. In accordance with the treaty with Panama, the United States, it is said, will act to prevent any fighting which may endanger the lives of Americans and foreigners or hinder the operation of the canal or railroad.

On Sunday, June 5, Panama's president will be elected by popular vote. Originally there were three candidates in the field, Dr. Augusto S. Boyd, nominee of the National Liberal party, the group headed by Rodolfo Chiari, who were put out of office during the last revolution: Harmodio Arias, former minister to Washington, who temporarily held office after the revolution, the choice of the Doctrinary Liberal party, and Francisco Arias Parades, nominee of the Renovation Liberal party.

The latter two men supported the revolution, but have since split, and, with the withdrawal of Dr. Boyd, the Chiaristas and the Panchistas, the latter followers of Francisco Arias Parades, have joined forces against Harmodio Arias.

Alfaro Hits Chiaristas.

This action brought a strong message from President Ricardo J. Alfaro, denouncing all who supported Chiari and insisting that the ideals of the revolution would be defeated and the old practices continued should he again gain control.

There were rumors that the younger element, now solid for Harmodio Arias, are going to kidnap Chiari and hold him in seclusion until after the election. It was freely stated, too, that Chiari is marshaling his forces and plans a coup to take over the government by force.

The success of the last revolution was its secrecy. It found the government unprepared and resting assured that the United States forces across the frontier would not stand for any such action.

Ready for Attack.

Today things are different. The administration is ready for any attack on the national police headquarters or the palace, and furthermore it is whispered that the United States wishes Panama to conduct its election in June in an orderly manner.

It is probable that one of the two parties may ask for American control of the election. This is often the request of the party with the least chance of winning, and it immediately becomes unpopular in the eyes of the Panamanians, who believe that they can look after their own political affairs.

Suit Attacks Election of Valparaiso Alderman

Valparaiso, Ind., March 27.—[Special.]—Quo warranto proceedings to oust Bernard L. Carpenter, city councilman, from office, were filed here today by Howard D. Clark, prosecuting attorney. It is claimed the city council failed to authorize Clerk Flora Kenny to call an election on March 1 when Carpenter was elected. He succeeded Myers Zimmerman, Valparaiso university professor, who resigned. The council will meet next week to fil a vacancy caused by the resignation of Harold Cleveland.

Barricaded in Home from Officers, Kills Himself

Omaha, Neb., March 27.—Barricading himself from officers in his home, Cloyd Fergason, 38, late today shot and killed himself after fatally wounding his wife, Frances, 37. Police said they believed Fergason become temporarily insane.

TWO LAUNDRIES AND SCHOOL BUILDING ARE SENT SMOKE NOTICES

Two laundries and a school building were mentioned yesterday by Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, among fourteen contributors to Chicago's smoke pall. Notices have been sent to those named to have a representative appear today at a hearing in Mr. Chambers' office. Those to whom notices were sent are:

Austin Wet Wash laundry, 828 North Crawford avenue.
C. W. Hoff & Co., agent, 1500 East 55th street.
Omaha Packing company, 2320 South Halsted street.
Reliance Picture Frame company, 1035 South Leavitt street.
Board of Education, William E. Gladstone school, 1221 South Damen avenue.
Wabash-Harrison garage, 608 South Wabash avenue.
C. Luzietti, 453 North May street.
W. H. Bolton, agent, 1351 Addison street.
Clarence Lind, 1440 North Keeler avenue.
Railway Express agency, 700 West Kinzie street.
John Salzak, 6649 South Mozart street.

"The waste in fuel due to improper combustion, a condition that produces smoke," said Mr. Chambers, "has been estimated at from 20 to 40 per cent. When we consider that there are approximately 34,000,000 tons of coal burned annually in Chicago the waste in fuel represented by smoking chimneys can be partially visualized."

VEGETABLES PUT END TO SPANISH SOCIALISTS' MEET

SEVILLE, Spain, March 27.—(AP)—Syndicalists broke up a Socialist meeting here today by pelting with tomatoes and other vegetables Miss Margarita Nelken and Bruno Alonso, members of the national assembly, who were the principal speakers.

Two Socialists were wounded and 20 syndicalists arrested in a fight outside the theater where the meeting was held. The theater was wrecked.

Take Alfonso's Name Off Street.

BILBAO, Spain, March 27.—(AP)—Basque racial day was celebrated here today by 28,000 Basques, who came from various parts of the province to join in ceremonies which included the changing of the name of Alfonso XIII. street to Savino de Arana, commemorating a Basque nationalist of that name.

Niles, Mich., March 27.—[Special.]—Frank Dillow, 23, Buchanan, Mich., was killed here this evening when the car in which he was driving collided with an automobile driven by Clipton Clements of Niles.

JAMES M. OGDEN ENTERS INDIANA GOVERNOR RACE

Indianapolis, Ind., March 27.—[Special.]—The race for the Republican nomination for governor was further complicated here tonight by formal announcement of the candidacy of James M. Ogden, Indianapolis attorney and at present attorney general in the Republican administration of Gov. Harry E. Leslie. Ogden's announcement came only a few hours after that of Fred Landis of Logansport, brother of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball czar. Bert Thurman resigned recently as Indiana's Republican national committeeman to enter the race and others expected to announce within the next few days are Edgar Bush of Salem, farm bureau leader and as lieutenant governor of Indiana, presiding officer over the 1931 Indiana senate. The Lawrence Orr, for the last eight years head of the state board of accounts, and Arthur Sapp, South Bend, former international president of Rotary.

ALDERMEN BEGIN WORK TOMORROW ON 1932 BUDGET

Ald. John S. Clark [30th] yesterday called a meeting for tomorrow of the city council finance committee, of which he is chairman, to start on the preliminary work in connection with preparation of the city's 1932 budget.

"The first task is to arrive at an estimate of revenues," said Ald. Clark. "At the meeting the committee's staff will present a scientific analysis of its estimate of what the loss and cost in the collection of 1932 taxes will be and what amount of personal property will be put on the tax books for that year."

After the committee has discussed the revenues the alderman said they intend to call in Fred W. Sargent, head of the citizens' committee on public expenditures; D. F. Kelly, head of the citizens' tax warrants sales committee, and George O. Fairweather, chairman of the joint tax commission.

LIFEBOAT CREW TAKES VESSEL SAFELY TO PORT

Atlantic City, N. J., March 27.—(AP)—Caught in a northeast storm off Atlantic City tonight, the auxiliary two masted schooner Emma and Ruth of Philadelphia sent up distress flares for a pilot to guide her to a safe anchorage.

A coast guard lifeboat crew answered the signals and brought the ship through the channel into the safety of the inlet.

Easter promenaders, seeing the flares several miles off the steel pier, became excited when a report spread that a ship was burning at sea.

The Emma and Ruth, captained by Norman Jefferies of Philadelphia, carries a crew of four. She was en route from Bridgeport, Conn., to Port Norris, N. J.

MARY WOOLEY INSISTS DISARM PARLEY WILL PROVE SUCCESSFUL

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 27.—Dr. Mary E. Wooley, president of Mount Holyoke college and a member of the United States delegation to the Geneva disarmament conference, placed herself in the front rank of optimists concerning the success of that conference in a speech delivered in the American church in Paris this evening.

"These opening weeks have been only preliminary to the real work of the conference," Dr. Wooley said, "but they have been far from discouraging. There has been more encouragement than the many friends of the reduction and limitation of armaments dared hope."

As ground for optimism she cited what she described as the "general spirit of the conference." There will be difficulties, she admitted, but the representatives of every nation have publicly gone on record as favoring limitation and reduction. Touching on the league of nations' action regarding the Sino-Japanese dispute she said:

"I cannot understand how it is possible for any one who has attended the meetings of the league's assembly to be unimpressed by them and their significance. Their culmination came in the adoption of a resolution based on the principle of scrupulous respect for treaties. It is not an overstatement to say that the possibility of world peace hinges upon the important question of whether law is to prevail over force."

Mattoon Bank Expected to Be Reopened Today

WOMEN MAY WED AND RETAIN JOBS, GERMANY RULES

Result of Case Reassures Unmarried Group.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 27.—Employed women cannot be deprived of their jobs just because they get married. Such was the precedent making decision of the Berlin Labor court in a recent case, and of more than a little interest to hundreds of thousands of German women, unmarried but still employed.

Fräulein Nixmann had been working for the Laborers, Office Workers, and Officials bank for more than five years. She was married last year, and thereupon was given notice, the grounds being solely that as the wife of a man who had a job, there was no more room for her—because the economic depression obliged trimming off all "double earners."

Husband's Job Uncertain.

She carried the case to the bank employés division of the Labor court, stating there that though her husband was still employed, he had been given notice for the coming spring, and, further, that she was obliged to take care of her parents, both unemployed, and a younger brother.

The court decided for her, ordering the bank to restore her former job, or to pay her $300 damages. In important comments on its decision, the court stated that there was no doubt that the plaintiff had lost her job simply because she belonged to a particular sex—the feminine. In other words, a man in parallel circumstances, would never have been fired.

Penalty for Marriage?

Further, it was solemnly pointed out that the bank's action was yet more indefensible since it was to the advantage and benefit of the state that its women be encouraged to become wives and mothers instead of being penalized therefor. The requisite protection of the institution of marriage could not be maintained were such disadvantages attached to it, the court said.

THROAT CUT AS AN AUTO STRIKES HIM; VICTIM DIES

Tony Griggs, 28 years old, of 4104 South Maplewood avenue, a laborer, was killed last night in an unusual automobile accident in South Ashland avenue at Pershing road.

He stepped off a safety island at that intersection and in front of a south bound car driven by John Deikus, 23, of 2958 Lowe avenue. To avoid hitting Griggs, Deikus applied his brakes. His automobile swerved and the side of the car struck him, Griggs' head breaking a side window of the car. His throat was cut and he bled to death before medical help could be given. Deikus was held.

Sigurd Sorenson, 64 years old, 1621 North Maplewood avenue, died yesterday at his home of a fractured skull received March 5 when he was struck at North and Maplewood avenues by an automobile. The car was driven by Joseph Gottke, 28 years old, 1817 Humboldt boulevard.

The two deaths raised the Cook county motor death toll for 1932 to 256.

ROBBERS CHOKE THEIR VICTIM.

John Moran, 59 years old, 2815 Prairie avenue, was choked and beaten by three Negro strong arm robbers yesterday near his home. They took $5 from him. He went home, collapsed, and died of heart disease.

Shot to Death

Martin D. Castrodes, 30 years old, a Filipino, shot Mrs. Evelyn Charrow, 25 years old, 853 North Clark street, to death yesterday in his room at 543 North Dearborn street, and then committed suicide.

The woman's husband, John Charrow, was exercising a neighbor's dog and in passing the building where Castrodes lived was attracted by the crowd. He entered and identified the body of his wife. She had left their home Saturday night, he told police.

A note in the room, presumably written by Castrodes, stated: "I am tired of being in poor health."

FLAGMAN, 80, HIT BY AUTO; MAY DIE.

Duquoin, Ill., March 27.—[Special]—Andrew Jackson, 80, veteran railway crossing flagman, was probably fatally injured last night when struck by an auto driven by John Midyett. Jackson was on duty at the time of the accident.

POLICE WONDER IF THEY'RE BEING KIDDED OR WHAT

When Capt. Michael Gracy of the Chicago avenue police station led a raid on the Erie-Clark dance hall at 645 North Clark street early yesterday, he discovered fifty-six girls dancing in scanty attire. Also there were 311 men patrons dancing or looking on.

One of the spectators, a tall, gray-haired man of benign aspect, stepped forward as the policemen entered.

"I am glad you have come," he said. "This is shocking. I am the Rev. Harry Maas of the Universal church, 34 North May street. It will be a pleasure for me to appear in court and aid in prosecuting the management for such an exhibition as I have witnessed."

Capt. Grady released the man of ministerial mien, assuring him he would be glad of his aid in the hearing. But investigation at a mission house near Madison and May streets, the only churchlike organization in that immediate vicinity, disclosed yesterday that no Rev. Mr. Maas was known there. The police were wondering whether the benign gentleman would be in court this morning to help prosecute Edward Block, booked as keeper of the dance hall, and the fifty-six girls.

"RESIST OR DIE!" AUSTRALIA LABOR GROUP IS TOLD

SYDNEY, New South Wales, March 28.—[Monday.]—(AP)—The New South Wales labor conference today named socialization of industry and agriculture as one of the main issues in the next state election.

Premier John T. Lang in an address accused Prime Minister Joseph Lyons of Australia of trying to reduce the standard of living.

"The Labor party must resist to the uttermost or itself be wiped out," he said.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A BALANCED BUDGET OR—

The house of representatives has rejected the sales tax as a means of balancing the budget. The search for a substitute which will raise the $600,000,000 which is needed to balance the budget is going to be a difficult one. In a year of falling prices and vanished profits it is not easy to find anything to tax. That was, perhaps, the principal recommendation for the sales tax. It was a means of wringing money from the people at a time when business cannot wring profits out of its activities. The sales tax was, in a sense, the exact reverse of the income tax; it was a tax on losses.

The defeat of the sales tax is disturbing not only because it is going to be difficult to find a substitute; it is disturbing, more especially, because of a tendency expressed by some of the congressmen who voted against the measure to accept a colossal deficit as unavoidable if not actually desirable. Any such attitude toward the government's fiscal problem is more than reckless; it is vicious and ruinous. The consequences of another failure to meet expenditures with revenue may well be far more destructive than anything this country has yet experienced in the depression. A failure to balance the budget can easily result in the destruction not merely of some values but of all values.

The government must meet the gap between income and outgo by borrowing or by printing money. Some congressmen seem to have the notion that there is no limit to the amount which the United States treasury can borrow. That is nonsense. There is a limit and we are dangerously close to it at this moment. We are close to it in spite of the fact that recent changes in the federal reserve act have placed an extraordinary premium on government securities as bank investments. The effect of the Glass-Steagall law is seen today in the strength of United States government securities, but no banking system, however cunningly it is rigged to support a particular kind of security, can lend unlimited quantities of money without a crash. And, needless to say, excessive credits to the government can be provided only by starving private enterprise.

The basic fact in the situation is this: the United States treasury's credit is no better and can be no better than the collective credit of the individuals and corporations in the United States. The wealth of the United States, as a result of the depression, is estimated to be somewhere between a half and two-thirds of what it was a few years ago. The income of the people of the United States has decreased at least in proportion. It follows that the outstanding loans of the United States bear at least as heavily upon our present wealth and income as the maximum debt of ten or a dozen years ago bore to the wealth and income of the country as they then existed. We have reduced the long-term debt by $7,000,000,000 or more, but we have added several billions of short-term debt and must add several billions more in view of the certain deficits of the current year. When the national debt stood at $25,000,000,000 it was regarded as menacing; the present debt, in view of our present difficulties, is far more menacing.

No one supposed a few years ago that the greatest cities in the United States, including New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Detroit, could find themselves virtually unable to borrow, yet that is the situation which pertains today. The United States treasury is going to be in the same fix within a few months if the budget is not balanced and the treasury will be there for precisely the same reason. Any government which borrows in excess of the certain ability of its citizens to repay must suffer the consequences of its recklessness. The present difficulties of congress in devising taxes which will yield substantial revenues are an unmistakable evidence of the present ability of citizens to repay what they have borrowed collectively. It is for congress to take warning before it is too late.

If the United States securities begin to drop in price, as they must if the borrowing is continued much longer, the whole basis of our credit structure will tend to collapse. Even our strongest banks will be unable to stand the strain. The flight from the pound will be reënacted as a flight from the dollar. Foreigners will withdraw their credits; hoarding will be resumed. The miseries of the last few years of depression will appear enviable in comparison. That is the fate which the congressmen who oppose balancing the budget are preparing for the people of this country. In their blindness they do not realize that no one, congressman, millionaire or street sweeper, can escape the common ruin.

SECRET RELEASE OF OFFENDERS.

Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court has issued instructions to its judges to stop releasing prisoners from the House of Correction and the county jail before their terms have been served or their fines and costs paid. He has also taken some measures to see that his orders are effectuated and has called the attention of the bar association, the crime commission, the state's attorney and prosecutors to conditions and his effort to correct them. He will undoubtedly have their support and that of the press and public.

The evil he proposes to correct is not only vicious in itself but illustrates the workings of that working alliance between crime and corrupt politics which this community must destroy if it is to have the protection it sorely needs from the powers that prey upon its safety and its good repute. The distribution of secret favors to law breakers is a principal support of the alliance, and Chief Justice Sonsteby and Acting Superintendent Graham of the Bridewell, who brought the practice of release without hearing to his attention, have done a valuable public service.

THE REACTIONARY MR. SOONG.

T. V. Soong, the Chinese finance minister, in an article in an official paper, publishes his conclusions from observation of recent events. The well being of a nation rests only upon the strength of its armed forces. China will be safe when its forces are equipped and organized and thus able to defend its integrity. Mr. Soong may be reactionary, unenlightened, bitter, and out of tune with the modern age. The aspirations of mankind may be against him and all the reasonable prospects of the world may chide his testiness, but he may console himself with the reflection that nine times out of ten it is better to be wrong with Japanese regiments than right with the Kellogg pact.

THE HAPPY ENDING.

Two well known persons of the screen are to seek a divorce to preserve the idyllic character of their married life. They fear, they say, that the artistic sacrifice which their domestic happiness seems to make unavoidable for one or the other will force an unfortunate situation sooner or later, leaving them with the regret that they had not parted when they could do so with the greatest affection for each other. The wife says that the husband has been the victim, he having unselfishly subordinated himself to the perfecting of her career, seeking his world more and more in his home and in his child.

Mr. Will Hays has not worked in vain with the ethic of the screen and no one can say that he began with the odds in his favor and the breaks with him. When Mr. Hays approached the scene of his subsequently fruitful labors it was one of mirth, but not of decorum. Its bohemianism was illustrated by the actress whose chauffeur drove her up to a house within which a murdered director lay undiscovered on the floor, she with a sack of peanuts, a copy of the Police Gazette, a volume of Freud and a Russian staghound. Such were the incidents of life when Hollywood was younger and un-Haysed.

Mr. Hays has brought sweetness and light to flood the scene and now popular devotion will seldom get a shock from any revelation regarding private lives. When this devoted couple seal their love with the highest sacrifice of renunciation it will be regretted, but it may be unescapable that the divorce procedure will require another picture of their domesticity. Divorce demands a showing of some sort of moral turpitude. It contemplates a heinous offense or an unforgivable series of such offenses. Two people willing to part on good terms with each other have no standing in court. The husband, however unwillingly, must produce a record of brutality or unfaithfulness. He must throw a vase at his wife or provide her with some incriminating letters. In this case the devoted man may be obliged to show that he called his wife a punk on the screen.

FOR PASSMORE.

John H. Passmore merits the Republican nomination as county recorder. In the years in which Chicago politicians were doing all in their power to earn for the city the reputation which it has for corruption Mr. Passmore was one of a handful of public officials against whom no suspicion of dishonesty has been raised.

Mr. Passmore was one of the younger men who broke into politics in 1912 as a progressive. He fought the Thompson machine as attorney for the city treasurer and continued to make a record for himself as alderman of the old Third ward. Still later he was elected clerk of the Criminal court, a position which he filled with credit to himself. Throughout his career he has served the public faithfully and honestly. Such men as Passmore are all too rare in politics. The community needs many more of them. The best way to encourage men of character to enter political life is to return to office those, like Mr. Passmore, who have proved themselves worthy of trust.

THE ALL-AMERICAN.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

The Walter Camp idea has been carried over into the game of bridge. Camp's mythical "All-American" football elevens and the elevens of later supercritics who have flourished since Camp's death have been interesting postludes of many football seasons. Now Shepard Barclay, a bridge writer of some note, has published in the Saturday Evening Post an "All-American" big ten of contract bridge, and promises to make this selection an annual event.

Barclay endeavors to rate his players according to actual achievement during 1931, and not according to popular estimate of their ability. Chosen on the latter basis, the ten would be headed by Philip Hal Sims by a practically unanimous vote. Barclay ranks Sims second, though he admits that all but four of the experts whom he consulted preferred Sims ahead of all others. One of Sims' teammates won one more championship than Sims, and so achieves the number one position on Barclay's roll.

Ely Culbertson, best known of American bridgers, is ranked tenth and last of the select group. His opponent in the "battle of the century," Sidney S. Lenz, is not ranked at all, but finds a place of honorable mention among fourteen "also rans." Which is the more strange to the layman in view of the fact that Lenz's two partners, Oswald Jacoby and Commander Winfield Liggett Jr., are placed, respectively, fourth and ninth on the golden list of fame.

All ten of Barclay's favorites are New Yorkers, or near New Yorkers, and Barclay himself is a New Yorker. Unquestionably New York ranks first of American cities in the contract world of today, just as Cleveland ranked first in the auction world a few years ago, but it is still permissible to feel that an "All-American" Big Ten selected by a New Yorker and composed entirely of New Yorkers is not quite as "All-American" as it might be.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AND NOT LONG AGO the Jefferson lads were bragging that they could elect a yellow dog next fall. And now, since they've had control of the house and kicked the sales tax bill out of the capitol and chased it into the Potomac—look at 'em. Right now they couldn't elect George Washington himself if he came back alive and was willing to run on their ticket. All you seem to have to do with the Democratic party is to give the darned thing plenty of rope. Then you go around next day and cut the body down. They'll say they couldn't have killed the sales tax bill without plenty of Republican help. Naturally, any time the Democrats want to commit suicide the Republicans will give 'em all the help they ask.

Anyhow, the sales tax looked like the best way to raise money to help the government out of the awful hole it's in. If you went down to the store and bought something you were helping the government out, for some of your money went in on the sales tax. If you decided you could do without buying the thing, whatever it was, then you didn't pay any sales tax. Which sounds fair enough. Father would have to pay a sales tax on his cigars, but suppose pa decided he would give up cigars and smoke a pipe. Then he didn't have to pay a sales tax on cigars. Mother could give up that swell bleaching cream for her complexion (it probably never did her any good anyhow), and Laura could stop buying the funny stuff to make her finger nails pink. But if ma and Laura decided that such a sacrifice was too terrible then they would help pay the sales tax. And serve 'em right.

Brother Bill could give up silk shirts and wear plain cotton ones. The difference in the sales tax on the two would probably be considerable. Of course, the sales tax wouldn't hit the cocktail makers and the hootch drinkers, gin and hootch paying no taxes of any kind whatsoever to the government. But, anyhow, those things require cocktail shakers and glasses, and there'd be some sales tax coming out of the traffic in those things. And they usually put lemons and oranges in cocktails—the government could pull out a little dough on the sale of those things. But what's the use! The sales tax is dead. Now what?

THE THISTLES GROW.

The thistles grow. Exhausted in the evening
Through thorn choked fields, we grope and stumble on,
Or striving gauntly, reach a pallid skyline

The thistles grow. And never in their growing
We see the gladdening surge of promised grain;
No heartening plowing, no sweet flavored harvest,
No granaries, and emptiness for gain.

The thistles grow. In rankness—in self sowing
They bond the years, through wasted night and morn.
Neglected pastures give us fullest measure

ROBERTA ROBERTSON.

"HOOVER APPROVES Big Vote Plan for November Election."—Headline. Oh, there certainly should be an immense vote next fall. Voting will be about the only thing left we won't have to pay a tax on.

IN AN ACCIDENT in Michigan boulevard Saturday the car in which one of the occupants was killed was declared by the police afterwards to have had the right of way. Why is it that the car that has the right of way always gets the worst of it? Maybe it's for the same reason that the innocent bystander is always the one that is shot in the riot and the good swimmer gets drowned. After this we're going to drive as though we didn't have the right of way over everything. Which includes earthworms, June bugs, and caterpillars.

CONGRESS is going to stay in session all summer, say the reports from Washington. And we've always looked forward to summer as being the time for peace and happiness. Couldn't we get out an injunction or something?

ARCHAEOLOGISTS announce their plans to fly in autogiro planes and to explore the Mayan ruins in Yucatan. If we had an autogiro we wouldn't give a whoop for the Mayan ruins; we'd fly down and land at Washington and gaze on the ruins of the revenue bills. It must be a hellofa mess!

THE CHINESE-JAPANESE peace parley is said to be near a breakdown. Must be the Japs didn't grab quite all the territory they wanted.

GAY LAND-BLIND.

Those who live on the hill
Shall never see
The wind turn yellow
The purple sea.
Those who live on the hill
Shall never find
The storm unrest
Of the gay land-blind.
Of the gay land-blind
With salt in their hair
And skin made crisp
By winds that wear.
Those who live on the hill
Some day shall sleep
In narrow graves,
Just six feet deep.
But the gay land-blind
Shall rock to rest
In the cool-blue cradle

THE EFFECT OF DRAFTS.

FOR a long time the draft cranks had hard sledding. They could not prove their points, and they were ridiculed, called neurotics, and pronounced a nuisance generally. In recent years more delicate instruments for measuring surface temperatures have been made available. Many experimenters have used these refined instruments on various parts of the human body. All the reports agree that the draft cranks were right in their essential points. With this proof to back them up they are now in the saddle, and they can chase their erstwhile ridiculers all over the lot. Maybe they are forgiving cusses and will turn the other cheek.

A recent contribution, supporting others which have gone before on all major points, comes from Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of Yale and his associates. These observers worked with about eighty students. They found that the temperature of different parts of the body varied greatly. In the most extreme case the skin of the feet was twelve degrees Fahrenheit colder than the skin elsewhere.

Changing the temperature of the atmosphere ten degrees caused a variation of about five degrees in the temperature of the skin in certain areas. Within limits, there was a change of one degree in skin temperature for each two degrees of change in the temperature of the air. They found abundant evidence that cold hands and cold feet were actualities and not figments of the imagination.

The areas tested were the skin of the trunk, thighs, feet, hands, face, and the mucous membranes of the nose and mouth. Of these, the mucous membrane of the mouth was the most nearly stable. There was all kinds of evidence that exposing the skin of the face, and even that of the feet and hands, would alter the temperature of the mucous membrane lining the nose.

After exposure of the hands to cold, and the preliminary drop in the temperature of the skin thereof, there was likely to be a rather prompt and adequate reaction. This warming up, following chilling, was slower in coming and less complete in the skin of the feet. In other words, cold feet tend to stay cold longer and require more warming than is the case with hands.

Exposure of one part of the body to heat or to cold is liable to change the temperature of distant parts. Many of these changes register in the nose. But in this experience exposure to cold did not induce attacks of coryza. The subjects of this experiment were entitled to catch a fresh cold every day—to have at least one fresh attack of coryza in every twenty-four hours—if we are right in thinking that getting wet or being chilled causes this disorder. On the other hand, in this prolonged experiment on many men, only one contracted coryza.

ECZEMA ON A BABY.

Mrs. V. P. writes: Is there any cure for eczema on a three months old baby? I had to stop nursing him through poor health. First I put him on cow's milk, and then condensed milk. Which is better? Does the eczema last for seven years, as some people have told me?

REPLY.

Most cases of cradle cap and other oozing eruptions in babies are curable, though in many cases the disease is less troublesome than the cure.

A child with this disorder is sensitized to something. In nearly every case milk is the cause. In some cases the offending element in the milk can be discovered. For instance, when butter is the cause, the baby gets well when fed skimmed milk. In more cases milk sugar is at fault. If a case is serious enough to warrant it the simplest cure is to feed the baby on an artificial food, one of those that contain no milk from cow, goat, or human being. Some milder cases are cured by proper use of ointments, even though the diet is not changed.

NEURITIS.

Mrs. H. L. writes:

1. What is neuritis? Is it curable?
2. What is enlargement of the bronchial tubes? How does it work? Is it curable?
3. What is bronchitis?

REPLY.

1. Neuritis is inflammation of a nerve. Some cases are caused by infection, some by pressure, some by blows and hurts. Most cases are cured, though some methods of cure fail.

2. I judge you refer to what is called bronchiectasis. People who suffer from chronic bronchitis, chronic consumption, and chronic asthma develop this. It is being treated by operation, and by pouring medicated oils into the tubes.

3. Bronchitis is an inflammation of the tubes that run throughout the lungs. It it apt to become chronic, and to lead to bronchial asthma and bronchiectasis. Old cases are not easily cured. Many cases do well in warm climates.

NO RE-ENTRY PERMITTED.

Chicago, March 20.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please tell me if an alien who has been deported from the United States can ever return to the United States, and if not, why are they not allowed to come back? H. L.

You are informed that any alien deported from the United States under deportation proceedings is mandatorily excluded from the United States. In other words, they are barred from ever entering for any purpose whatsoever. As to why they are not allowed to come back, you are informed that this is an act of congress forbidding their return after once being deported. R. P. CLARK,
Acting District Director of Immigration.

DEPENDS ON LAST ENTRY.

Chicago, March 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I came to this country in 1907, was married and had children. Then I went to Europe for a visit, and while there congress passed a law forbidding entry to this country without quota. I went to Mexico and from there to the United States, where I was held by United States officers. They jailed me for five days and took away my first papers and sent me back to Mexico. I again tried and gained entrance to the United States and have since been living with my family in Chicago. Please advise me how I can become an American citizen. Am I facing deportation if I am seized? J. K.

You do not state the date of your last entry. In general the deportation would depend upon your last entry. On the bare facts stated we would not consider it wise for you to apply for naturalization.

PROPERTY OF MUNICIPALITY.

Chicago, March 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a school district treasurer be made to pay interest on school funds in a school district in Illinois where the treasurer is appointed by school trustees, as is done in all townships? I am not sure about Cook county townships. I am told the status of school district treasurers is the same as that of a former governor who had to refund about one million dollars to the state as state treasurer. Please advise. B. C.

If the funds have earned money in his hands such earnings should be credited to the municipality, if that is what you mean to ask.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

SHANGHAI, Nov. 9.—The Chinese army of the north has retreated to the mountains where the soldiers are reported to be starving and suffering severely from cold and exposure. The Japanese army is reported to be encamped at Fang Wang Cheng. The Japanese are pursuing some 15,000 Chinese, mostly raw recruits. Port Arthur is not expected to make a determined stand against the Japanese. Admiral Sir E. R. Fremont, in command of the British fleet, considers Port Arthur will probably be the scene of the last engagement of any importance between the Chinese and Japanese.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A Shanghai dispatch says: "The panic in Newchwang and throughout Manchuria continues. Chang Chi Tung arrived at Nanking last evening with the remains of the viceroy of Liang Chiang. A war levy of $3 a head has been imposed in Hang Kow. People will probably resist it."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 12.—Administration officials are anxiously awaiting Japan's reply to the proposition of mediation offered by the United States upon the earnest solicitation of China. Now that the President has gone into the matter, officials of the state department are anxious for a successful culmination but they are not oversanguine as to the result.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

TIENTSIN.—At noon today the Russians proclaimed Newchwang under martial law. An attack from the Japanese army is expected hourly.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The Japanese fleet attacked Port Arthur for the eighth time and during the engagement sank four merchant steamers near the narrow entrance to the harbor. In the fighting seven Russian sailors were killed and thirteen were wounded, all on board the torpedo boat Stilni. It was so badly damaged by Japanese shells that it had to be beached, but was refloated later. Russians believe two Japanese destroyers were sunk. Vice Admiral Makaroff took the entire Russian squadron outside the harbor, proposing to bring on a general engagement with the Japanese fleet, but the enemy warships withdrew, declining to give battle.

LONDON.—A dispatch to the Telegraph from St. Petersburg says there are about 60,000 Japanese troops at Pingyang and 15,000 at Anju and north of that place to Pakchon. From Gen. Mishtchenko's report it may be gathered that the Japanese army now advancing against southern Manchuria comprises 55,000 infantry, 4,500 cavalry, 3,600 artillery with 180 guns, 3,000 military engineers, and 3,000 transport troops. Gen. Kuropatkin arrived at Mukden and proceeded to the headquarters of Viceroy Alexieff.

CHICAGO.—All advertising records in Chicago were broken by THE TRIBUNE yesterday [Sunday] when it printed 330.13 columns, or over twice as much as the Record-Herald and five times as much as the Chronicle.

PARIS.—The most famous diamond necklace in the world, valued at $400,000 and owned by Princess Alice de Bourbon, has been stolen. It was once the property of Marie Antoinette. She had left the necklace with a jeweler and later a person calling himself her confidential messenger presented credentials and received it.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 28, 1916.

CASAS GRANDES, Mexico.—Aviators report that the advance columns of the American punitive force are only a half day's march behind Villa. Motor cars and pack trains are rushing large quantities of supplies to the new army base 250 miles south of the border.

QUERETARO.—The minister of war, Gen. Obregon, received advices from Gen. Gavira describing another severe blow inflicted on the Villa bandits in the neighborhood of Namiquipa. Gen. Gavira optimistically declared in his dispatches that Villa was being so closely harassed as to make his capture a question of only a short time.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson has decided to take drastic action if he finds that German submarines unjustifiably attacked the British steamers Sussex and Englishman, injuring Americans on the one and killing four Americans on the other vessel. This statement was made by one of the closest advisers of the President and, presumably, with the knowledge and sanction of Mr. Wilson.

COPENHAGEN.—A huge German submarine of an entirely new type, bigger and speedier than any previously seen, and carrying a crew of eighty, has appeared off Utsire on the southwest coast of Norway, according to the Politiken's Christiania correspondent. It torpedoed the Norwegian bark Lindfield on March 17 and transferred the crew of thirty to the Norwegian bark Silas, after keeping them on the U-boat for four days.

LONDON.—British troops struck a sudden blow at the German lines near Ypres and made a decisive gain at St. Eloi, to the south of the city. The official report says: "This morning, after exploding mines, infantry of the Northumberland fusileers and royal fusileers assaulted the German salient at St. Eloi, taking first and second line trenches on a front of 600 yards. Heavy casualties are known to have been caused to the enemy. Two officers and 168 men were taken prisoners."

TO CRYSTALLIZE SENTIMENT.

Oshkosh, Wis., March 24.—We have greatly admired the able editorials you have been running of late on the subject of government extravagance, and more recently on the spectacle afforded by the house of representatives in their debate on the pending revenue bill.

Why not go a step further and advocate the candidacy of specific men in public life who have given some evidence of a disposition to save instead of spend the taxpayer's money, as, for instance, Richie, J. H. Lewis, or even Calvin Coolidge? THE TRIBUNE might, perhaps, do something toward crystallizing resentment at the present state of affairs behind definite candidates who might give voters something to vote on next autumn. JOHN A. BARTLETT JR.

THE DUTY TO PAY TAXES.

Chicago, March 22.—I was calling on some friends of mine last evening. They live in a modest five room bungalow on the northwest side of the city. The main topic of conversation was their 1930 tax bill, which showed an increase of $42.00 over the previous year. Quite naturally they resented the increase and were unsettled in their minds as to whether they should pay this bill now or await further developments in the tax situation. They informed me they had been advised by some real estate dealers in the vicinity not to pay their taxes at this time. I was rather surprised at this.

I told them I would pay now what I consider a fair amount of the tax levied. [They consider what they paid in 1929 would be enough.] I told them I couldn't understand how one can expect the city government to function, furnish fire and police protection, pay their employés [including the sadly distressed school teachers] and not pay one cent for years toward the cost of such service.

Regardless of whether Democrats or Republicans head the city government every fair minded American citizen should pay his just share toward the upkeep of that government.

PROBLEMS FOR AN AMATEUR SLEUTH.

Evanston, Ill., March 22.—When H. Wallace Caldwell as amateur sleuth succeeds in returning the Lindbergh baby to his parents, and when he recovers from his ragged nerves as a result of the horror of the kidnaping, and when he gets over the publicity resulting from his share as detective in the case, it might be well then, and only then, that he employ the same expert sleuthing in solving the mystery of how to obtain salaries for the teachers of Chicago. And I mean teachers. The administrative officers can do their own sleuthing. We also would like to have him solve the mystery of how he can meet an expenditure of $90,000,000 with $55,000,000.

AN OBSERVER.

FOND OF RADISHES.

Joliet, Ill., March 21.—During the last days of February the W. G. N. published the news of a man who is a weather prophet. He was correct in other years and offered to bet anybody that spring was here. I am not a betting man, but I took the tip and planted some radishes in my garden on the 29th of February. Will you please give me his name and address? I have a broomstick with the broom end sawed off. I would like to meet him.

GEORGE R. HILL.

THE COST OF UNPAID TAXES.

Chicago, March 21.—We in Chicago are getting a double dose of hard times; first by the national economic crisis and again by the effects of the taxpayers' strike. While we may be unable to solve our national problem we certainly hold the remedy for our local depression. This remedy is the immediate payment in full of real estate and personal property taxes up to and including 1930 by those who are able to pay them. It is true that the taxpayer's pocket has been drained by grafting politicians, pay rollers, and bond issues, but we have shown our city and county officials that these conditions will no longer be tolerated. The tax strike had its results in the formation of a new taxing body who promise a fair and equal tax from 1931 on; also our local government is carrying on a program of rigid economy. It's up to us now as loyal citizens to get our city out of the mire and not accept our chaotic condition as a weak excuse for not paying our taxes. The nonpayment of teachers, policemen, and firemen's wages means millions of dollars of tied up buying power which our local industries must have for our mutual benefit. I sincerely believe that there would be fewer unemployed and conditions generally would be a whole lot better if the taxpayers would pay up, thereby furnishing the necessary funds for the payment of salaries to our city employés. My taxes have doubled in the last 3 years. I have no political affiliations. A TAXPAYER.

SOUNDING LIKE A PARADOX.

Rhinelander, Wis., March 22.—Sackcloth indeed! Did you consult your colleague, whom Mr. J. Van criticizes in so pedantic a manner, before vicariously adorning him with that habiliment of humility? Probably not. If you had consulted the gentleman, who, for all his anonymity, is rapidly putting himself in a class with Greeley and Watterson as a writer of lucid, forceful English, he might have referred you to Funk & Wagnalls' Standard Dictionary. There, illustrating the correct use of the word "paradox," is found this sentence from the work of Brook Foss Westcott, "Though it sound like a paradox, it is no less true—etc." Like a paradox, i. e., paradoxical. Tautologically speaking, just what is the difference between "seem paradoxical" and "sound like a paradox"? There isn't any difference. You're welcome, but tell J. Van to leave that fellow alone.

M. R. JEFFERIES.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES' INCOME TAXES.

Brookfield, Ill., March 23.—In a letter to the "Friend of the People" appearing in today's issue of THE TRIBUNE, W. A. M. asserts that federal employés, along with other public servants, are exempt from the federal income tax, intimates that this exemption constitutes class legislation and is therefore unconstitutional, and remarks that such employés almost invariably receive a higher compensation than they could command in private life.

Any one with so pitifully small a knowledge of public affairs is hardly qualified to evaluate the services of government employés, much less to pass upon the validity of taxes. Federal employés are not exempt from the federal income tax, though, it might be added, precious few of them receive an income sufficiently large to subject it to such taxation.

CHINESE TROOPS CLAIM TSITSIHAR HAS BEEN TAKEN

Fall of Manchuria City Is Reported.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, March 28 (Monday.)—(AP)—The foreign office received information today from an undisclosed source that soviet military authorities were digging trenches on the Siberian border in the neighborhood of Pogranichnaya. The informant said the Russian military were recruiting Chinese and Corean laborers at Vladivostok for the work on the soviet Russian border opposite Kirin province, Manchuria.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 28.—[Monday.]—The official Chinese News service, Kou Min, last night published a report from Harbin, Manchuria, claiming that 7,000 troops opposing the new Manchurian state, Manchoukou, have captured Tsitsihar, the capital of Heilungkiang province, but the report is unconfirmed. Nothing was said of the fate of Gen. Ma Chan-shan, recently named by the Japanese to govern Heilungkiang, but later reported to be held a prisoner by Gen. Jiro Tamon of the Japanese army.

The dispatch said that Gen. Tamon's army is exhausted trying to suppress rebellions which are spreading over north Manchuria, and that Gen. Tamon has telegraphed to Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria at Mukden, demanding reinforcements.

Entertains Foreign Consuls.

A Japanese Rengo news agency dispatch from Mukden said that Gen. Honjo entertained the American, British, and other foreign consuls at a dinner recently and tried to reach an understanding regarding the procedure in connection with the reception of the league of nations commission of inquiry which is expected soon. The Japanese military is apparently puzzled about who should welcome the commission in view of the recent organization of a new state.

The China Press, a Chinese owned newspaper published in the English language, carried a strong editorial this morning protesting against secrecy in the Shanghai peace discussions. The conferences are being conducted behind locked doors within the British consulate and are attended, besides Chinese and Japanese delegates, by Nelson T. Johnson, American minister; Sir Miles W. Lampson, British minister; Henri A. Wilden, French minister, and Count Galaeazzo Ciano, Italian consul general.

Attention was called to the fact that the conference is supposedly dealing with matters of world importance, but at the conclusion of each daily session a brief communique of usually not more than a dozen words is issued stating that "the conference is proceeding satisfactorily" or "little progress was made" with only the slightest reference to matters of vital concern to the Chinese people as well as the world.

"World Not Satisfied."

After quoting recent communiques the paper said that it does not wish to question the good faith of the delegates or the neutral observers, but "we are disclosing no secret when we say that the interested public both in China and abroad is not satisfied with official communiques which say nothing about the fundamental issues involved.

"Up to the actual cessation of hostilities nothing was a secret about happenings in Shanghai, but as soon as the delegates and observers were closeted in the local British consulate complete secrecy prevailed. As a result the wildest rumors are in circulate, causing apprehension and suspicion both in China and the outside world which is obviously detrimental to the prestige of all parties concerned."

Although Shanghai is crowded with newspaper correspondents representing the press all over the world, none is able to obtain authoritative first hand information regarding the actual discussions. The delegates, as well as the neutral observers, apparently have entered an agreement to maintain the strictest secrecy. As soon as the sessions adjourn the neutral observers hurry to their respective consulates and send long coded messages home to their governments, but nothing is disclosed here regarding the developments.

Chinese Attack City.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

DAIREN, Manchuria, March 27.—Reports received by the Japanese here today said Chinese insurgent forces have again attacked Hailin, a city on the Chinese Eastern Railway about 150 miles east of Harbin, and to which Japanese forces were sent recently. The inhabitants are unable to escape from the raiders and great slaughter is feared.

In the Tunhua region east of Kirin the Japanese are said to have come into conflict with a force of 30,000 insurgents. It is announced that this body has been scattered, but that heavy casualties were suffered on both sides. The insurgents are said to be raiding towns and villages.

Greets League Envoys.

NANKING, China, March 27.—(AP)—A large portion of the population of China's capital turned out today in holiday fashion to welcome the league of nations' commission sent to inquire into the troublesome dispute between China and Japan.

For the first time since the Japanese attacked the Chapei native section of Shanghai two months ago, Nanking this Easter breathed a sigh of relief with the commission's arrival.

Preparations to strengthen the capital's defenses, which had been going on for two months, slackened.

Thousands of coolies who had been working on sandbag barricades, along with flag waving civilians, lined five miles of streets to greet the first of the delegation—Lord Lytton of Britain and Count Luigi Aldrovandi Marescotti of Italy—who arrived this morning from Shanghai by steamer.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, the American commissioner; Gen. Claudel, the French, and Heinrich Schnee, the German member, arrived in the afternoon by automobile from Hangchow.

Predicts U. S.-Japanese War.

MOSCOW, March 27.—(AP)—A prediction that war between the United States and Japan would grow out of the Manchurian conflict between China and Japan was made in the Red Star, soviet military publication, today.

Rivalry between American and Japan for domination of the Pacific would cause the war, the newspaper said. It explained that America would not let Japan obtain control of such an important Asiatic territory as China without a fight.

The Red army organ mentioned the American fleet maneuvers in the Pacific. It said there was increasing agitation in the United States for strengthening American naval bases on the Pacific and that there were anti-American military aviation demonstrations in Japan.

"Japanese-American contradictions now are confined to a diplomatic state," the newspaper added, "but everything confirms the belief that an armed attack between Japan and America can not be avoided."

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

SLAYS WOMAN, THEN KILLS HIMSELF ON MARYLAND GOLF LINKS

Frederick, Md., March 27.—(AP)—A murder and suicide was revealed here today after the bodies of a man and woman were found on the Catoctin Country club golf course near here today.

The two were identified as Mrs. Anna Batt, about 35, of Hagerstown, Md., and William R. Doughty, 35, of Williamsport, Md., who held a revolver in his hand.

In the pocket of Doughty was a postcard on the back of which was written a request that the two be buried in the Hagerstown cemetery "side by side."

Doughty's revolver had four discharged shells in it. Mrs. Batt had been shot three times in the body and the man once in the head.

The coroner gave a verdict of murder and suicide.

Although authorities said they did not believe he was implicated in the shooting, Dewey Batt, husband of the woman, was taken into custody by police for questioning.

Japan's Threat to Resign Fails to Disturb League

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, March 28 (Monday.)—(AP)—It was learned on good authority today that Japan has decided to refuse to give the league of nations a statement of her case in the Sino-Japanese dispute—a decision which eventually may lead to Japanese withdrawal from the league. This was said to be the first step in a series of Japanese refusals to participate in the league's effort to apply article XV. to the Manchurian incident.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, March 27.—The reports from Tokio that the Japanese government is planning to withdraw from the league of nations if it deals with Manchuria under article 15 of the covenant leave league officials unperturbed. They doubt the reports, even if officially inspired, will be confirmed by action for the same three reasons that made the same officials take lightly previous Tokio threats of withdrawal.

First and foremost, Tokio is aware that it would lose its mandate to Germany's Pacific islands if it quit the league. These islands lie between Hawaii and the Philippines. Though they cannot legally be fortified or used for submarine operations, it is known that Japan's mandate over them is a big factor in all considerations of naval strategy in the Pacific.

Must Give Two Years' Notice.

Secondly, Tokio also knows that, thanks to an inconspicuous clause in the covenant, any league member who quits the league must give two years' notice to fellow members and remain bound by all her covenant obligations during that period. By serving such notice now Japan would thus not change her legal position in time to help her in Manchuria and would merely hurt herself morally and politically by quitting under fire.

Thirdly, Tokio is aware that even after the two year period had elapsed Japan could gain little by being a nonmember, since the covenant provides that nonmembers involved in a dispute with a league member must be invited to assume the obligation of league membership for purposes of settling the dispute, and if the nonmember refuses and makes war on the league member, sanctions may be invoked.

The last time the Japanese hinted to Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general, that they might quit the league he replied that, much as the league should hate to lose Japan, the league members would rather have Japan leave the league than violate the covenant.

Strong Reaction Is Seen.

Nothing more on the subject has been heard here officially since then, and the Japanese delegation says tonight it knows nothing of any move to leave the league.

The Tokio reports are deemed here to mean the assembly's resolution of March 11 is beginning to have a strong reaction in Japan. Acting under that resolution, the nineteen power commission—created under article 15, the application of which to Manchuria Japan has always objected — summoned Japan and China to report to it as soon as possible why they had not yet executed their promises for evacuation of Manchuria.

In other words, the league is already dealing with Manchuria under article 15 and Tokio is now in the position of having to decide what she is going to do about it—and decide before the commission meets again in mid-April.

FRENCH BECOME SUSPICIOUS OF DANUBE PARLEY

Tardieu May Not Go to London After All.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 27.—Whether or not Premier Andre Tardieu will go to London this coming week has not yet been settled. It would be too much to say that there has been a hitch, but perhaps there has been a misunderstanding and there certainly has been misrepresentation in certain press agency reports of the desires and intentions of the British cabinet. For Tardieu, personally, the result of all this has not been agreeable.

Early last week it was announced that Prime Minister MacDonald was anxious for a conversation. In his speech in the senate Friday the French foreign minister declared his satisfaction that the days of conversations were begun again. Then, instead of a personal invitation to him to come to London there was issued from Downing street a general invitation to France, Germany, and Italy to come to London to discuss the Danubian situation, which Premier Tardieu has been handling apparently alone for some weeks.

French Opinion Shocked.

At the Quai d'Orsay this evening it is stated that conversations regarding the possibility of a private visit and of a four power conference are being continued, but the tone of today's British press has, it is admitted, greatly surprised and somewhat shocked opinion here. With the exception that the British cabinet seems anxious itself for direct discussion on the Danubian situation nothing is very clear.

This desire is perhaps natural enough, for, despite Tardieu's effort to present the French plan as being above suspicion of political motive, the replies of both Germany and Italy showed that suspicion existed and prompt counter moves resulted.

If the whole proposal is to be saved, it appears to be the British opinion that there must be first of all a clear and confident understanding between the big continental powers that the Danubian situation is not to be exploited for national ends but that a joint effort must be made to relieve the desperate plight of the five countries involved.

French Fear Connivance.

That does not necessarily imply that the British view in any way differs from that of Tardieu. Indeed the contrary must be supposed. But the French press inclines to think that it does indicate either willing connivance on the part of England with Germany's ambition in the Danube valley or else foolish blindness.

Into the invitation to all the four foreign ministers is interpreted disinclination on the part of Prime Minister MacDonald for any tete a tete conversation with Tardieu, and that interpretation, coupled with the satisfaction of the German press at the way the situation has evolved, has done just the contrary to increasing confidence and cordialty here.

RIGHT OF SOVIET PEASANTS TO OWN LIVE STOCK UPHELD

MOSCOW, March 27.—(AP)—Realization here that the soviet state still is some distance from real communism was indicated today in a decree of the communist party's central executive committee that hereafter live stock privately owned by individual members of collective farms will be protected.

The decree condemned some cases of compulsory conversion of such property into common ownership. It promised to prosecute those responsible, but went a step further and promised government assistance to those members of collective farms who are unable to acquire their own live stock.

There are three forms of rural property ownership under the present socialistic scheme, namely:

The agricultural association, permitting peasants working collectively to retain their own homes and other property.

The commune, where everything is common property.

In line with Joseph Stalin's policy that the nation is not yet ripe for real communism, which means that everything is common property, the organization of communes has not been pushed and artels have been encouraged as the best form of the present stage of development.

Nursery Janitor Beaten and His Home Shot Up

Joseph Spelock, 41 years old, janitor at the Christopher house, a day nursery at 2507 Greenview avenue, was beaten until he was unconscious last night by several men who broke into his basement apartment. The men also fired several pistol bullets into the walls of his home. Spelock was taken to the Alexion Brothers hospital. He was unable to tell police the motive of his assailants, whom he said he did not recognize.

WOMEN TO ASK 2 CONVENTIONS TO OUTLAW WAR

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—A concerted attack on the two national conventions in Chicago in June is being planned by a number of prominent women, who will urge both political parties to adopt definite programs to outlaw war.

Behind the movement are Miss Katharine Anthony of New York, Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri, and others who propose to have at least one automobile of women from every state in the union converge on Chicago. On the second day of each convention a street parade of these is projected, augmented by automobiles containing representatives from various colleges and others who would have the two political parties adopt planks in their platforms declaring against war as a means of settling differences between nations.

Those directing the movement will not offer any plank at either convention, but will direct their efforts by interviews with convention delegates from their respective states to have a declaration against war adopted. They also plan to continue the campaign actively among all candidates during the approaching national campaign.

SCHOEMAKER AND STORMS WRITING POLICE MANUAL

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker and his deputy chief, Walter Storms, expect to step forth soon in the rôle of authors. Their projected book, now half finished, is to be called "A Policeman's Search Warrant Manual." It is to consist of a codification and explanation of the laws governing search warrants, for the guidance of police officers.

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Faire Chapelle is the stepdaughter of "Ma" Chapelle, who owns Flaxen's Casino, a café of ill repute near the waterfront of Port Bai. Faire and Aya, "Ma's" daughter by her first husband of dubious color, assist in Flaxen's. The Chapelles are looked upon as outcasts by respectable island residents. Faire feels their attitude keenly, because her father was of unimpeachable antecedents. He had brought her as a little girl into these unsavory surroundings and left her there at his death. She has kept aloof from all that Flaxen's represents.

Sir Philip Persian is governor and commander in chief of the Tama islands, Bai and St. Rosario. His young secretary and ward, Robert Grand, is involved in an affair with Mira Worcester, a faded beauty. Her husband has become suspicious. Sir Philip is anxious to save the boy from scandal. Malise Bookes, the governor's aide de camp, forces Faire, through threats, to accept Mira's guilt. Sir Philip is furious when he learns what Bookes has done, and sends for Faire to try to make amends. He arranges passage for her to London, where her sister Sheba, now Lady Rosewood, a widow, owns a famous beauty salon. Sheba takes Faire into the business. Malise Bookes, who was a former suitor of Sheba's, is sent home to London. Mira Worcester, who has returned to London, spreads malicious gossip about Faire, which Faire will not deny because of her affection for Sir Philip and her promise to him of secrecy. An estrangement develops between the sisters. Among Sheba's many clients seeking the fount of youth is Mary Chevronne, recently widowed, with whom Sir Philip had had a youthful affair and feels honor bound to marry after his term expires.

NEARING THE HEART OF THE SECRET.

Strangely happier again was Faire now that the new world, which had so briefly received her with warmth, was a desert. Sheba and her friends had all fled from the August heat of town. Faire began to build for herself the life of her own, the life into which, she promised herself passionately, no one should ever intrude again. She had given her love and joy and gratitude and admiration to Sheba—for three weeks. Then they were thrust back upon her, the love and joy, gratitude and admiration.

"A corner of my own," Faire said to herself firmly during those first hot days of August, "a life of my own which no one shall touch again!" She found a high attic studio in Soho square and bought from the impatiently outgoing tenant, very cheaply, his curtains and bookshelf, table and chairs, threadbare rugs, and divan bed. "Of course, there is no bathroom of your own. You share," said the outgoing tenant, "but it's awfully nice to have a water tap and that housemaid's cupboard just outside on your landing. Really, it's luxury enough."

She tried to see herself, a wild, dreaming girl who must train herself to a life where she would walk alone.

Miss Winifred was back in the salon. Business was slack in August, so Faire could have spare hours in which to clean her studio. She scrubbed and polished, aired and washed the whole place. And then, packing the few clothes that Sheba had given her, and her own old ones, she removed herself from Westminster.

There was a telephone already installed. She had left her number with Mme. Francois, and as she settled in for her first lonely night up in the high studio, with the summer stars looking in, the telephone rang. She picked up the receiver and heard a woman's voice:

"Is that Miss Chapelle?"

"Yes. Who is speaking?"

"Mrs. Chevronne."

"O!" She shivered a little, there in the hot August dusk.

The voice went on:

"I rang up the salon for you this afternoon. They said you had time off to move into a new flat. But I asked for your private telephone number. You don't mind, my dear?"

"Of course I don't mind, Mrs. Chevronne."

"You know what I told you, that I don't come to the salon often. I am attended at home. I want you to give me my treatments. Mme. Francois promises she can send you."

"Of course I will come."

"If Mme. Francois says so."

There was a little break in the voice at the other end of the line: "Please stay to luncheon. The treatment takes two hours."

"You are very, very kind, Mrs. Chevronne." And her heart raced madly. She could not but think with eagerness and yet reluctance: "At last I shall know."

The voice finished: "You are a dear girl. I'll expect you. We shall be alone."

She hung up the receiver, and knew that ever since she had seen Mary Chevronne's portrait in the anteroom to Sheba's bedroom, she had wanted this to happen. She had wanted to talk alone with the woman of the portrait that watched Philip Persian in his study thousands of miles away. She wanted, more, to be silent, to hear this woman talk.

She had been long enough, even in her short novitiate, in Sheba's beauty salons to know how women talked, how fully, recklessly, dangerously they gave the most precious secrets of their lives away to the impersonal white clad girls who were "trained to forget." But Mary Chevronne was different, was she not? She had never heard a word dropped by the girl Winifred during these weeks about this client, nor had there been any hint in the salons save Mme. Francois': "They say . . . she has a lover coming home from years abroad. . . ." They said. Other gossiping clients said. Rumor said. . . . But Faire thought to herself, strung to anticipation in the attic studio under the summer stars: Not Mary Chevronne! That tired steadfast face with its ageing lines too strong for beauty, whose dark eyes with their fires dampened down, that sad knowledgable mouth—these had kept their secrets from uncaring cynical ears.

Next morning Mme. Francois telephoned her to go straight to Mrs. Chevronne's house. She had dreamed vividly all the night. She was back in the swift dropping darkness of tropic evening, all the little red shaded lamps on the tables at Flaxen's like big glow worms, fireflies dancing in the garden between the house and the café, still sea and still sky, thick and languid air. . . . She was running through a little wood as dawn broke, towards a headland of rocky coral on which tall cabbage palms stood, while a motor boat raced towards this headland over the bay. In her dreams she could not reach the point; Persian, standing up white and tall in the boat, shot past her. She awoke crying; yet as if after all she were in the boat—as she had been—drenched with sea water, his hands ministering to her, and his glacial eyes on hers. All night she dreamed of Philip Persian because of the woman who had summoned her to her house.

And then, making her coffee on the gas ring, taking in her hot rolls from the door outside where the baker had left them, she tried to bring herself to the level of every day, to see herself as she was, a wild, dreaming girl who had escaped passionately from a family that did not love her to another part of the family that did not want her, a girl who must curb and train herself to a life where she would walk alone.

And she set out for Mary Chevronne's house, in one of the rich, quiet streets behind Park lane. Directly she stepped into the hall of the house, where roses were massed lavishly in big bowls, she felt that again, as at Sheba's, she was where ease and elegance were natural as were the palm trees along the sand coast of Bai.

She met herself in a long mirror as she walked through the hall, slim and straight as a spear, radiant with a radiance that would not be dimmed, because she was nearing the heart of the secret of Philip Persian. She was afraid of the secret—half knowing it yet repudiating what she half knew—but she wanted it to have, to hold, to look at, judge, perhaps fight? And as she followed the butler she remembered how, her first evening in Sheba's house, she had looked in her glass and determined madly to become very beautiful. Well, daily she had become more beautiful. The unawareness had left her face. She had learned a thousand things in this short while that she had been in London.

Mary Chevronne's maid met her; put her into a dressing room; "Leave your things in here, please." She put on the white linen coat of the beauty salon, took her case in hand, and was shown into the most beautiful bedroom she had ever seen, not excepting Sheba's.

Where Sheba kept about her always a faint but determined austerity, a rigid pallor or somberness of color in her furnishings, even in the silk and lacquer of her bedroom, here was a plan, or evolution, so rich, so warm, so directly expressive of the beauty and passion of life that the beholder looked expectant to see every nuance, every rhythmic and beautiful proclamation, embodied in the woman who owned the room.

But in the midst of it Mary Chevronne sat up in bed, and from the exquisitely wrought nightgown her neck rose, spoiled by age, spoiled by weariness and excess of longing, nourished by beauty doctoring instead of by the happiness for lack of which she withered and suffered.

But she did not know all of this. The mirage in which such women must move half blinded her with a merciful blindness; and if sometimes truth struck through with a ray of cold and candid light, she turned her eyes from the light. It was too cruel, too strong. She had the long fighting, puerile hope of such women to escape the light.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"Everybody's Welcome," the spring gambol that has come to the Apollo theater, is a song and dance version of last year's brisk comedy, "Up Pops the Devil," and also an excellent job of showmaking in all departments. It has a merry and ingenious story to tell; it has six featured players of well established reputations in revelry; it has tunes with the erratic tinkle of the current fashion; it has dancers who shake their anatomies and toss their heads according to contemporary notions of ballet technique. Altogether it is a decidedly satisfying addition to the meager stage catalogue of the newborn spring.

If you are a chronic playgoer you will remember that "Up Pops the Devil" dealt with the studio and literary life of New York in some of its cocktail gulping aspects; and that the young husband stayed at home to write his novel and do the cooking while the young wife earned their daily bread and paid their rent by dancing in shows—hence a quarrel, a stormy parting, a fond reconciliation. The librettists have added a few scenes at "Proxy's" palace of amusement to account for the long legged girls and frantic fauna of the musical comedy world; and thus "Up Pops the Devil," with a cast of seven, expands into "Everybody's Welcome," with a troupe of seven times seven.

Oscar Shaw is the husband of letters who wears the apron of household drudgery and strings the domestic beans, cursing his fate the while as a kept man. Twenty years of service in the better forms of musical comedies have not succeeded in adding a line to his face or an ounce to his waist measure, and he is still the admirable young American, looking equally fit for a frolic or a football game. [There is a tradition that he was a first string half back for Pennsylvania somewhere back of 1910.] Well, Oscar is at his best in "Everybody's Welcome."

A new girl named Harriette Lake appears as the wife who believes in supporting her husband, and she is a winning piece of prettiness, with a pleasant touch in romantic frolic. After these plot-makers come Frances Williams, whose name leads the cast because she is an entertainer of abundant personality and reputation; and Jack Sheehan, who has put intelligent gayety into recent operettas. These two appear as the rough-and-ready comics, brimming over with bad liquor and good clean fun. They add many a hearty laugh to the program, and Miss Williams, in addition, chants the strange, mad folk songs of the American cafés with buoyance and blunt charm.

Then, up out of stage history, emerge Ann Pennington and Victor Morley—Ann, the darling of ancient "Follies" and extinct "Scandals," who first taught the nation that the female knee is something more than a joint, and Victor, who was the Oscar Shaw, English style, in the period when Roosevelt was President. They are still going strong.

Miss Pennington plays the little southern girl of the devil-popping story, and except for the fact that George White forgot to teach her an Alabama dialect, she is all to the good. At any rate, when she puts her famous little knees to work, you will forgive her acting in admiration of her stepping and wriggling. It is still a bright and shining Penny—a provocative dancing doll.

The musical numbers run along pleasantly and amusingly, with several definite hits on the program for the customary "reprises." "Lease in My Heart," "As Time Goes By," and "Even As You and I" are the titles that make the highest bids for popularity. An incident of pantomimic dancing by Thomas Harty, in a rôle labelled "a drunk," is among the novelties of the performance.

Feel Old At 40?

There are few things that sap your energy more, and make you look and feel years older, than functional Kidney inactivity and excess Acidity. These are also often the causes of other troublesome and worrisome complaints such as miserable Backache, Getting Up Nights, Nervousness, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Sore Joints, Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Muddy Complexion, Burning, Smarting, and Bladder Weakness.

To combat these conditions you really need two kinds of different medicine, because you need two results in fighting these troubles. First, you need a medicine to act as a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, to help them in their function of filtering and purifying the blood, thus reducing acidity. Second, you need another medicine to soothe and heal irritation and give nature a chance.

These two special kinds of medicine, known as Cystex, now may be had from your druggist under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. They are in tasteless tablet form, easy to take, and pleasant to young or old, yet work so fast they start circulating thru the system in 11 minutes. Sufferers say they begin to feel marked improvement in 24 hours.

Your own druggist—the man you know is reliable—can tell you that these are established facts, and that Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) is a splendid medicine, containing purest ingredients, which have proved a blessing to many of his customers.

This much is certain: If Cystex makes you feel years younger and stronger by combating these conditions, the small cost of 75c is a trifle, but if not completely satisfied, merely return the empty package and get your money back. Why suffer from delay and neglect? The Guarantee protects you. Get Cystex from your druggist today.

Circus History Full of Facts and Thrillers

Earl May Writes Vivid Story of Shows.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Circus from Rome to Ringling," by Earl Chapin May. [Duffield & Green.] Published today.

MOST of us labor under the delusion that the circus is a peculiarly American product. Like a great many other products, it has reached its height, width, and handsomeness in America, but it had its day long before Mr. Lo, the poor Indian, ever cast an eye on the baleful paleskin. Earl Chapin May was practically born under the big top—spiritually, that is—one gathers from his book. His father was once a circus man, and from his earliest memory the author was fascinated by everything about a circus. He traveled with circuses at various times in his life, and for ten years he has been gathering the material for this brief history of the circus.

EARL MAY.

The first circuses were in Rome, Mr. May points out, and a good many of the allurements of the modern circus were found there by audiences who were gathered by the largesse of some great political figure in providing them with entertainment and himself with popularity. To be sure, we do not have lions eating Christians or each other, but we are no more excited over strange beasts than the Romans were. The great races which form the spectacles of our circuses were vital parts of the Roman entertainments, and they had equestrian and acrobatic feats of great daring and dexterity just like modern circuses. And no circus then was complete without its elephants.

U. S. Follows English Lead.

American circuses followed the lead of famous English ones. George Washington rode horseback with one of the first circus men in America, and even went to his performances.

There was a period and a part of New York state when the circus was the principal local product. Syndicates of the neighbors were formed to promote the traveling shows which made fortunes for many of their members.

Circuses and circus people used to be looked upon as limbs of Satan until some of the best families of the neighborhood went into the business. When it became obvious that the circus' appeal was a vast and powerful one to the young the circus began to be "Sunday school," the author says, and in the modern circus the entertainment is purer and sedater than in almost any other form of public entertainment.

There was a period when thrills were so thrilling that the Roman business of feeding a few Christians to the lions probably took less toll of life. Mr. May describes some of those stunts. As a matter of fact what Mr. May does is to take the clock of the circus apart to find out how it ticks. But such an expert is he that when the parts are all scattered gayly about on the ground the reader knows he could put them together again and have his clock going tick-tock right away.

Facts Heighten Thrill of Circus.

Mr. May's factualness about the circus, far from making it less romantic, heightens the thrill of it. For there are details about its life which are much more interesting than the layman has an idea of—how sweet and friendly and what household pets (as well as household drudges) elephants often are, for instance.

Of course the story of the Ringling brothers is told—the seven Rungelings of Baraboo, Wis., who came to be the monarchs of almost all they surveyed in the circus business.

It has been a secret to this moment, but I once was in a circus. I was a performer—an invisible one, I must admit, but not a silent one. My mother and the manager of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show had been old friends in a little town in Illinois, and when the circus came to Chicago we were invited to see it. The manager had a little girl just about my age and a little boy slightly older and I was turned over to them. I ate in the slumwagon. I saw the very insidest of the ticking clock, and I was finally presented, with my pretty mother, to Mr. Cody himself.

A Wild Ride in Stage Coach.

"Would you like to ride in the Indian massacre?" he asked me. I shook my yellow curls no but said "O, please, yes" with my lips, because I refused to admit before circus children that I was really afraid.

So all three of us were locked inside the stage coach which was set upon by a hostile Indian band in a thrilling spectacle. That stage coach was authentic—and there were no springs to it, nor cushions to the seats, and when the horses started their terrified galloping, heads, arms, legs all were banged from one side of the coach to another. There were only tiny windows to see out of. I don't remember what the circus children did, but I do know that I used the windows to holler out of. I never was so black and blue in my life, either physically or mentally. The Indians were real enough to make a baby (I couldn't have been more than 5 or 6) cry passionately for "mama." But that ride was worth the pain. It was Spartan pleasure, but what a thrill!

Movie Actress Prefers Short Locks to Long

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I ran into Claudette Colbert working on the Paramount lot the other day. I was told one time that Claudette had a stronger yen for trouser wearing than for evening dress display, but dismissed the idea when I heard it as one of those whims of the moment's interview.

But there the other day before me stood the screen charmer in breeches, checkered shirt, and shoes that looked as if they'd done their share of tree stump vaulting. Cute outfit—on Miss Colbert. Part of her rôle, though. Not the fulfillment of that earlier expressed wish.

She is one of the rare girls who can wear an outfit like the woodman's kid brother's and not look as if it should be given back to the boy—perhaps, because Miss Colbert hasn't any of those anatomical projections that suggest men's wear should be confined to men's wear.

Miss Colbert's trouble, she tells me, is trying to raise a pound of flesh—not lose one. Lucky gal, says you and me and that other sister on the tomato juice diet. There's milk in the fountain at which the vital young brunette star drinks. Quarts of it. Gallons of it in the course of a month. The girl swears by the milk bottle that she gets away daily with two quarts. And that is why she is carrying more weight now than she did a couple of months ago.

Fan mail persuasion is partly responsible for Miss Colbert's return to the short hair ranks. They wrote begging her to shed the knob and be her lovable, windblown self again. Then, too, the screen star has ideas of her own about short and long hair. Long hair on blonds is fine. On brunettes with necks not long drawn out short hair is better, she thinks. In pictures, at least, that dark knob shortens the neck.

And she's right in believing it does the same off the screen. Miss Colbert's hair is that very dark brown that you wonder isn't called black for convenience sake. Her eyes are large and brown and "dangerous." If they're not committing destruction all about it's not because they weren't created for mischief.

Better keep your toes pointed straight ahead if you happen to approach Miss Colbert. She has right, sane and proper ideas about how feet should be placed for smart and tidy walking.

John McCormack Pays Song Tribute to Chauncey Olcott

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Tribute in song was paid tonight to the memory of Chauncey Olcott, "a dear friend," by John McCormack as he sang his 168th New York concert to an enthusiastic audience in Carnegie hall.

The famous tenor sang "Trou'rt Passing Hence, My Brother," by Arthur Sullivan, to honor the late actor, who was one of his closest friends during the last twenty years. He paid the tribute at his recital because he will be unable to attend the Olcott funeral.

He also selected from the Olcott repertoire a number of his encores—"Mother Machree," "My Wild Irish Rose" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." They were among the most loudly applauded.

Style Shopper Finds Season Is Tricky One

Clothes Emphasis Now on Shoulders.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

FASHION shopping or style snooping this spring is anything but simple. There are enough fashionable clews as to what the well dressed woman will wear to keep a super-sleuth dizzy and busy.

Fashionable clothes have been designed in a most mysterious manner . . . what with coats that look like dresses and dresses that go about as coats . . . woolen materials that fool the wisest silk shopper, silk and satins doubling for wools . . . and hats that do finished disappearing acts, hats that are so small that first, on the left side you see them, then on the right side you don't . . . it's a grand, glorious and successful mixup, if you like masquerades and mysteries.

There's no such thing as serious shopping for new clothes . . . the newest models are tricky and frivolous . . . it may take you longer to assemble a spring wardrobe, but you'll enjoy yourself more than you ever have before.

The new fabrics will amuse you with their quaint and rustic roughness, with their simple stripes and floral designs . . . the showings of new meshed fabrics will occupy much of every one's open mind. Buy them now, mesh frocks, mesh hose, mesh gloves and even mesh hats, for they are, and will be as smart as they are new and openly distinctive.

Place Stress on Shoulders.

Inconstant and inconsistent fashion importance is now stressed and dressed on the shoulder of all new clothes . . . of course the small waistline is still very important, in fact it is most necessary, so as to achieve a correct spring silhouette.

For only a small, snug little waistline can properly contrast the wide fashion wise shoulder effects. All the attention, all the flattery, all the fashion cleverness are used and given to shoulders and sleeves.

These new sleeves are disturbingly voluminous . . . they will remind you of the fashion tales your grandmother can tell . . . how the sleeves of long ago required as much and more material than we used [last year] for our entire dress.

Evidently history repeats itself. We can do a little bragging ourselves, for these sleeves certainly do use plenty of material. And another thing you have plenty of room to laugh up your sleeve about is the little old fashioned elastic that holds all the gathers either at the wrist or elbow . . . it may be old fashioned in sound, but a lot of smart new fashion wrinkles depend on it for lasting and holding ability.

Huge Sleeves Mark Models.

Huge sleeves and wider and wider shoulders create a top-lofty altitude for both coats and suits . . . but it is much more effective and practical and wearable in the new dresses.

Soft silken sleeves, even though they are puffed with fashion importance, somehow remain soft in silhouette and very feminine and picturesque.

Two models from a smart Chicago shop are colorful examples of this fact . . . one is of a printed material, black with small flower motifs of red, yellow and green. The dress is a clinging, tightly fitting sheath . . . the neckline is high and round with two crossing straps that button, but the sleeves are huge, ending at the elbow and puffed deeply with an invisible elastic.

The other model is a two piece costume with a simple but very smart frock of black crêpe . . . the sleeves in this dress are tight and long. The brief bolero jacket is of a black and white printed material with long sleeves that are tight to the elbow and then are very large and muff-looking affairs until they, too, are cuffed at the wrist with the inevitable elastic to hold them.

President Joins in Memorial Tribute to Julius Rosenwald

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—A memorial tribute, participated in by President Hoover, to the late Julius Rosenwald of Chicago featured the annual meeting of the national council of the American Jewish joint distribution committee here today. The meeting especially considered the plight of Jews in Europe which was characterized as desperate, their fate depending on continued financial aid from Jews in the United States.

Leaders in Jewish communal and philanthropic activity in all parts of the United States, representing reform, orthodox, and conservative groups, paid their respects to the memory of the Chicago philanthropist.

"I recall how, guided by his keen intellect and great heart, he directed his wealth into those channels which inspiration and study convinced him were for the best service of his fellow men. I further recall that where there were no channels he surveyed and dug them, recognizing no barriers of creed or race."

Boy Regrets His Behavior, but Girl Is Adamant

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The boy friend took the young lady to a club party one evening recently. He got to "feeling pretty good" before the evening was over and, in an exuberant moment, put his arms around a pretty little thing present, drew her to him and put on before the girl he escorted to the party a pretty embarrassing scene. His girl was furious and stalked off home alone.

When the boy found she'd disappeared he made frantic efforts to get in telephone touch with her. She ignored the phone bell's ringing. Early next morning, the boy again was on the line, pleading for forgiveness, telling the girl that she had neglected him so at the party that it made him mad and he was just going to show her how it felt.

These two plan to marry soon. Rather, they had planned to marry, but the girl now is so sore and humiliated over the incident that she feels like breaking things off. She claims she did not neglect him at the party. She only didn't like being with him when he was drinking so.

Just another little picture to add to the gallery of incidents growing out of our great indoor sport of prohibition jockeying! It's too bad the youngsters have to bear any part of the penalty. Penalty it will be if this young pair decide to break up their romance.

However, we'd urge the girl to try to get a broader viewpoint on the incident. Whether she was a party or not to the indifferent behavior of which she is accused does not matter. That may have been the only alibi the boy could find to pounce on. And men must have their alibis. But if liquor is served at these affairs and boys are pressed to imbibe, the consequences must be blamed on the drink. And in this instance the boy's penitence should be accepted for what it is.

It is just as well in accepting the boy's humble apology to remind him that as a drink spectacle he is nothing to fire a young lady's ardor. It might be just as well to remind him, too, for his own future's sake to leave the stuff alone. But there the incident should rest, without further accusation of disloyalty, unless, of course, the incident is repeated.

Woman, 104, Among Those Attending Easter Services

Mrs. Matilda Steiger, 104 North Chester avenue, Park Ridge, who was 104 years old on Dec. 13, observed Easter yesterday by journeying to St. John's Lutheran church, Argyle and Laramie avenues. She was accompanied by her three daughters. A native of Germany, Mrs. Steiger came to Chicago in 1853.

Paris Insists on Blue Supplanting Black for Evening

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris dressmakers are making war on black for summer evenings. Lots of them come right out in black and white with the announcement that black is only a stepchild in the smart color scheme of the season. Others are more tolerant and allow some ebony frocks in their collections. However, women who want to be in the style band-wagon will replace black with deep blue, which is just as practical and a lot newer and fresher.

The Chanel frock, shown in our sketch, is in the deep, violet-blue above mentioned, and the material is crêpe satin. This frock, like 90 per cent of the French evening dresses this season, is entirely cut on the bias, so that it slinks close to the figure just to the knees, where it breaks out into circular fullness that falls gracefully without flaring.

Arts Club Sets May 1 as Date for Three Plays

All Casts Practically Are Complete.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SUNDAY evening, May 1, has been set as the date for the presentation of three plays by the play committee of the Arts club, so the first rehearsals will begin in earnest this week. The prospective players met last week for tryouts with Mrs. Helen Walton, who is to direct them, and most of the casting has been done.

The program will include a farce by Jean Sartene, a melodrama by Pirandello, and a play by Thornton Wilder which Mrs. Walton describes as a lyric episode. Each play is just one act long, and the committee in charge hopes to make a sort of European soirée of the evening, with the program starting at 9 o'clock and supper afterwards.

Gerald Frank, who has appeared so often in the Playwrights' theater, is to play the lead in the Pirandello play, and will be the only masculine player in the cast which includes Mrs. Henry Field, Mrs. Horace Horton, and Mrs. Proehl H. Jaklon.

Pick Cast for Sartene Farce.

Rôles in the Sartene farce will be filled by Dunlap Clarke in the principal part, Miss Jane Willett, Deering Davis, and Howard Cox, former stage manager of the Playwrights' theater.

Abbott Ross has been cast for the lead in the Pirandello play, and Mrs. Walton is hoping that Harold Simons will take another important part in this cast along with Miss Anita Baker, Clifford Manthorne, and five players who will play the difficult rôles of reporters. The gentlemen of the press will be Tom Fiske, Marshall Kruse, Donald Briggs, Edward Pasmore, and Roger White. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. was to have been in one of the plays, but finds now that she will be out of town on the evening they're to be given.

Rehearsals will be held three times a week in the Playwrights' theater rooms at the Illinois Women's Athletic club. The Andre Ament associates are to assist Mrs. Walton with the stage management and technical direction.

Announce Tea at Arts Club.

Cards from the Arts club announce a tea on next Friday to open three exhibitions by "The Blue Four," Edward Biberman and Roger de la Fresnaye. On Tuesday of next week there will be an illustrated lecture at 11:30 o'clock in the morning by Mme. Galke E. Scheyer on "The Blue Four in the Art of Today and Yesterday."

The Chicago Council of Foreign Relations can bank on a record crowd for its luncheon meeting next Saturday at the Palmer house. The speaker is to be Silas Strawn and the topic "Obstacles to World Trade."

Mr. Strawn has just returned from Paris, where he represented the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at meetings of the Council of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Acting on behalf of the American commission, Mr. Strawn led an active opposition to the French import quota system which, according to the Foreign Relations council, has worked severe injury to American commerce. Mr. and Mrs. Strawn also visited London and Berlin on their recent trip abroad.

Boxholders for Stereopticon Lecture.

Boxholders for Herma Clark's lecture on "The Elegant Eighties" to be given on Sunday afternoon, April 17, include Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, Mrs. Franklin M. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ross, George W. Dixon and Mrs. Moses Wentworth.

Members of the audience who are descendants of Chicago pioneers and those who can remember the eighties will have a lot of fun seeing themselves and their ancestors in the stereopticon review.

A good many family albums have been placed at the disposal of the "Martha" of Miss Clark's stories. Two well known citizens who have been friends since boyhood, as well as roommates at Yale, have contributed snapshots of their "rah-rah" days in New Haven. An Astor street friend of Martha's has furnished a picture of "the empty cab, out of which Sarah Bernhardt stepped," and an early picture of the great actress given by her to a Chicago girl of that day.

Gay Times at Palm Beach.

Our Palm Beach correspondent writes that despite the lateness of the season, our townsfolk among the late vacationers down there are having a gay and lively time. Last Tuesday evening Robert F. Carr, who is having an Easter holiday with his daughter, Florence, and his son, Robert Jr., gave a dinner for a group of Chicagoans including Mrs. William Waller Jr., and her house guests, Mrs. Robert Hyman and Miss Jean Hyman, Miss Jean Stevens, William Waller III., Thatcher Waller, William Madlener, and Robert F. Wheeler.

In another paragraph our informer says Miss Carr looked very smart at tennis on the Poinciana courts last week-end, wearing a white crêpe frock with dime-sized coin dots of navy blue, a plain navy scarf knotted at the waist, with a kerchief to match; a hat of blue ciré straw, short socks and white buck tennis shoes trimmed with blue.

After Mrs. Hyman and her daughter left the Waller villa last week for New York, Edward Stursberg of New York arrived to be the guest of William and Thatcher Waller, and Miss Gertrude Conklin came from New York to visit Miss Lucia Waller.

Mrs. Robert S. Pirie arrived in Palm Beach last week to visit her sister-in-law, Mrs. John T. Pirie, at the Franklin P. Smiths' residence, and the two young Mrs. Piries are seen daily at the Bath and Tennis club. The Smiths and the Piries also spend much time on their private

"Alias the Doctor," like hell, is paved with good intentions. It is not, however—pardon, please!—a hell of a picture. Neither is it the reverse. It's just a movie chock full of everything you, or anybody else, could think of that could possibly happen in the life of a noble, gifted and supremely self-sacrificing young man of medicine who fails to get his diploma because he has taken upon himself a yoke of wrongdoing not his own. A foster brother's.

Brother Stephan has, you see, a few weeks before graduation, performed an illegal operation which has proved fatal to the unhappy girl. Karl, devoted to the foster mother who has reared him and who worships her Stephan, insists upon shouldering the blame. Stephan, to do him credit, raises Cain and protests vigorously to the faculty of the Viennese school—but the grave judges believe Karl's story.

Stephan graduates, goes back home to practice and dies of drink and remorse. After three years in jail Karl returns to the old farm to discover that Mother Brenner and Stephan's sister Lotti, whom he loves, know all. Once more he sets his hand to tilling the soil, an occupation he had always cared more for than the pursuit of medicine.

One night Fate brings an accident case to the door over which still hangs the sign of Dr. Stephan Muller. . . .

Through regard for fans who plead not to be told plots, I will only say that again Karl finds himself in Vienna, and, this time associated with some of the greatest surgeons of the day. . . .

"Alias the Doctor" is fat with melodrama and hokum, but it is a desperately earnest affair and Mr. Barthelmess gives a commendable performance. He has able assistance from Norman Foster and Marion Marsh. Lucille La Verne as Mother Brenner is very fine in some scenes. In others she over-acted, I thought. The rest of the cast perform intelligently. Direction could have been better. Photography is excellent and the foreign background is consistently atmospheric and believable.

The hospital episode at the last is gripping, if theatrical. Certainly it is well staged. If you want to know what an operating room looks like while an operation is in progress, here's your chance to find out. Masked surgeons, scrub nurses, anaesthetists perform expertly their duties to a silent figure on the table while, from the gallery, eager initiates watch the course of the operation and mutter technically.

Outside prowls (and this is really too much!) the autopsy surgeon, who has reason to believe—UGH!

The finale is bucolic and pretty.

(Conrad Nagel, in person, is on the Chicago stage this week—a fact which should bring joy to the hearts of Nagel admirers, of whom there are many.)

About Hollywood

Conrad Nagel is on the Chicago's stage this week, introducing Hollywod methods, manners, and studio argot via a skit with screen illustrations. Mr. Nagel is presented to his audience by none less than the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lion.

Bits aBOUT 'em.

Mr. Conrad Nagel is abroad in the world at present as a sort of good will messenger. He is generally conceded to be one of the most intelligent of the screen folks and will talk at women's clubs, banquets, and so forth, in the cities where he is acting, on the movies and movie makers. Object? To bring to the knowledge of the public that has heard much bad of Hollywood the realization that considerable good in it lies.

Hoosierites will probably be flocking to the Oriental this week, for Louise Fazenda, who is there in the flesh, is a Lafayette, Ind., girl. Miss Fazenda is one of the best loved of the Hollywood laugh getters and her constant "little deeds of kindness" bring happiness into many lives.

See you tomorrow!

Canned Corn Lends Variety to Spring Meal

BY MARY MEADE.

There is corn on the cob on the market now in the fanciest stores. It is beyond the reach of most of us, and we console ourselves with the thought that the first to reach us is never the best, which, as far as our taste goes, is quite true. Most of us around Chicago have grown to prefer Golden Bantam—those smallish ears full of plump, golden kernels—to any other variety, and the lighter kind that is shipped in seems to lack some of its richness.

But if, somehow, you yearn for corn, there are cans and cans of it on the grocers' shelves. And don't think that because it all comes in the same tin containers it's all the same, either. There is that de luxe kind that you can hardly tell from Golden Bantam freshly cut from the cob. It costs a little more than the others, but a small can of it goes a long way in making corn fritters. With tomato sauce they make an ideal luncheon dish. And have you ever tried putting a cupful of this superior vegetable into your standard salmon loaf recipe? It varies the familiar taste of the Friday standby delightfully, as well as adds another vegetable to the menu.

The manufacturers seem to be vying with each other to see which can produce the best can of corn for the least money. It doesn't astonish us at all to be able to buy corn enough for a family of five for the same nickel that wouldn't take us down town on the street car. This cheaper sort of corn is generally what is called cream style. It is ideal for scalloped dishes and soups and chowders, and, enriched with butter, it is good heated.

If we accept the statement that bread is the staff of life, then surely the staff of American life ought to be corn bread. The civilization that was on this continent before we European interlopers appeared was a maize civilization—the whole cycle of existence revolved about what we call corn.

And just to show that people don't fall back on corn because there isn't anything else, look at our southern neighbors.

On the mornings when there is limited time, cornmeal mush makes a good hot cereal, or fried mush with bacon or little sage flavored sausages does duty as a luncheon dish. If you don't want to bother with making the mush, molding it into a cake and cooling it to slice and fry, there are considerate packers who have done this for you. Mush can be purchased in cakes at your butcher's, or in tins. I like the tins because the rounds, fried to a delicate brown and topped with grilled sausage patty, are more satisfying to the eye than the rectangular portions.

In recipes where one is called on to roll something in flour and fry it, it is often a good plan to substitute cornmeal for the sake of a little fillip to the palate. For example, take perch. They are delicate fried in flour, but how much better they taste in cornmeal! Oysters take kindly to the meal, too. It does not matter whether you use white or yellow meal, though the yellow seems a bit more "corny."

FRUIT DELIGHTS.

1 egg.
1-3 cup maple sirup.

Cream the butter and sugar, add the egg and vanilla, then the flour, and knead well. Take half the dough and spread it in a small square tin, ungreased. Grind together the dates, almonds and citron and mix thoroughly. Moisten with the maple sirup and spread the filling over the dough in the pan. Flour the hands and spread the other half of dough over the filling and brush with milk. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] 20-25 minutes. While still warm cut into squares.

FRIED CORN, MEXICAN.

1 tablespoon oil [or butter].
1 cup canned corn.

Sauté the onions in butter or oil. Add the pepper, chopped fine. When it is cooked add the corn, mix well, and fry till thoroughly heated.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

During the last eight or nine years bridge, first auction and then contract, has developed a perfection of bidding language which is decidedly different from the early days of the game.

It was not so many years ago that almost every bid was a hit or miss proposition, a stab in the dark and even the experts had little knowledge of the basic theories of distribution. There was little known about finding the best suit declaration for the combined 26 cards which today is the basis of every modern system. Yesterday's play-a-problem was an example of proper though not complicated modern bidding. This was the hand:

NORTH.
♥—K,Q,8,7,3
♣—Q,J,2

WEST.	EAST.
♠—10,7,6,3	♠—K,5,2
♥—A,5	♥—J,10,2
♦—Q,6,2	♦—10,7,4
♣—A,10,7,3	♣—K,8,5,4

♠—A,Q,J,9
♥—9,6,4

South dealt and bid a spade. West passed. North, not holding adequate support in spades, took out with a bid of two hearts and East passed. South, not holding adequate support in hearts, bid his second suit by calling three diamonds. After West's pass, North bid three hearts. He did this for two reasons. He has adequate support for South's diamonds but he, of course, prefers to play a major suit if possible. He knows that South has denied holding four hearts but he does not know but that South has three hearts which is sufficient support for a five-card suit. He has not as yet shown that he holds a five card heart suit and so does so with his rebid of three hearts. East passes and since South now has sufficient support for his partner's heart suit and since he now has sufficient supporting strength to raise North, he promptly goes to four hearts which closes the bidding.

East opened the ♦ 10, dummy played the J, West the Q, declarer took the trick with the K. Declarer now led the ♠ 8, East played low and dummy finessed the J which held. Dummy returned the ♥ 4, which declarer took with the Q, West playing the 5. To the fourth trick declarer the ♠ 4, East again played low and dummy took with the ♠ Q. Dummy now led the ♥ 6 which West took with the ♥ A. West led back the ♣ 3 which East took with the ♣ K. To the seventh trick East led the ♦ 7 which declarer took with the ♦ 9, dummy playing the 3. Declarer then led the ♥ K, clearing the suit and followed with the ♦ 5 which dummy took with the ♦ 8. Dummy then led the ♦ A and followed with the ♠ A. To the twelfth trick dummy led the ♣ 9 which declarer trumped with the ♥ 7, and declarer took the last trick with the ♥ 8 for five odd—the game and one extra trick. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH [Dealer].
♠—J,6,4
♦—Q,3

♠—9,7,2	♠—8,5
♥—Q,10,8,6	♥—4,3
♦—A,8	♦—K,J,10,7,6
♣—J,7,6,5	♣—Q,4,3,2

SOUTH.
♠—A,K,Q,10,3
♥—J,9,7
♣—8

ender orchids, and her subdeb daughter, Dorothy, in bright marine blue with a scarlet scarf and lavender orchids were among others seen coming out of the Fourth church.

At St. James Episcopal church, where so many old families worship, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cutten were among the early arrivals, Mrs. Cutten wearing a black coat with a caracul collar and gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell Blair and their two young sons also attended this church, Mrs. Blair looking chic in a black cloth coat with black caracul trimmings, a tiny black hat, and a brilliant green scarf knotted closely around her neck.

Some of those who attracted attention on the boulevard because of their smart outfits were Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill and their three little daughters, Molly, Diana, and Susan, who were dressed alike in tweed coats and hats of a violet shade; Mrs. Graham Aldis in brown, with varicolored embroidery and yellow orchids, and her sister, Mrs. Cabot Brown of San Franciso, in black, with a black and white caracul scarf.

Others were Mrs. Helen Walton in black with a silver fox and gardenias; Mrs. Orville Taylor, wearing a mink coat over a black and white polka-dotted dress, orchids, and a black hat; Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman in a black coat trimmed with black caracul, a black straw hat, and orchids, and young Mrs. Arthur Bissell, looking very smart in a brown coat fitted at the waistline and wide at the shoulders, a brown twisted turban, and a chartreuse green scarf.

Crowd Attends St. Chrysostom's.

A full half hour before the 11 o'clock service began at St. Chrysostom's fashionable parishioners alighted from smart motors and entered the church, bearing blue or white tickets of admission. After the carrillon chimes had pealed for the opening of the service there was only standing room for late comers and persons without tickets.

One of the earliest arrivals was Mrs. Malcolm L. Harris. Mrs. George Walker Meeker, Mrs. Fletcher Durbin, and her daughter, Miss Elinor Durbin, also entered the church around 10:30 o'clock. Miss Durbin wore a tweed coat of a brown and white mixture, a turban of dull, finely woven straw, and a corsage of gardenias.

Miss Henrietta Countiss, who was escorted by her stepfather, Lawrence H. Whiting, and her brother, Frederick D. Countiss, was one of the few parishioners at St. Chrysostom's wearing outstandingly new and springlike attire. She wore a suit of tweed in the new shade of clearwater blue with cuffs of gray fox on the three-quarter length sleeves.

Col. Albert A. Sprague accompanied his daughter, Miss Laura Sprague, and Princess Aleka Rostislav. Miss Sprague wore a black coat of nubbly tweed with collar and cuffs of silver fox and a black straw hat with a narrow brim. Princess Rostislav was also in an all black costume, brightened by a red plaid scarf.

Other Striking Ensembles Noted.

Among those wearing striking ensembles of brown or tan were the lovely Mrs. Walter Field McLallen, in a tweed suit with a brown skirt and a coat of tan diagonally striped tweed with a narrow beaver collar and a brown velvet rolled turban; Mrs. John J. Finlay, who wore a stunning coat of raisin brown tweed with bishop sleeves and a brown drooping-brimmed hat; and Miss Barbara Neff, who, with her fiancé, Solomon B. Smith, strolled down the drive after church. She wore a short brown fur jacket over a brown and white printed dress and a close fitting brown hat.

Mrs. Henry Field wore a coat of mink over a brown and beige striped woolen dress and a shiny brown straw hat with a filmy veil that fell almost to her shoulders.

Among the striking blue costumes seen were Miss Edna Doering's suit of Chanel blue and her black straw turban with a border of tiny blue flowers; Miss Margaret Sinclair's blue redingote tweed coat over a blue crêpe dress and her blue and white turban; Mrs. John L. Valentine's navy blue dress worn under a black wool and caracul coat with a shiny blue straw hat, and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh's blue coat collared in white broadtail and her blue and white turban.

Others seen at St. Chrysostom's included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoffman Jr., Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson and her daughter, Miss Josephine Patterson, the latter wearing a gray striped woolen coat with gray fox trimming; Miss Margaret James, whose brown and yellow ensemble and brown hat and veil were smart and becoming, and Miss Veronese Beatty, who wore a beige suit with silver fox collar and cuffs.

Colorful Event on North Shore.

North shore fashionables joined in making colorful the processionals to the churches in Lake Forest and Winnetka.

So far as the smart set was concerned in Lake Forest, limousines were not much in evidence. Mrs. Edward Shumway walked to the First Presbyterian church with her youngsters, Grace and Eddy. Mrs. Shumway wore one of the new coats made with a cape and a shiny black hat fashioned with touches of white.

Mrs. John H. McIlvaine, accompanied by her three daughters, Peggy, Catherine, and Allan, was smart in a sheer soft wool suit collared in sable.

Fred A. Poor was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Canfield, who was in a fur coat and blue silk dress with matching hat. Janet O'Leary, who was with her father, John W. O'Leary, wore a gray astrakan fur coat.

John Chapman and his attractive daughters, Margaret and Virginia, and Mrs. Edison Dick, wearing a brown wool suit trimmed in platinum dyed fox and a brown turban, were among others observed.

Owing to the large attendance at Christ church in Winnetka, many had to remain outside for a portion of the services. Seated comfortably on the vine covered rock steps in the warm sun, Mrs. Ray C. Johns with her daughter, Rae, was attractive in her black tailored coat, made with a deep cape of black astrakan falling gracefully over the shoulders. Her black felt beret was caught in front with a patent leather bow.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Blunt were distinctive in that Mr. Blunt was among the very few in morning clothes including high silk hat.

Interesting family groups included Mr. and Mrs. Donald McPherson and their children, Sally Ann and Donald Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. William Barr and their daughters, Jane and Betty. Mrs. McPherson wore a blue tailored coat and milan straw hat.

Mrs. Colton Daughaday, wearing a costume in the shades of blue, so popular this season, was with Mrs. Harry L. Street and the latter's two daughters, Jeanne and Katherine, who were all in black.

Fur Coats Worn by Evanston Folk.

In Evanston far more fur coats and felt hats made their appearance than did spring coats and straw hats. Among the early arrivals at the First Methodist Episcopal church were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Henshchen and Miss Abbie Tallmadge and her brother, Tom Tallmadge. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Littell were among the few who braved the chill weather in spring garb. Mrs. Littell, the former Lucy Tatham of Winnetka, wore a coat of light beige and a small straw hat tilted becomingly with a half veil of wide webbing.

Mr. Edwin S. Mills and his three children, Marjorie, Edwin S. Jr., and James, were the next arrivals. Others who attended the First church services were Mr. and Mrs. William P. Dunham, Mrs. Charles McCauley Stuart, Judge and Mrs. Marcus Gridney and their daughter, Pearl, Mr. and Mrs. George Daigety and their daughter, Ruth, Miss Dorothy Hahne, Mrs. Donald Sutton and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Clark.

A few of the many who attended St. Mark's Episcopal church in Evanston were Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Uhlman, Miss Harriett Cunningham, and Mr. William Heiser. Mrs. Uhlman wore a spring dress of cerese silk with a short baronduki fur jacket and a shiny black straw hat with a chic red feather. Miss Cunningham had on a spring suit of navy blue with a matching blue hat and a shoulder bouquet of white gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bowman and the Misses Susan and Helen Lord were also in the Easter parade.

Parade to South Side Churches.

Sunshine and crisp breezes set the promenade of south side Easter worshipers to the tempo of a snappy quickstep. Well before the appointed hour of 11 the usual congregations and many visitors filled the auditoriums of the Kenwood, St. Paul's Episcopal, and St. James' Methodist Episcopal churches.

Black and white was the favored color combination among these Easter ensembles, shiny straws dressed up winter wraps, and gardenias, orchids, and sweet peas appeared in many lapels. Observed on the way to the service at the Kenwood church were Mrs. Chester Churchill, with gardenias pinned to her black caracul coat; her daughter, Mrs. George Davie; Miss Mary Hart, wearing a tailored gray striped suit and black sailor hat; Mrs. Edwin Wiley, also in a gray suit with a shoulder bouquet of gardenias, and Miss Malcolm Carr, wearing a trim black straw and an empire coat trimmed in Persian lamb.

Mrs. Albert S. Cummins, noticed on her way to St. Paul's, was smartly dressed in black, with a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Others observed entering St. Paul's were Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Adams, Dr. and Mrs. George N. West, and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Townley.

Former Secretary of the Interior Roy O. West was among the early arrivals at St. James' church. Miss Margaret Hill attended this service with her father, John R. Hill. Others were Miss Mary de Coningh, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Howes, Miss Lucille Manker, with her mother, Mrs. W. W. Manker, and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Hall.

All services at the First Congregational, First Presbyterian, and Grace Episcopal churches in Oak Park were well attended. A happy group was the E. J. Bullock family, attending the early service at the First Congregational church.

Corsages of violets, gardenias and sweet peas enlivened many of the fur coats and suits of worshipers. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Traquair, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rayner, attended—Mrs. Traquair and Mrs. Rayner wearing mink coats and corsages. The Misses Jane Stewart and Alleyne Doherty added color to the parade—Jane in a gray coat and blue straw hat, and Alleyne in beige with blue accessories.

Others attending the early services were Mrs. Clarence Funk, her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Funk; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Austin; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Noel; Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Seymour; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hale, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton.

beach, adjoining the property of Joseph E. Widener. John T. Pirie Jr. expects to join his family in mid-April. The Smits will remain until late May.

The George A. McKinlocks also plan to stay on another month. Mrs. McKinlock will preside at the annual meeting of the Palm Beach Garden club tomorrow at the residence of Mrs. Christopher D. Smithers.

Robert P. Tristram Coffin, author of "Portrait of an American" and faculty member of Wells college, will be the guest speaker at the annual Easter luncheon of the Wells Alumnæ association on Wednesday at the Woman's Athletic club. Miss Honor Merrell of 209 Lake Shore drive is president of the association. Mrs. Sydney Y. Ball of Indian Hill heads the north shore branch, and Miss Alice Barler is head of the Chicago group.

Mrs. H. F. Van Steenderen [Mary Kimball of the concert stage] will be the vocal soloist at a benefit concert to be held on Thursday evening at Olivet institute. Mrs. Van Steenderen's father, W. W. Kimball, was the donor of the fine pipe organ which was installed recently in Olivet Institute church.

The major part of the program will be provided by the Symphony Club orchestra, under the direction of Ramon Girvin, head of the school of music at Olivet. The institute has an annual gross attendance of 300,000 persons and more than 15,000 families are being served by it at present.

Mrs. James Simpson Jr. and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Paul Snelling of Boston who visited her in Aiken for several weeks, were in New York City for Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Solomon A. Smith of 1242 Lake Shore drive are planning to open their Lake Forest residence on Elm Tree road in early April.

First Performance of Noelte Piece Marks Orchestra Concert

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Continuing on its course of highly creditable achievements, the Civic Orchestra of Chicago now takes up the task of introducing new music to the public. A featured number on the program at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon was the first performance of "Ahasverus," a solo cantata for baritone voice and orchestra by Dr. Albert Noelte, Chicago composer. The solo part was sung by Sascha Corado.

The work is a depiction in music of the story of the man who afterwards became known as the Wandering Jew. It is written in the contemporary idiom and given a strikingly dramatic treatment. Technically, Dr. Noelte has done an interesting thing in his orchestration by omitting trumpets and horns, thereby giving the music a continuous feeling of low tones and solemnity. This is not always in favor of the solo voice, but it effectively accentuates the grave tragedy of the incident.

Mr. Corado, who sang with much earnestness, was one of three soloists on the program. Thaddeus Kozuch, a young pianist with an extraordinarily fine technical equipment, played Paderewski's Polish Fantasy and two encores thereafter. Mari Barova, gifted with an excellent contralto voice, sang, "Ah, Rendimi," from Rossi's "Mitrane." Eric DeLamarter conducted the well trained orchestra through "The Roman Carnival," overture by Berlioz, the Elegy and Waltz from Tschaikowsky's Serenade for string orchestra, of which the Waltz was repeated by earnest request, and Liszt's "Preludes."

The Beethoven trio ended its series of chamber music recitals at the Cordon club yesterday afternoon with a highly agreeable program. Schumann's trio in D minor was played with dexterity and skill. It was followed by three brief pieces by Rameau, and this by Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue."

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Harroun of 5029 Woodlawn avenue announce the marriage on Saturday of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Chauncey Edward Eaton, son of Mrs. Marion B. Eaton of Sudbury, Mass.

The marriage of Miss Kathleen Karker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Harmon Karker of Glencoe, to Clayton Norville Watkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Leland Watkins of Fargo, N. D., took place on Saturday evening at the Glencoe Union church. A reception was held after the ceremony at the Skokie Country club. Miss Karker attended the University of Wisconsin and is a member of Kappa Sigma Gamma sorority. Mr. Watkins was a Sigma Chi at the University of Chicago.

Finger Waves at Beauty Show

Beauty Industry Finds it Escapes Trade Depression

There is no depression in the beauty industry. This cheering news was easily obtained yesterday at the Hotel Sherman, where clamor and clangor attended preparations for the opening today of the ninth annual midwest beauty industry show. Thousands of cosmeticians and hairdressers from every part of the United States are scheduled to flock to this exposition, and available space for exhibits gave out last week. Additional room for booths was then devised by the management.

All the known tricks to aid the American woman in her vaunted good grooming, as well as a number of entirely new ones, will be displayed and demonstrated during the three days of the show, which is staged under auspices of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association. Various other allied organizations have made plans to hold their meetings concurrently in Chicago, and a grand frolic will be held this evening at the Hotel Sherman's College inn, at which the most recent trends in coiffures will be shown by twenty models.

Emile Beauvais of Washington, D. C., head of the National Hairdressers and Cosmeticians' association, will be among the delegates and visitors for the gathering.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover have as their guest for the Easter holidays Mrs. Evelyn Wright Allen of New York.

Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Lamont had with them their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eskridge Saltzman, who returned to their New York home tonight.

Col. and Mrs. Edward Clifford, formerly of Chicago, have with them over Sunday their son, Robert Clifford, and his classmate at Princeton university, J. A. Varela Jr., son of the Uruguay minister and Mme. Varela, who are in their South American home for a vacation. Mr. Clifford and Mr. Varela will go to Boston tomorrow for the week before returning to their studies at Princeton.

James Culver Shields II. and his son, John Shields of Chicago, have joined Mrs. Shields and the younger son, James Manville Shields, at Wardman Park hotel for the Easter holidays. Mrs. Shields and the younger son have been here for the winter and expect to remain in their apartment at Wardman through the spring.

Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson have with them over Easter the former's sister and aunt, Miss Candace Stimson and Mrs. Bondinot Keith of New York.

OPEN 4TH WEEK OF MINE WAGE PARLEY TODAY

No Progress Made as End of Old Scale Nears.

The fourth week of wage scale negotiations between committees representing the Illinois coal miners and operators will open this morning at the Majestic hotel. Although the present contract expires on Thursday, March 31, no progress has been reported by the subcommittee engaged in the work of drawing up a tentative scale to be acted upon by the general conference of 22 miners and an equal number of operators.

In the present circumstances little hope was expressed by the conferees that a new scale could be put into effect before the expiration of the present contract. After a tentative scale is approved by the subcommittee of two miners and two operators it will be presented for action by the general scale conference. If approved there, it must be acted on by a referendum vote of the general membership of district 12 [Illinois] of the United Mine Workers, and then ratified by officials for both the union and the operators.

Another Complication Told.

To complicate the situation further certain elements in the union have repudiated the conservative leadership of John Walker, district president, and insist that the scale committee obtain "the present rate of wages or better or return home."

John Lewis, international president of the union, whose policy in the past has been to "take no reduction in pay," has been requested by the miners' local at West Frankfort to take a part in the Chicago negotiations. A telegram sent to him by the local said the miners are "bitterly opposed to reduction in wages."

The local adopted a resolution urging the scale committee to stand back of the action taken in the district convention at which a demand was made for changes in the existing contract tantamount to a 33 1-3 per cent wage increase.

Both Sides Refuse Demands.

When the conference opened three weeks ago the operators unanimously voted down the demands of the union and made a counter proposal of the recently adopted West Virginia wage scale, approximating 50 per cent of the present basic wage for Illinois miners. The union refused to consider this proposal.

The last offer of the operators was to add 10 per cent to the average scale paid in all fields both union and nonunion, competing with the Illinois area. No action was taken on this proposal although it was indicated the union would not consider it. The present subcommittee, the second to be appointed, is under instructions to review the entire situation, forgetting all previous proposals.

Walker expressed the hope that some arrangement for an extension of the present wage agreement would be made to permit the operation of the mines pending the outcome of the scale conference.

Call Present Scale "Ruinous."

Operators, speaking unofficially, held out little hope that this could be done. Terming the present wage scale "ruinous," representatives of the operators said that unless a new contract was signed before April 1 Illinois mines would be forced to shut down for an indefinite period. They admitted there was little hope at the present time for the immediate signing of a new contract.

Such a shutdown, experienced observers said, would set the Illinois fields back a year in filling fuel contracts. In the shutdown period coal consumers would doubtless sign contracts for long periods of time with competing fields, they said.

COL. WILLING IS MADE SECTOR ENGINEER OF MISSISSIPPI REGION

Quincy, Ill., March 27.—[Special.]—Col. Wildurr Willing, divisional engineer of St. Paul, has been appointed sector engineer. He will have the Illinois, Chicago, Calumet, and Illinois rivers to the Mississippi and the Mississippi river north of where the Illinois flows into the Mississippi under his jurisdiction.

The Mississippi river basin is divided into three sectors, the Missouri-Mississippi and the Ohio-Mississippi. Col. Willing is in charge of the third sector, the Illinois-Mississippi division.

REPELS STUDENTS

MORE STUDENTS ESCORTED FROM KENTUCKY TOWN

Hear Lawyer Lecture on Conditions.

Pineville, Ky., March 27.—(AP)—Four more eastern students, two of them women, were escorted from Pineville today, after interviewing County Attorney Walter B. Smith and having Bell county's mine problems explained to them by a group of citizens, led by Cleon K. Calvert, Pineville attorney.

The students were Mrs. Eleanor Curtis Henderson, who said she preferred to be known as Eleanor Curtis of Columbia university; Miss Margaret Bailey of New York university, Willard Spence of Union Theological seminary, New York, and Herbert Ellis of Harvard.

They came here from Knoxville, Tenn., to demand from Smith an explanation for the rejection from Bell county of two bus loads of students Friday and Saturday.

Eleanor Curtis, as spokesman, charged the students were turned back by an "unlawful mob." Smith denied this and said those who turned them back were "my officers and a group of representative Bell county citizens."

After being told by Smith they could not remain in the county because, he said, he had evidence they were connected with the communist party, the four students said they would go to Frankfort, the state capital, to protest to Gov. Ruby Faffoon.

Calvert asked the group of citizens who had gathered in Smith's office to bring the four students to his office, where they were lectured for almost an hour on coal field conditions, which the students ejected had come here to observe.

Charges "Double Crossing."

Harlan, Ky., March 27.—(AP)—Reiterating his previous charge he was "double crossed" by coal operators, Sheriff J. H. Blair of Harlan county tonight said he will cancel deputy sheriff commissions held by 126 mine guards in the Harlan county coal fields. He said he would call in the badges of the guards tomorrow.

Leave to Make Protests.

Knoxville, Tenn., March 27. — (AP) — Two groups of eastern college students, ejected from the southeastern Kentucky coal mining area, left here today for Nashville, Tenn., and Frankfort, Ky., to protest to the governors of Tennessee and Kentucky the alleged treatment they received from officers in being escorted out of the state border section.

Traveling in two buses and several cars, they headed for Nashville at 5 p. m. in a downpour of rain. They planned to call upon Gov. Horton either on their arrival at the Tennessee capital tonight or early Monday morning.

CHICAGO GOLDEN GLOVERS FIGHT NEW YORK TONIGHT

21,000 TO SEE INTERCITY TITLE CARD AT GARDEN

East Out to Break String of Defeats.

Facts About Fights

Place—Madison Square Garden, New York.

Time—First bout, 7:30 p. m., Chicago time.

Probable attendance—21,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Like two roaring, driving locomotives they will crash headon at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night in the fifth annual intercity Golden Gloves battle.

Victory for Chicago would give the boys from the middle west a lead that would require two years to tear down. A triumph for New York would square the series at two wins and a tie for each city.

Every nerve, muscle, and sinew will be strained by the fighting sons of Chicagoland to make it three victories in a row. But Pop Knickerbocker's boys are equally determined that these goings on shall be stopped.

Neutral Officials Work Bouts.

Victory or defeat will be decided by a group of neutral officials. The referees are Sam Hennessy of Detroit, Walter Bates of Kansas City, and John Martin of Boston. The judges are Dr. J. A. Reilly of Kansas City, Thomas J. Prosser of Grand Rapids, George Barton of Minneapolis, L. N. Bloom of Cleveland, and William F. Kenney of Boston.

The program includes 16 bouts, 8 between champions of the New York and Chicago tournaments and 8 between the runners-up. All count equally in the team scoring, one point being awarded for each victory. The first match, which will bring together the second string flyweights, Johnny Baltzer of Chicago and Jimmy Vallerale of New York, goes on at 8:30 o'clock, eastern time [7:30 Chicago time].

From then on the atmosphere will be foggy with flying leather. The battles for Golden Gloves bring out boys who dare to fight, boys who love to fight. Otherwise they wouldn't be there. They have no reputations to protect, no reason to hold back. Boxing fans have come to appreciate their honesty of effort. That is why 21,000 will be there tomorrow night.

Bakery vs. Ivy Halls.

Nowhere is democracy displayed more thoroughly than in the Golden Gloves. Take tomorrow night's heavyweight bout, for instance. John Rutherford of Park avenue, a member of the Ivy club at Princeton, where he plays football and belongs to the crew, meets Adam Smith, a baker boy from Rockford, Ill. Sammy Kanterwitz, from New York's Ghetto, will square off from Johnny Phagan, a colored boy from the north side of Chicago.

College boys meet factory hands, young men from the wide open spaces of rural Illinois and Indiana match skill with fighters from the crowded tenement districts of New York's east side. For three rounds tomorrow night all class and racial distinctions will be forgotten. A man will be a man and will have a chance to prove it.

If that isn't democracy, where is it?

Ballroom Becomes Gym.

The Chicago boys took their last hard workout yesterday. They were given a long walk this morning to keep their muscles limber and this afternoon took a brisk workout in the ballroom of the Hotel New Yorker. The room was converted into a gymnasium for the afternoon.

Members of both squads will weigh in at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the gymnasium of the Daily News. None of the Chicago boys expects to have difficulty getting down to the required poundage. Leo Rodak scaled 120½ this afternoon, which is a pound and a half over the bantamweight limit, but he was not worried about his excess suet.

There is a leeway of a pound in each division. The flyweight limit, for example, is 112 pounds in professional competition. But in amateur bouts a contestant may come in at 113.

Immediately after the weighing in

BOXERS UP LATE.

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—Dear Chicagoland friends: Well, friends of Chicagoland boxers, I suppose you want to know in what shape are the fellows who will meet New York's best amateurs at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Naturally you may imagine they will be nicely tucked in bed tonight at 10 o'clock for sleep and a long rest before their decisive test in the fifth intercity Golden Gloves series.

Nothing of the sort will happen. Be prepared for a shock, if it gives you a shock, to know that as this letter is written the boys are leaving for the theater, from which they will emerge at 11 o'clock. They have just had their dinners, but already are tired and leg weary from their hard day of final preparation. After the theater, however, these boys will be up until 1 or 2 o'clock, climbing into the hay at that time physically exhausted.

No, our boys have not broken loose on a wild rampage. They still are under control whether or not these hours sound like it or not. In fact, they are under direct personal chaperonage of Trainers Johnny Behr and Jabber Young and Dr. L. K. Eastman, Golden Gloves physician. This trio is with the boys. If any of the youngsters become sleepy, for heretofore they have gone to bed at 10 o'clock, they will be prodded wide awake by one of the chaperons and told to walk faster right among the bright lights of Broadway's Rialto, for a long hike will follow the theater.

Lest you fear we have all gone goofy under the strain of preparing for these New York bouts, let me explain what most persons, not knowing the theory, would consider violation of sound training régime. Heretofore Chicagoland boxers have arisen at 7 o'clock, with a good breakfast at 8, followed by morning exercises. Then afternoon boxing after a light lunch. Then a good heavy dinner from a scientifically ordered menu, mild relaxation in the evening and to the covers at 10 o'clock. That was the program today except that the period of walking was longer, boxing gave way to shadow boxing, calisthenics and rope skipping in a hotel ballroom —until tonight, when followed the late hours.

Now here's the theory. The boys when they go to bed tonight or rather early tomorrow morning will be so physically tired they are expected to sleep until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. If they still are sleepy, they may remain in bed until noon. For those who wish it, there will be breakfast at 10:30. It will consist only of dry toast and tea. This is the familiar drying out process, as it is called. Even those boys who are having no trouble making the various prescribed weights will have no large amounts of liquids on the final day.

From breakfast until 2 o'clock, when our boys and their opponents are weighed, they will rest, lying down if they wish. At 3:30 o'clock will be a hearty dinner with lean meats, no soup, vegetables, pastry and dessert if they wish but in small quantities—in short, a well balanced dinner to give nourishment and strength. After that no more food before they enter the ring. They will do no more walking or road work. In fact, they will be kept off their feet as much as possible. All strength and speed, according to this theory, are conserved for their nine

CUBS SUBDUE SEALS, 8-7, THEN JAR MISSIONS, 8-2

Hartnett Hits 2 Homers; Grimes in Form.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 27.—As a parting salute to this neighborhood, the Cubs bore down with their bats today and dusted off both the San Francisco Seals and the Missions of the same place. The Seals succumbed in the morning to a variety of base hits, 8 to 7, and the Missions submitted, 8 to 2, in the afternoon before such potent articles as Burleigh Grimes' spitball and a pair of lengthy homers by the effervescent Gabby Hartnett.

Either because a hot sun made them feel good or because they wished to show their resentment over repeated insinuations they are not a hitting aggregation, the Cubs peeled off 17 drives in the after breakfast game. Three of these were compiled by Stanley Hack, the third base youngster. All 17 were needed, because Red MacKenzie, the Los Angeles southpaw, proved a wild man when he was summoned to succeed Bob Smith. The latter pitched five innings in commendable fashion.

Hornsby in Both Games.

Manager Hornsby injected himself into both battles, but not because of any particular desire to work. Newspapers requested that he give the fans a treat and he did for a few innings. He provided two hits to give Smith a lead in the morning and retired from the afternoon contest after cutting loose with a double which helped Grimes to a commanding lead in the fourth inning. Incidentally, Grimes, who asked to be excused after six innings of strenuous pitching, let the Missions touch him for only three hits.

Old Elmer Jacobs didn't have to wait long to get action from the Cubs in the morning. Hack started the show with a pass, but was doubled up on Hornsby's tap to the pitcher. Moore then singled to right and scored when Barton dented the center field wall with a two base drive. That was the end of Jacobs' sufferings for a few minutes.

Keep After Jacobs.

In the third the value of Hornsby's bat was demonstrated. Smith opened the inning with a single to left and Hack aimed a one baser into right. Hornsby singled to left, but Smith stopped at third out of fear that the drive would be caught. Moore's hit scored Smith and kept the bases loaded. Barton bounced into a double play on which Hack ran home. Richbourg then contributed a single to score Hornsby with the third and last run of the inning.

Hornsby cut loose with one of his typical drives in the fourth and thus accounted for another run. Hemsley walked and dashed around to the plate on the manager's double to left center. Hornsby then decided he had enjoyed enough exercise before lunch so gave the second base job back to Herman.

Catch Up to Smith.

The Seals couldn't make a dent in Smith's pitching until just before he quit in the fifth. Ward's grounder to Hack took an unorthodox hop and went as a hit. Ward scored on clean one base drives by Simoni and Garibaldi. The next inning brought MacKenzie into action, and his wildness provided the Seals with another run.

The Cubs were involved in the next bit of scoring. Jurges led off in the eighth with an infield hit. He went to second on an out, stole third, and continued to the plate on a comical throw by the catcher. Then MacKenzie doubled, Hack singled, and Herman tripled to right for two more runs. In the Seals' half MacKenzie pitched himself into such a tangle that May had to be summoned to finish after four had scored. May had a little trouble himself in the ninth,

Adam Shows Fifth Avenue What Style Is

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 27.—The Easter parade on Fifth avenue would have lacked something if our Golden Glove warriors had not been in it. Adam Smith, the noted heavyweight, in striped trousers, morning coat and walking stick to match, was the most striking. The folks in Rockford would have been proud of their baker boy.

The feud between the two camps of fighters became more bitter than ever this afternoon. Instead of going to the gymnasium where both teams worked out yesterday, the Chicago boys trained in the grand ballroom of the Hotel New Yorker. There wasn't any punching, the drill being confined to rope skipping, bending exercises, and shadow boxing. It was all over before the New York team scouts could get into action.

Soon after the drill the Chicago boxers were weighed in by Coach Johnny Behr. Some of the lads are dangerously near the limit and their Easter dinner tonight didn't include food containing many calories. Ol' Man Calorie is regarded the same as a New York scout by the Chicagoans.

Wherever the sportin' class gather there must be wagering of one kind or another. There has been some wagering among the sportin' folks in New York on the intercity battle, with the New York team ruling as a 7 to 5 favorite to win.

The bouts attracting most attention are those which find Adam Smith paired against John Rutherford, the New York giant, for the heavyweight championship, and the one in which Leo Rodak, captain of the Chicago team, clashes with John de Foe of New York for the bantamweight crown. Of course, along Broadway, Rutherford and De Foe are the favorites. The little group of Chicago rooters think the New Yorkers hardly know what they are talking about.

Early to bed and early to rise for these Chicagoland slashers. They were up at 7 o'clock this morning, at 8 their breakfast was finished, and then they were dismissed until noon. Most of the boxers attended church at St. Michael's on 44th street. Johnny Phagan and Ambrose Geohegan, the two Negro boys, went over to Harlem for Baptist devotions.

Henry Rothier, the Belgian lad from Davenport, Ia., who is the Chicago lightweight champion, spent most of the afternoon on the docks along the banks of the Hudson, where liners landed from Antwerp. Henry is an old crony of most of the members of the crews.

Manny Robins of Cleveland, who gave Chicago Don Gonzales, an intercity champion last year, showed up unexpectedly and joined the Chicago team's coaching staff. Gonzales has turned pro.

The New York team worked out in the Daily News gymnasium this afternoon. Tiger Trainer Gallico was master of ceremonies, cracking an eight foot blacksnake at his tigers as he urged them to stimulate even greater ferocity and to snap at legs at the ankles of Arch Ward's warriors,

Sox Climb On Their Bronchos and Punch Dallas Steers, 10-8

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dallas, Tex., March 27.—Gracious foes continue to shower essential unearned runs on the White Sox. The Chicagoans today remained untrampled in 1932 by licking the Dallas Steers of the Texas league, 10 to 8. Six of the ten runs of the victors went into the book as unearned.

Mention of enemy graciousness is not to detract from some of the productive effort of the Chicagoans, for scattered in with the fumbling of the Steers was some nice work by the American leaguers. Not the least of these cheering items was the fact that Lu Blue knocked doubles his first three times at bat.

Frasier's in Form.

There also was the pitching by Vic Frasier, who allowed only four hits in the fine innings he worked.

Bump Hadley, who succeeded Frasier, wasn't so hot. He gave up five runs the first two innings he worked, not the least of his chagrin being caused by a homer which Pinch Batter Rip Radcliffe knocked with two on in the seventh.

The Sox will play the Steers again tomorrow. Then they will move to Shreveport for three contests.

At the end of the first inning the Sox were behind for the first time this season. They were happy to be only one run in arreas at this time, considering all the activity in the Dallas half.

After bowing to the applauding customers who remembered his stellar career in this city, Frasier walked Stewart. Stewart went to second while Frasier was throwing out Kelly and scored on Langford's single to right.

Pick Up Four Easy Ones.

The Sox got a cluster of four runs in the third. The session revealed some very sour fielding on the part of the Steers, some medium sour base running on the part of the Sox, and some cheering ball smacking by Anderson, Blue, and Selph. Blue got his second double in two innings after the side should have been retired and Selph followed with a double.

In the fifth Campbell walked and stopped at third on Blue's third successive double. The runners scored when Kelly booted Selph's grounder.

Get Away with Double Steal.

There was no taint on the two runs the Sox made in the sixth. Hayes opened with a single and stopped at second on Watwood's single. Campbell bounced to Stewart and then Hayes and Watwood executed a double steal. Blue fanned, but Selph singled to center, scoring Hayes and Watwood.

Here's the detail of what happened to Mr. Hadley upon his entrance in the sixth inning: Loepp singled to left and Holman walked. Powers fanned, but Radcliffe batted for Murray and socked the ball over the right field screen, scoring Loepp and Holman ahead of him.

Hadley's double which opened the seventh blossomed into a run without the aid of a hit. Bump scored when Jones dropped Hayes' fly.

Rangers Whip Canadiens, 1-0; Lead Series

New York, March 27.—(AP)—The New York Rangers took the lead in the National Hockey league's first place playoff series tonight by defeating the Montreal Canadiens, 1 to 0, in the third game.

It was the Rangers' second straight victory after losing the first game. Ott Heller scored the deciding goal in the second period.

The Canadiens not only lost the game but they lost the services of Pete Lepine, reserve center, who suffered a broken leg in the third period when he collided with Bill Cook, Ranger captain. Aurel Joliat, Canadien left winger, was already out of action with a leg injury.

The fourth game of the series, decided on a three out of five game basis, will be played here Tuesday, and the fifth, if necessary, here Thursday. The winner will go directly into the Stanley cup finals.

Heller, the Rangers' utility player who came up from the Canadian-American league in midseason, tallied on a rather surprising play right at the start of the second period. He started down the ice all alone and apparently with no chance to get anywhere, but he slipped through the Canadien defense and had plenty of time in which to make his shot.

MAROONS, FALCONS TIE.

Detroit, Mich., March 27. — (AP) — Montreal's Maroons and the Detroit Falcons battled to a 1 to 1 tie here tonight in their first match of the National Hockey league playoff series.

The Falcons took the lead in the first period, Johnny Sorrell scoring on a lone handed effort while Babe Seibert, Maroon wingman, was serving a penalty. In the second period the Falcons weakened and Baldy Northcott tied the score when he took Jimmy Ward's pass near the Detroit net.

Several minor casualties were reported, among them Hooley Smith, Maroon forward, who had two stitches taken in his face after he was hit by a flying puck. Nine penalties were called, six against the Maroons.

The teams play the final match of their series Tuesday night in Montreal.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The most routine and fundamental maneuver in a goalie's repertoire failed Lorn Chabot at the Stadium last night and enabled the Chicago Blackhawks to defeat the Toronto Maple Leafs, 1 to 0, in the first game of the National league's second place Stanley cup playoff series.

The victory gave the Blackhawks a 1 to 0 lead in the two game series, which is decided on total goals scored.

The deciding goal came in the middle of the third period on a shot by Jerry Lowrey, rookie Chicago wing. Lowrey lifted the puck half the length of the rink and it sailed slowly toward the goal, nearly spending itself before it reached Chabot, in the Toronto net.

Chabot Misses Puck.

Chabot, one of the best net tenders in the National league, brought his legs together, made the orthodox pass with his stick, and played the puck as if he had made the save. When he turned to flip it back of the cage he found the blade of his club bare and the house was a bedlam. The puck had slid under the stick and between his skates, barely to the back of the net.

The success of Lowrey and his rookie line mates, Holmes and Coulter, was pleasing to the Blackhawk board of strategy. At the instance of Maj. Frederic McLaughlin these three had been ordered out to harass the Leafs' first line of Jackson, Conacher, and Primeau, the greatest scoring combination in hockey. The other two Hawk lines were to carry the burden of the offensive against the weaker Toronto forwards. The Hawks adhered to this strategy throughout the game, rushing out the rookies as fast as Conacher and his mates came on.

Play at Toronto Tomorrow.

Prior to the opening face off, Gardiner was presented the George Vezina trophy, donated yearly by the Canadians to the best goalie in the league. President Frank Calder of the National league made the presentation.

When the Hawks' starting line had served its tenure at the start of the first period, Cook, Thompson, and March took up the fight, and from this point on the Chicagoans held the upper hand. Chabot had several narrow escapes, but for the most part Clancy and Horner broke up every play that carried directly in front of Toronto's goal.

The Leafs' one real opportunity came on the opening face off when Clancy broke through Wentworth and Boucher and was pursuing the puck directly in front of Gardiner. Holmes, however, arrived in time to prevent his shot.

Second Period More Fierce.

There was no let up in fierceness of the play in the second period, but with it all the two nets remained inviolate.

The Hawks continued to produce the better scoring opportunities, although Gardiner had the greater number of stops. In the last three minutes of the period Holmes got by the blue line for a shot and after shooting the puck was knocked unconscious by Conacher. He was quickly revived and helped from the ice.

With both teams a man short, the Hawks went back on the offensive and during the scrimmage beyond the blue line, Clancy was hit unduly hard in the ribs. He stalled for a rest. The crowd again began to boo and the period ended with the entire house on its feet.

Horner and Gardiner Clash.

The mutual bitterness nearly broke out in open warfare in the first minute of the third period when Gardiner took Horner's shot and stepped out of the cage toward the boards. Horner smashed into Gardiner and hammered him against the wall. Gardiner objected and Boucher became embroiled with Conacher. The officials promptly quelled the trouble, however, and banished Horner.

The Hawks spent the next few minutes shooting from all angles and Lowrey finally scored the only goal of the game. He took the puck from Clancy and skated up to midrink, where he lifted his easy shot toward Chabot, which eluded the goalie and gave the Hawks victory.

GIANTS TROUNCE OAKLAND TWICE, 7 TO 2 AND 7 TO 6

Oakland, Cal., March 27.—(AP)—The New York Giants made a clean sweep of their three game series with the Oakland Pacific Coast league club by pounding out a 7 to 2 tenth inning victory this afternoon. This morning the Giants beat the Oaks, 7 to 6.

The Oaks tied the contest, 2 to 2, in the ninth inning of the second game as Hufft scored on an infield hit and Jim Mooney's wild throw to first. The Giants came back in the tenth to score five runs on three hits and as many walks. Score, second game:

Batteries—Mooney, Mitchell and Hogan; Walsh, House and Read.

Oakland [P. C. L.]	012 001 002	6	10 3

BROWNS BATTER BISONS.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Rick Ferrell, catcher who was a holdout until a week ago, slammed out three hits, two triples and a single, to take the major part in the St. Louis Browns' 8 to 4 victory over the Buffalo Bisons of the International league in an exhibition game here today.

BRAVES NIP YANKS, 3-1.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—The Boston Braves closed their annual spring series with the New York Yankees with a 3 to 1 victory, but the Yanks captured the "St. Pete championship" six games to two.

Babe Ruth was kept out of the Yankee lineup by a stiff neck which was so sore he could not swing a bat. Sam Byrd, who replaced him, made two of the Yanks' four hits off Socks Seibold and Tom Zachary. The Braves nicked Vernon Gomez and Dusty Rhodes for 10 hits, winning the game in the ninth by bunching three blows and a sacrifice for two runs. Score:

Boston [N.]	000 100 002	3	10 4

A'S ABSORB 7-2 BEATING.

Sarasota, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Joe Bowman, the Athletics' new pitcher from Portland, took a sound shellacking from Indianapolis today and the Macks lost, 7 to 2. Archy Campbell, formerly of the Yankees and Reds, pitched the route for the victors.

The minor leaguers fell on Bowman for four hits, a walk, a hit batsman and five runs in the second inning.

The score:

Indianapolis	051 001 00*	7	11 1

REDS WHIP DODGERS, 7-6.

Tampa, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Aided by Van Mungo's wildness, the Cincinnati Reds scored four runs in the sixth inning and defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7 to 6. Mungo walked five men in less than two innings and three of the passes were converted into runs.

In the big inning three walks were combined with a triple by Roettger and a double by Durocher. Wally Gilbert, a former Dodger, and Chick Cuccinello, ex-Red, hit homers. Score:

SENATORS TRIUMPH, 8-1.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—Fred Marberry made his first start of the year in the box, and the Washington Senators again rolled the Baltimore Orioles over today, 8 to 1.

Marberry pitched three innings and allowed four hits without being scored on. Monte Weaver, rookie twirler, allowed but one hit during his three innings, and Frank Ragland did likewise, although touched for a run as a result of Heinie Sand's triple.

INDIANS BEAT PELICANS, 7-3.

New Orleans, La., March 27.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians today pounded three New Orleans Pelicans pitchers for 12 hits and a 7 to 3 victory in an exhibition baseball game here.

Kamm, third baseman, led the Indian attack with three hits, one a home run, while Joe Vosmik, left fielder, hit a triple. Rose, Pelican right fielder, clouted two triples. Mel Harder was credited with the victory. Score:

Cleveland [A.]	010 221 10*	7	12 0
N. Orleans [S. A.]	000 000 111	3	6 3

BRICKIES ENTER SECOND ROUND IN SOCCER SERIES

In the National league matches Sparta, the leader, beat the Carpenters, 7 to 1, at Sparta field and the Olympias beat the Jugoslavs, 3 to 1.

Bob Stevenson led the Sparta scorers with three, Turek got two and Gallaher and Vidano one each. Tiffin made the Carpenter tally.

Cardinals Send Crawford Back to Columbus Team

Bradenton, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Return of Clifford [Pat] Crawford, first baseman, to the Columbus club in the American association, was announced by the St. Louis Cardinals today. He is the first player on the 1932 Cardinals' training roster to be sent back to the minors.

FANS WILLING TO SEE IF TRAMBLIE HAS FOUND SELF

Tonight's Card

Ray Tramblie, Chicago boxer, and Jack Kilbourne, middleweight champion of Australia, will battle in the 10 round windup bout at White City tonight. The weight has been set at 165 pounds. Promoter Mique Malloy has announced that ladies will be admitted free.

This meeting between Kilbourne and the Chicago fighter has all the indications of a natural for local fans. Tramblie came to this city in 1928 from Rockford and won the Central A. A. U. welterweight championship. He finished second in the National A. A. U. championships, the first Illinois boxer to ever go that far in a national tourney.

Tramblie turned professional in 1929 and rapidly earned topnotch recognition as a middleweight. After a year he couldn't seem to find himself. However, in the last few months he has defeated several leading middleweights.

Last December he knocked out Johnny Baima and Tiger Cline on the south side and then left for Indianapolis, where he stopped Johnny Burns and whipped Sammy [Kid] Slaughter. Following the slaughter bout the Chicago battler went to West Palm Beach, Fla. While at West Palm Beach he knocked out Clyde Chastain, Russ Rowsey, Joe McGowan, and Johnny Pilc.

Before Tramblie returned to Chicago, Kilbourne defeated Roy Williams and Harry Fuller decisively at White City. The Australian champion stunned spectators with his clever boxing and hard punching. He showed only one weakness against Williams and Fuller—his inability to absorb punches. Both men had an advantage of several pounds over Kilbourne. So will Tramblie. Ray will weigh 165 pounds and the Australian 158 pounds. The winner tonight will be in line for matches with Gorilla Jones, middleweight champion, Dave Shade, and Vince Dundee.

Five supporting bouts, three at five rounds each and two at four rounds each, will be staged.

The Coliseum Boxing club this week will get a mandate from the Appellate court to refer back to the Circuit court its suit against Jack Dempsey for approximately $100,000 in expenses incurred in 1926 when he repudiated a contract to fight Harry Wills. The former heavyweight champion failed to file a petition for a rehearing of the judgment Judge Francis Wilson of the Appellate court handed down reversing a judgment in the Circuit court and remanding the case for a new trial, according to Ralph Rosen, Coliseum club attorney.

Following sparring bouts with Pat McLaughlin and George Kolar at the Arcade gymnasium this afternoon, Dempsey will leave for Detroit, where he meets Babe Hunt of Ponca City, Okla., in a four round exhibition match Thursday.

The deadline for submitting entries in the Olympic boxing tryouts and Central A. A. U. championships at Loyola university gymnasium April 5 to 8 is midnight Wednesday. Central A. A. U. headquarters are at 538 South Clark street. Williams Connell of Streator, Ill., has entered in the middleweight class. The Zippers Athletic club has sent in Steve Dusek's entry.

George Franks and Irving Goldstein will meet in a headline bout at the Medinah Athletic club Wednesday. They are featherweights. Another contest will have Steve Pajdo vs. Hank Kastman.

Dick Sisk, south side welterweight, and Jack Phillips of the west side will fight in the semi-final bout in the show, which is headlined by Paul Dazzo and Young Geno, at La Salle, Ill., next Monday. Benny Goldblatt, Chicago lightweight, and Glen Camp of Kewanee, Ill., battle in a preliminary contest.

Wilbur Shaw Drives Car to Win at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., March 27.—(AP)—Driving a fast but consistent race, Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis auto racer, won the 62½ mile event at the Legion Ascot speedway today. His time was 48 minutes 15.10 seconds. Lester Spangler was second, Arvel Brunmier, third, Stubby Stubblefield, fourth, and Jimmy Sharp, fifth. All but Shaw are from Los Angeles.

At the conclusion of the boxing show the losers will give a banquet in honor of the winners. For the remainder of the trip, ending in Chicago next Friday afternoon, the boys will be out of training and may eat and do just about what they like within reason. Now isn't this contrary to what you would expect on the final day and night of a long training period? Yet it conforms to the accepted training of pugilists taking part in evening bouts.

Generally speaking, the boys are in good condition. One or two have been overweight, but the drying-out process is expected to take them on to the scales at the required poundage. Their mental condition, however, is not entirely satisfactory to the trainers. They are too docile and well behaved.

After that ring effort will determine whether a visiting team, for the first time in the history of the series, wins these bouts, or whether New York reverses the results of 1930 and 1931. Despite the apparent docility of all except one of two of the sixteen who will don padded mitts, these boys do not think New York will reverse results of the last two years when the frays were held in Chicago.

Regards.

the squad will return to the hotel for a big dinner. There will be no more food until the banquet after the match. The losing team will be host to the victors in a specially built dining room in the basement of the Garden.

Flyweight—Al Soukop and Johnny Baltzer.
Bantamweight—Leo Rodak and John Ginter.
Featherweight—Joe Roman and Geno Salvatore.
Lightweight—Henry Rothler and Danny Neenan.
Welterweight—Johnny Phagan and Billy Celebron.
Middleweight—Charles Neigo and Max Marek.
Light heavyweight—Vernon Miller and Adolph Winter.
Heavyweight—Adam Smith and Charles Klopec.

Fans who have seen the New York team in training and in the finals of the Daily News meet, agree this is the strongest squad they have sent against Chicago. Officials of the team, who are growing more optimistic as the battle approaches, see a chance to even up for that 13 to 3 defeat their fighters received in Chicago last April.

Some of these New Yorkers are taking to heart quite seriously the treacherous task of foretelling the winner. They probaby haven't taken into consideration that one punch frequently determines victory in a three round amateur fight.

TUFFY GRIFFITH, HELEN HAYES TO WED TODAY

Tuffy Griffith, heavyweight boxer, and Miss Helen Hayes of 4 North Long avenue will be married by Father Dondeville at 10 o'clock this morning at St. Thomas Aquinas church, Washington boulevard and Leamington avenue. Miss Hayes is 25 years old today and Tuffy celebrated his 25th birthday yesterday.

Following the marriage the bridal party and leaders of the boxing, business, and political world will go to the Graemere hotel for a wedding breakfast. Mayor Cermak and Jack Dempsey will be among the guests.

AFTERNOON GAME

The Missions were a bit gay with Grimes at the outset of the afternoon game. Sankey tripled to right center and scored on Kelly's single. The Cubs were able to get on even terms again in the second, but required help. English singled, went to second on Chagnon's wild pitch, to third on Welsh's muff of Hartnett's fly, and home on Grimes' fly to right.

The first of Hartnett's two homers set the Cubs moving in the direction of a three run outburst in the fourth. Gabby sailed his round tripper over the left field wall with out out. Grimes singled and Hack walked. Both glided around the plate hastily on a two bagger sent into the left field corner by Hornsby. Herman was called to run the remainder of the distance for the manager, but neither Cuyler nor Barton could furnish him an opportunity to exercise his limbs.

The Cubs' fifth was similar to the fourth, both as to results and the methods employed. English singled and Grimm's triple moved him to the plate. Hartnett then ripped off his second homer, this one being a handsome tap over the fence in left center. This put the Cubs in front by 7 to 1.

Tinning's appearance as relief for Grimes in the seventh proved an invitation for the Missions to step into the scoring column. They did with one run. Welsh, the ex-Brave, singled to right, hiked to third on a similar smash by Sherlock and ran in on Cole's looping single to short center. The Cubs returned this compliment by scoring one off Cole in the eighth when Hack and Herman singled and Cuyler produced a long fly.

Run as You Never Did Before, Coach Pleads; Eastman Does!

San Francisco, Cal., March 27.—(AP)—Young athletes were limbering up. The start of the quarter mile was five minutes off. A telephone at the side of the field jangled.

On the other end of the line, 35 miles away, was R. L. [Dink] Templeton, bedridden coach of the Stanford track team and now convalescing in a San Francisco hospital after long and serious illness.

"Ben, this is Dink. Cool down, kid. Don't get excited. Remember this is just another race. Run that first 220 yards like you never ran before. But don't strain. The rest will take care of itself."

Heeds Coach's Plea.

Ben merely said, "Yes, coach."

The 19 year old youth trotted down the track to the starting holes. The field took off. Eastman, with a slow start, was a yard behind. Thirty yards out he was leading the pack. At 220 yards he was clocked in 21.3 seconds, faster time than the regular furlong was run that day.

Around the turn he raced. Down the home stretch with nine foot strides. He broke the tape 15 yards ahead of his closest rival. Four timers went into huddle. Three had clocked the race in 46.4 seconds and the other in 46.5.

Thus, after a telephone conversation between a sick man and a frail appearing, bespectacled youth, was a new world's 440 yard dash record born yesterday at Stanford.

Those officials who stood in on the run felt certain the new mark would be recognized. Every precaution had been taken. The officials were A. A. U. representatives.

Second Under Record.

Eastman's amazing time cut a second off the record set May 27, 1916 by Ted Meredith, running for the University of Pennsylvania.

Not only did Eastman shatter Meredith's time for a quarter mile around a one turn track, but he also bettered the 32 year old record for the distance on a straightaway track. On Oct. 4, 1900, at Guttenberg, N. J., M. W. Long ran 440 yards in a straight line in 47 seconds.

Templeton desperately ill at the hospital today, but beating back after the attack of arthritis that laid him low last fall, grinned as he discussed his track protégé.

RECORD BREAKER

BEN EASTMAN.

Kampfer and Zaharias Due Today for Bout

Hans Kampfer, German heavyweight wrestler, and George Zaharias of Pueblo will arrive today to take a light workout in preparation for their match tomorrow night at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

Kampfer, a defensive wrestler, weighs 215 and will spot Zaharias 25 pounds. It will be Kampfer's first windup match here. The visitor is expected to be matched with Jim Londos next month.

Two newcomers are on the card. One is Steve Sznosky, an American born Pole from New York, and the other, Leslie Grimes of Alabama. Steve meets Pat O'Shocker, one of the few Irish wrestlers, and Grimes is matched with Hans Bauer. The other bout is between George Tragos and Bob Jesson, former University of Iowa athlete.

Anderson Wins Racquets Title at Town-Tennis Club

NEW BEDFORD AND ST. LOUIS BATTLE TO 3-3 SOCCER TIE

St. Louis, Mo., March 27.—(AP)—The New Bedford, Mass., Whalers and the Stix eleven of St. Louis battled through two extra 15 minute periods to end a 3-3 tie here today in a soccer game for the United States Football association championship.

Nilsen opened the scoring for the Whalers after 39 minutes of play in the first period when he blocked the ball just inside the penalty line and drove a shot that crashed against the lower part of the upright and caromed into the St. Louis goal. Only a minute later, Eddie Hart caught a pass from Ahrens to score for the Stix eleven, then Jack O'Reilly made another goal on a pass from Pastor to put the Stix team in the lead before the half ended.

The Whalers again tied the score in the second period on a hard shot by McPherson.

The first extra period was scoreless, but in the second McNab counted for the Whalers and a short time later McLean made a shot to end the game with a tie.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Here Comes a Sailor

K. of C. Court Series Enters Second Round

Perez of the south division, Lafayette of the central division, and Hennepin of the west advanced into the second round of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league championship play yesterday by scoring victories in the opening games at the 132d Regiment armory.

Two former league champions, Aquinas and Marquette, were defeated, Aquinas losing to Lafayette, 21 to 11, while Marquette was unable to cope with Perez, 29 to 13. In the other game of the afternoon Hennepin beat St. Philip Neri, 34 to 20.

The Aquinas-Lafayette contest was the best of the day, the southsiders putting up a game battle that kept them within a few points of a tie until the closing minutes when Larry Kurka and Ed Chmielewski scored three baskets in a row to put the game on ice. At halftime Lafayette led, 11 to 5.

Led by "Peewee" Keweza, Perez wasted no time piling up a lead, and at the half held a 10 to 5 advantage. Marquette rallied at the start of the second period to come within 1 point of tying the count, but Keweza and Pat Johnston scored a dozen points between them on baskets and free throws.

Inability to locate the basket hurt St. Philip Neri. Then Tom Cunningham found the range and sank four shots for Hennepin, giving the team a lead which it held to the windup. The score was 13 to 5 at the half.

Remaining games in the first round of the title play will be played Thursday night at the 132d Regiment armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. The schedule is Santa Maria vs. O'Connell, Madonna vs. San Salvador. Loyola-Hyde Park vs. Hildebrand and St. Cyr vs. Quigley.

Fishers! Pull Our Your Rods and Get Ready

BY BOB BECKER.

While the month of April is pretty much a closed season for fishing in most of the middle western states fishermen whose fingers are itching for the feel of a reel and rod legally can go fishing in Indiana next month for several members of the finny tribe.

The situation is as follows: Indiana has in some respects a very different set of fishing regulations compared to some of our middle western states. Whereas several of the states close the month of April Indiana permits a spring fishing season until May 1. In Illinois the bass, pike and pickerel season is closed although one may fish for crappies, rock bass, and white bass without worrying about season regulations.

Walter Shirts of the game and fish department of Indiana reported some days ago that the wall-eyed pike planted in Indiana lakes were developing into real fish and had increased in many good fishing lakes. For example Bass lake has been stocked every year for upwards of twelve years. Many sizable fish are being caught there. It is reported that one eleven pounder has been taken from Bass lake.

Shirts also points out that the east fork of the White river from Seymour down to the mouth at the Wabash river offers excellent pike fishing, the result of propagating the fish in these waters as it was not native. [The east fork is way down in the southwest part of the state]. Fish weighing fifteen pounds and more have been taken from this stream.

In Indiana the bag limit on wall-eyes is six per day, the size length is fifteen inches, and the nonresident license costs $2.25, facts which the fisherman should keep in mind if he wishes to try his luck at the early spring fishing which Indiana offers.

The silver bass or white bass gives fishermen a lot of fun in Indiana as this species has been increasing in some localities. The biggest schools that we have ever seen were in the lake at Monticello, Ind., a large body of water created by a power dam. It is stocked with silver bass, black bass, wall-eyed and a variety of pan fish.

West Virginia, Duquesne Boxers Enter Olympic Trials

State College, Pa., March 27.—[Special.]—West Virginia university and Duquesne university are the latest entries in the national collegiate Olympic boxing tryouts here April 8 and 9. The Mountaineers registered five men and Duquesne three.

AMERICA IS TOLD SHE MUST LEAD PROSPERITY FIGHT

World Depends on Her, Says Cardinal.

ROME, March 27.—(AP)—America was told tonight by Cardinal Cerretti, protector of several religious organizations there, that the United States is "called by Providence" to play the chief part in a return to world prosperity.

Fear must be banished and hope must prevail, the cardinal said in an Easter message to the United States, delivered at the Basilica of Santa Maria Maggiore, one of Rome's oldest and most beautiful churches.

"The American people, because of its special position in the world and its great preëminence in certain factors of modern civilization, is called by Providence to contribute to this restoration more than any other people," he said.

"Return to Prosperity Near."

"I am sure the American people know how to fulfill this mission. Because of its special qualities, all the world is convinced that a American return to prosperity is not far off."

Lack of a "natural trust between nations" was declared by Cardinal Cerretti to be largely responsible for "the most terrible world crisis history has known, with millions of unemployed, while business seems unable to produce anything but unrest and trouble."

The problem can be solved, he said. "Otherwise our civilization is a failure." Yet there must be "spiritual light," he added.

The great majority of Americans, the cardinal said, "are deeply religious" and always able "to look at great problems with the eyes of reality and without losing sight of the superior demands of the spirit."

Cardinal Urges Confidence.

Urging confidence, he warned that "nothing is more sane than to fear evil, but nothing is worse than to make fear somewhere of our life."

White and gold supplanted the black of Lent today as this mother city of the Catholic church translated into colorful ritual the drama of Christ's resurrection.

Pope Pius XI. said his Easter mass in the Sistine chapel in the presence of his relatives, many prelates and former King Manuel of Portugal.

Tens of thousands attended the ceremonies in St. Peter's this morning. Among them were nearly the whole American colony, Catholics or not, for it is an old custom here to visit St. Peter's on Easter Sunday morning.

Less Tourists in City.

Cardinal Pacelli celebrated mass in St. Peter's this morning. In the afternoon was the "Procession of the Three Marys." This featured the visit of the Virgin Mary, Mary Magdalene and Mary, the mother of James, to Christ's tomb following his resurrection.

Visitors to the Basilica saw the large black statue of St. Peter clothed in jewel-studded pontifical vestments. On the statue's head was a golden crown.

Streets of Madrid Filled.

MADRID, Spain, March 27.—(AP)—The streets of Madrid were filled all day with Easter promenaders and the churches were crowded for the special services, but the occasion under the republic lacked the former official brilliance of monarchical days.

Wife of Paint Company Head to Be Buried Today

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for Mrs. Jean Lucas at her home, 6821 Clarendon avenue. Mrs. Lucas, who died suddenly on Saturday of heart trouble, was the wife of Robert M. Lucas, president of the Robert M. Lucas Paint company, and had lived all her life in Chicago. She is survived by her husband and one niece, Olive Hutton Lucas. Interment will be in Oakwoods cemetery.

Hospital Patient Killed in Fall from Sixth Floor

Mrs. Helen Freeman, 39 years old, 4233 Kenmore avenue, who was taken to the county hospital March 18 suffering from heart disease, plunged from a sixth story window there yesterday and received injuries which caused her death soon afterward. Hospital authorities sought to reach Maurice Lundberg, 212 North Hamlin avenue, whom Mrs. Freeman listed as a friend when she entered the hospital.

Funeral Rites Today for Gale School Teacher

Funeral services will be held at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel at Foster and Western avenues for Mrs. Mabel P. De Vault, a public school teacher for the last ten years, who died Saturday. Burial will be at Martin's Ferry, O. Mrs. De Vault taught in the Gale school. Surviving her is her husband, George I. De Vault of 1510 Rosemont avenue.

10,600 CRIPPLED CHILDREN LISTED IN STATE REPORT

The physically handicapped children' commission, headed by Rodney Brandon, director of the state department of health, has compiled the names and addresses of 10,600 crippled children in Illinois, it was announced yesterday.

The commission, which also includes Dr. Andrew Hall of the department of health, and F. H. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, estimates that there are at least 5,000 more crippled children in the 37 counties from which complete reports have not been received. Among the crippled children the following principal causes of their condition are tabulated:

Infantile paralysis	2,308
Bone infection	907
Club feet	418
Flat feet	268
Spastic paralysis	1,082
Dislocated joints	468
Rickets	386
Arthritis	197
Accidents	555
Birth defects	497
Spinal defects	650

The commission found that of the 497 birth defects, many could have been cured had they been reported in time. Among the children listed, 2,064 are not attending school, although almost every one could learn if given the opportunity, the commission reported.

DAVID N. HEIZER, FORMER OFFICIAL OF G. A. R., DEAD

Colorado Springs, March 27.—(AP)—David Newton Heizer, former national adjutant of the G. A. R., died here today following a heart attack. Born Nov. 11, 1846, in Ross county, O., Mr. Heizer served in the Union cavalry.

Following the war he attended the University of Iowa for five years, studying engineering, and came west to become one of the founders of Garden City, Kas., the site of which he located.

Following the grasshopper plague of 1874 he introduced the planting of winter wheat, which has since become a major crop.

JEWS' ORTHODOX LEADER, RABBI SONNENFELD, DIES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

JERUSALEM, March 27.—Rabbi Chaim Sonnenfeld, who was venerated by orthodox Jewry throughout the world, died here today at the age of 85. During his long life he had firmly adhered to the strictest principles of Judaism.

Today and tomorrow were declared days of public mourning in Palestine. All ultra-orthodox Jews in the Holy land will refrain from work in memory of the man who typifies the saintly Jewish patriarch of biblical days more than any one of his generation.

More than 10,000 persons attended his funeral this afternoon, including representatives of high Commissioner Campbell, the Czecho-Slovakian consul general and many Arabs. The presence of many Jewish nationalists signified the universal respect which Rabbi Sonnenfeld's character commanded, despite the antagonism of his views to political Jewish nationalism.

SPANISH PALACE MADE A MUSEUM FOR TAPESTRIES

MADRID, March 27.—(AP)—The government today decided that Pardo palace shall be converted into a museum housing principally tapestries from royal estates.

At present 414 rare tapestries are kept there. Their value is approximately $75,000.

In time it is intended that La Granja palace will be converted into a presidential summer residence. Re-lfrio palace has been offered to a press association as a sanatorium for newspaper men.

C. J. Thompson, Political Pupil of McKinley, Dies

Albuquerque, N. M., March 27.—(AP)—Charles J. Thompson, 70, of Defiance, O., former congressman and a political pupil of William McKinley and Mark Hanna, died at the home of a son here today.

SANITARIUM PATIENT SUICIDE.

Jacksonville, Ill., March 27.—Dr. M. M. Meyer, 48, of Des Moines, Iowa, who has been a patient at a private sanitarium here for the mentally deranged for more than a year, leaped from the bridge at Florence into the swollen waters of the Illinois river and was drowned in the presence of his wife and two sons, who had come from Iowa to visit him.

20 IN CONGRESS DIE; SLOW DOWN, DOCTOR ADVISES

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—The spectacle of many exhausted and ill members of the hard working house still carrying on has caused Dr. George W. Calver, attending capitol physician, to issue a solemn warning to slow down and avoid danger.

Already in this congress sixteen representatives and four senators have died, while several have collapsed from overwork and nervous exhaustion. In addition, more than half the membership of both house and senate have been under medical treatment since the long session began in December. As many as twenty have been confined to their beds at one time.

Dr. Calver told Majority Leader Rainey in a letter the work of house members this session had been unparalleled because of long and intense sessions and committee work. He urged that the house not meet on Saturdays to enable the members to recoup their strength. Rainey hopes to make this possible in the future.

Among some of the members who collapsed from overwork were Representatives Collier of Mississippi, Sirovich of New York and Underwood of Ohio. They are on the road to recovery. Representative Percy Quin of Mississippi and Samuel Rutherford of Georgia recently died unexpectedly.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 27.—The threatened closing of Paris theaters, movies, and night clubs was called off today following the partial capitulation of the government to the demands for tax cuts. Premier Andre Tardieu promised the theater managers he would ask parliament to cut the levies from 15 per cent of the receipts at 9½ per cent.

The government agreed to put a credit of $480,000 at the disposal of the moving picture industry to "relieve the excessive costs of exploitation" and also pledged a study of a general reform of the amusement tax laws.

The delegates quit Tardieu expressing thanks for favors shown them and confidence that parliament will back up the premier. Theatrical leaders were pleased at avoiding a shutdown and were especially delighted at the publicity won by their prolonged threats.

MRS. CLIFFORD, ELGIN PIONEER, IS DEAD AT 81

Mrs. Jennie A. Clifford, 81 years old, pioneer of Elgin, died yesterday of heart disease at her home at 826 North Spring street, Elgin. She was born just east of Elgin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin, early settlers in that region. Her husband, Attorney Eugene Clifford, who died nine years ago, was for over forty years counsel for several labor organizations, among them the International Cigar Makers' union. Surviving Mrs. Clifford are five children, Mrs. Julia Saunders of Pittsburgh; Jean of Washington, D. C.; Eugene of New York, and George and Edwin of Oak Park. The latter is general manager of The Chicagoan. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Bluff City cemetery.

Boy, 8, Plays with Rifle; Visitor in Home Is Shot

Emil Savich, 43 years old, 4601 South Paulina street, and his family went last night to visit the family of Theodore Gaidelis at 4459 South Wood street. While the elders of the two families were talking, Theodore Gaidelis Jr., 8 years old, played on the floor with a .22 caliber rifle. The weapon was accidentally discharged and Emil Savich was struck in the back with a bullet. He was taken to the Washington Park hospital.

Miss Patricia Riordan, 29 years old, accidentally shot herself in the left wrist last night while examining a pistol in her home at 1723 North Merrimac avenue. The weapon belonged to her father, Michael, who is employed by the American Railway Express company.

Charles P. Ford, Electrical Workers' President, Dies

CONDITION OF MACKAY, POSTAL FIRM HEAD, CALLED SATISFACTORY

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Clarence H. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph company, who is confined to his bed with a slight brain concussion following upon a fall, was reported "in exceedingly satisfactory condition" today by Dr. Foster Kennedy, brain specialist.

Mr. Mackay suffered some hemorrhage into the spinal membrane as well as concussion, when he slipped and fell a few days ago in his bathroom. Dr. Kennedy said he probably would be confined to his bed about three weeks.

The physician said he thought it would be unnecessary to issue bulletins about Mr. McKay's condition, since he "is in no danger, and his recovery is assured."

"CUCKOO" GANG ASSOCIATE SLAIN.

St. Louis, Mo., March 27.—(AP)—Philip Battisto, 27, described by police as an associate of "cuckoo" gangsters, died in a hospital today, the second victim of a shooting that followed the robbery of a gambling house last night.

COMEDY ALL THROUGH THE DAY

Ha-Ha-Ha! It's "Blue Monday" no longer. Periodically, all through the day and evening, the station that is famous for its comic strips brings you the stuff that chuckles are made of.

At 8:45 in the morning there's Tom Blanchard with his quips and merry impersonations. At 9:15 in the forenoon come those side-splitting chatterers, Clara, Lu 'n' Em. Then, at 10, Tom, Dick and Harry burst in upon you, fetching flip gags and tunes.

In the evening Harold Teen and his gang step from the funny paper into your radio at 6:45. Along about 7:45 those precious burlesquers, Col. Stoopnagle and Bud, begin their impertinences. At 8:15 you are given a comic peep behind the scenes in a radio studio, in "Broadcast Rehearsals." And then the new sensation of radio, "Easy Aces," at 9:15, an hilarious bridge game, sends you off to slumber with a great big grin!

AIR LISTENERS GET PROGRAM FROM SPEEDING TRAIN

Baltimore, Md., March 27.—(AP)—As a train sped through a downpour of rain tonight, radio listeners heard a half hour of entertainment coming from a dining car fitted up as a special studio.

The train was en route from Washington to Baltimore when the WABC-CBS network was cut into the traveling studio to pick up Jack Denny and his orchestra and Belle Baker, soloist. Short wave equipment made possible the connection between the speeding train and the network, receiving stations being located at Laurel and Beltsville, Md.

The program was switched to the train after a preliminary announcement by Andre Baruch at Laurel, the main control point. On the train, Louis Dean took charge, introducing Senator Clarence C. Dill of Washington state, as guest speaker. The senator congratulated radio engineers for the progress they have made.

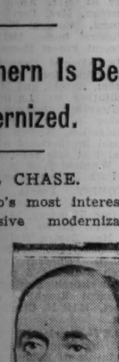
ARRIGO

SPEND $300,000 REJUVENATING LOOP HOSTELRY

Great Northern Is Being Modernized.

BY AL CHASE.

One of Chicago's most interesting and comprehensive modernization projects, which has been going on for some time quietly, but which now has reached the stage where it is visible to the public on account of scaffolding, is the $300,000 rehabilitation of the Great Northern hotel. Floor by floor, this well known old hostelry, erected in 1892, has been rejuvenated and now the workmen have reached the lobby and their wooden scaffolding is arousing the curiosity of the public.



EARL L. THORNTON

On Pershing's Staff.

Fourteen months ago Col. Thornton (he achieved his title as one of Gen. Pershing's personal staff of five officers) was made manager of the hotel. He has been in the hotel business for thirty-four years, starting at Champaign in 1898. He was with the Hotel La Salle for twenty-one years and was vice president and manager when he resigned two years ago. Then he was with the Palmer house for six months.

When he assumed charge of the Great Northern he at once started in to modernize its 400 rooms. About 150 didn't have baths. Floor by floor this deficiency was remedied until now the hotel has 400 rooms and 400 baths. Partitions were torn out, moved or rebuilt so that now every one of the 400 rooms has fresh, attractive wall paper, trim, carpets, roomy closets, good sized bathrooms, and plenty of daylight. New furniture had been installed prior to Col. Thornton's régime.

Plan New Lobby.

Workmen have now reached the lobby, which is to be rebuilt. The old fashioned glass dome is to be hidden with a modern ceiling from which a huge chandelier will hang. New entrances have been cut through to Jackson boulevard and Quincy street.

A new kitchen is being constructed in the basement at the northwest corner of the building, so it can serve both the grill room, adjoining it, and the coffee shop, above it. The coffee shop, by the way, has been enlarged a couple of times and again will be made roomier by additional space now used by shops, fronting on Dearborn street.

Many other changes, too numerous to list here, have been made and are contemplated throughout the hotel. Col. Thornton states that the modernized building will be completely rebuilt by June 1.

MOTORS AND OILS BRIGHTER SPOTS FOR THE WEEK

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Leading business executives again centered a large part of their study last week on prospective stimulation of the automobile industry. It was reported that Ford production was gradually stepping up, but as yet no marked stimulus has yet been felt by related industries. There also was talk of a concerted springtime sales drive by the leading motor car producers as a means of starting buying initiative.

The oil industry furnished one of the brighter spots of the week and again raised hopes as to the possibility of swinging the long declining course of prices in the other direction. Important producers in the midcontinent field marked up quotations for crude oil 15 cents a barrel. The price change which will go into effect on April 1 will restore the quotation to 92 cents, which virtually recovers the loss suffered by the quotation in the last year. On Jan. 1, 1931, crude oil was posted at 95 cents, from which levels it fell to the record low level for basic gravity at 33 cents. The latest advance is 65 cents from the 77 cent level where oil had been ruling for nearly five months without change.

Canadian Gives Cuba Plan to Refine Sugar at Home

HAVANA, Cuba., March 27.—(AP)—E. D. Norman, Canadian engineer, has presented the national economic commission with plans for refining at home all the sugar Cuba produces. Although details of the proposal were not made known, it was said Norman believed refining methods could be greatly improved and made much cheaper, placing the industry in a stronger position in the world market.

INSULL TALKS TO PUBLIC ON EDISON AFFAIRS

Cash Assets Ample, He Asserts.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Because of much rumor and gossip concerning investments of the three big Insull operating companies, Samuel Insull, head of the Commonwealth Edison company, the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, has decided to make public detailed statements on the holdings of these companies' investment subsidiaries. He issued the first statement, which deals with the Commonwealth Edison company, last night and will issue analyses of the other companies in the near future.

As a preface to the present analysis, Mr. Insull comments on the general financial situation of the three companies. Then he goes into the situation of the Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation, which has assets of $122,343,873, and in which Commonwealth Edison has an investment of $90,748,700 by virtue of complete stock ownership.

Insull Makes Statement.

"The accounts of these companies," Mr. Insull says in referring to the general situation of Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas, and Public Service, "for practically the first three months of this year show that with business as it is, and with no improvement for the remainder of the year, they will all, in 1932, earn the dividends which they have been in the habit of paying and a substantial surplus besides.

"The financing the companies will have to do in the course of the year has been a matter of discussion—in the press and elsewhere. This financing, even for bad times, is only usual financing. It will put no strain upon any of the companies. Take the Commonwealth Edison company as an example. Twenty million dollars of its notes [all the financing it has to do this year] fall due on July 30. Well, we had $20,108,738 in cash in the banks last Friday.

"Under ordinary circumstances we would hardly be thinking about our financing this far in advance of our needs. But because the times are unusual, we have already given it careful consideration and feel that we have the matter in hand for these companies.

Rumors, Rumors Everywhere.

"In the past weeks we have had a financial situation based generally upon rumors instead of facts and information. Thousands of these rumors fly about everywhere, from financial centers to dinner tables. Among them have been various versions of the condition of the Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation and its relation with Commonwealth Edison company.

"The Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation is not an investment company in the usual or popular sense of that term. Its investments—in real estate, in coal and in allied or associated corporations—were made in the interest of the Commonwealth Edison company to build up its business and to help bring about economies and betterments in the service in behalf of its customers and owners.

"These investments of the subsidiary corporation were not made as speculations. With the exception of about 10 per cent, all are permanent; they have a distinct value to Commonwealth Edison company as an operating concern, a value that does not fluctuate with the market price or according to whether times are good or bad. Whether the present market price of these holdings shall go down or up, their value to Commonwealth Edison will remain just what it is today. They are of enduring value. To erase, however, any impression the public may have that these holdings of Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation are of a speculative character, here is the list carried on its books as of Jan. 1, 1932:

"UTILITY COMPANY INVESTMENTS, $63,604,445 and 56.3 per cent of total. This includes ownership in companies with which, or with subsidiaries of which the Commonwealth Edison company has electricity supply relations and are permanent investments. These companies are: Illinois Northern Utilities company, Western United corporation, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Midland United company, Chicago District Electric Generating corporation, Superpower Company of Illinois.

Some Further Details.

"COAL INTERESTS, $9,559,657 and 8.5 per cent of total. The Commonwealth Edison company has protected its fuel supply for years to come through ownership by the subsidiary in the Peabody Coal company and complete ownership of the Chicago and Illinois Midland Railway company, the coal carrier which operates to its mines.

"REAL ESTATE, $16,066,503 and 14.2 per cent of total. This includes the interests of the subsidiary in the block of Chicago loop property bounded by Adams, Monroe, Dearborn, and Clark streets on which stand the Edison, Marquette, Chicago Trust, Westminster and other buildings.

"TRANSPORTATION INVESTMENTS, $11,115,477 and 9.8 per cent. This represents investment in companies which directly or indirectly are large permanent power customers; it includes the Chicago Rapid Transit company, in which the company has an owership for a number of years, the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad company, and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgi corporation.

"INVESTMENTS NOT INCLUDED ABOVE, $2,366,249 and 2.1 per cent of total. This represents investments in subsidiary companies which develop a considerable power business for

Tax Problem Causes Drop in Bond Mart

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Uncertainty regarding national tax legislation, together with some disturbing spots on the foreign horizon, had a rather depressing effect on the bond market during the last week.

While dealers and investors were watching, somewhat apprehensively, the proceedings at Washington, the Friday holiday intervened and along came news from Stockholm that the investigating commission had recommended a protracted moratorium for Kreuger & Toll. The result was that the bonds of this company and its subsidiary, International Match, were dumped for heavy losses at the brief Saturday session.

Affects Other Issues.

Losses of from 7 to 9 points on these Kreuger issues, added to the already gloomy domestic atmosphere, brought further liquidation into various corporate categories that had previously maintained a comparatively steady undertone. The net average loss for 60 principal bonds for the week was 1 3-10 points.

The United States government list, which had been running counter to the trend and had recorded a number of new highs for the year, also turned moderately soft on Thursday and Saturday. Declines in this group, however, were not severe. Buying of the federals during the week was attributed largely to banks and to some investors who anticipate a substantial jump in income taxes.

Rail Securities Affected.

Listed mortgages of the railroads, utilities and industrials were inclined to sag, although high grade loans exhibited considerable resistance. The speculative liens of the carriers were especially under pressure and some bonds of Baltimore and Ohio, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island, Pennsylvania, Chicago and North Western, Erie, Great Northern, Nickel Plate, and Pennsylvania dipped sharply.

Heaviness marked the movement of International Telephone issues, Postal Telegraphs, Western Unions, Utility Power and Lights and Shell Union Oils. The Shell Unions descended to new 1932 lows Saturday with losses of from 5¼ to 6½ points.

New financing in the municipal category scheduled for next week totals $12,933,188, says the Daily Bond Buyer. The largest piece of financing is a $2,765,000 issue of Massachusetts subway, water and sewerage bonds, bids on which will be received Thursday.

OLIVER FARM CO. REPORTS 1931 NET LOSS OF $228,872

The Oliver Farm Equipment company had a net loss of $228,872 in 1931 before extraordinary charge-offs, the annual report issued yesterday by President C. R. Messinger shows. Special charges of $6,087,794 against surplus were made, with the result that the company closed the year with a surplus deficit of $2,463,325 as compared with a surplus of $3,624,519 at the end of 1930.

The special charges consisted of $1,508,926 for collection losses on receivables, $2,534,046, provision for unrealized amount of certain receivables; $1,179,200, reserve for possible exchange losses on conversion of Canadian current assets; $636,799, inventory write-down and miscellaneous adjustments.

In 1930 the company had a loss of $1,298,475 before special charges which amounted to $3,536,770. No dividends were paid to stockholders in 1931, as compared with disbursements of $1,683,098 in the previous year.

The Dec. 31 balance sheet shows current assets of $28,664,647, including cash of $2,758,301, against current liabilities of $13,813,072. This compares with $39,788,797 of current assets and cash of $3,529,747, against current liabilities of $19,411,625 at the close of 1930. Inventories stood at $8,232,405, compared with $12,612,765 at the end of the previous year.

WHEAT TRADERS BLAME FARM BOARD TACTICS

Liverpool Lowest in Three Centuries.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders express the belief there is no likelihood of decided betterment in the markets until the government adopts a definite policy toward disposition of its surplus of about 135,000,000 bu of wheat. They feel there must be more knowledge among the traders as to what the government actually will do.

Grain prices are the lowest in years; close to the bottom of the present season. There are only a few cents difference between the low prices made in the Chicago market in the last week and those in early October of 1931. May wheat in Liverpool dropped to 53¼c on Wednesday, the lowest in about 300 years. Prices for May wheat in Chicago at the same time were practically the same as in Liverpool, with shipping charge of 20c bu.

These prices are regarded as too low in the English markets and entirely out of line. The decline was taken by the traders as showing a lack of confidence on the part of the foreign as well as domestic interests and they feel the U. S. farm board is largely responsible for that condition.

Farm Board Has Less Wheat.

The farm board is steadily getting out of its cash wheat holdings. At the peak those were estimated at 250,000,000 bu. Now they are said to be around 135,000,000 bu. This probably includes the 40,000,000 bu given to the Red Cross. Of the Red Cross wheat 2,800,000 bu already have been ordered out to be ground into flour and feed and distributed largely throughout the northwest, where there is a scarcity of all kinds of feed. Should the farm board get in close touch with a number of the largest exporters, it is believed by the traders that the exporters might dispose of the big farm board holdings largely to foreign countries, while such action would get the U. S. government out of the market and start a recovery which eventually would bring about a healthier situation. Many traders believe large operators then would reenter the market, and regard that prospect as leading to action that would be reflected in the daily price movement.

Operations in wheat on the board of trade are said to be responsible for the decline in prices of late. Traders, however, argue that had the government prevented the many conflicting statements made there would have been more confidence in the federal announcements, and buying of larger volume probably would have developed.

Crop news is more bullish, but it failed to bring in new buying. Export business in both Manitobas and hard winters was good.

Milnor's Trip Abroad.

It is asserted that had President George S. Milnor of the Grain Stabilization corporation let it be generally known a few weeks in advance that he intended to go to Europe instead of waiting until he sailed, the wheat trade may not have been so badly upset. In addition to all the unsettled conditions that have developed, came the announcement late on Thursday of the farmers' intentions to plant 153.3 per cent of bread spring wheat as compared with last year, and 134.8 per cent of durum wheat. That report also had a depressing effect. It is assumed by crop statisticians that a comparison of intentions to plant all farm products, as compared with the previous season, should be on the area planted instead of that harvested as unusual conditions may have prevailed in the preceding year as was the case in the American and Canadian northwest last year. Then drought cut down the crop to the smallest in several years.

From present conditions the United States might raise close to 800,000,000 bu of wheat this year, counting spring and winter, against 891,000,000 bu, including 105,000,000 bu spring wheat and 787,000,000 bu winter. The average spring wheat yield is 275,000,000 bu. Indications are that there will be another large carryover this year compared with 334,000,000 bu a year ago. Canada, however, will have 100,000,000 bu against 133,000,000 bu last year.

Wheat Prices for Week.

May wheat closed Saturday at 52⅜ @52⅜c, or within ½c of the low level. July was 54¾@54½c, and September 56¾@56⅝c, net losses being 1¼@

SKETCH CLUB'S ANNUAL TRAVEL CONTEST READY

The program committee of the Chicago Agricultural Sketch club formally announced that next Saturday, April 2d, from 2 to 11 p. m. has been set as the date on which the esquisse will be issued for the competition for the club's 32d annual traveling scholarship. Final drawings will be due at noon on Sunday, May 15. In accordance with the club's custom, $1,200 will be awarded to the winner of the competition, to help defray the expenses of not less than six months' travel and study in Europe.

ALBERT EISEMAN JR.

The competition is open to any architect, student or draftsman who is 30 years of age or under, a resident of the state of Illinois for at least two years prior to April 2, and who has not held any other foreign traveling scholarship.

Entrants in the competition are required to file an application blank with the chairman of the program committee on or before April 2. Applications should be addressed to Albert Eiseman Jr., 1164 North Dearborn street, Chicago, to be received before Wednesday, March 30.

Wrigley Canadian Co. Places Big Clock Order

The Hammond Clock company of Canada has received an order for 100,000 electric clocks from the William Wrigley Jr. Company of Canada. The order supplements that recently placed by the Wrigley company for 1,000,000 clocks with Hammond. F. H. Redmond, vice president of Hammond Clock, says that the company's Chicago plant and others are running actively to fill the Wrigley orders. The order placed yesterday will be filled by Hammond's Canadian affiliate.

REPORT GREAT BRITAIN SOON TO RETIRE REST OF BIG PRIVATE CREDIT

LONDON, March 27.—(AP)—Reliable financial circles tonight accepted as well founded the belief that Great Britain soon would retire the remaining $50,000,000 of a private credit of $200,000,000 obtained in the United States last August.

It was pointed out that in an endeavor to prevent too sudden a rise in the value of the pound sterling the British authorities have been purchasing dollars and francs and other currencies in large quantities. Thus the government should be in a position to retire the remaining portion of the American credit.

At the same time it is suggested that Great Britain will ask that the credit not be formally canceled until the date of expiration next August, so that in case of sudden withdrawals of short term money from London the authorities still would have a valuable weapon for the support of the pound sterling.

May Pay $30,000,000.

New York, March 27.—(AP)—The Herald-Tribune says the British treasury will repay on Tuesday $30,000,000 of a $200,000,000 private loan obtained last August from a syndicate of American banks headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., rather than renew the notes. Local banking circles understand, however, the paper says, that Great Britain will not cancel the credit under which $50,000,000 in bills remaining unpaid are drawn, but will take advantage of an agreement allowing use of the funds until Aug. 28.

It was assumed, according to the paper's information, that the British government would also retire $35,000,000 still unpaid on French banking credit.

Harvester Company Announces Sale Plan Based on Crop Gains

The International Harvester company, in an offer to purchasers of farm machinery made public yesterday, expresses itself as willing to extend credit on the basis of 70 cents a bushel for wheat and 50 cents for corn at Chicago and 8½ cents a pound for cotton at New Orleans.

No. 2 hard wheat, the grade mentioned by the company, has not been traded on the Chicago exchange for several days. Allowing for the recent price reductions, however, it would be selling in the neighborhood of 52 cents. No. 2 yellow corn sold Saturday at 33¾ to 34½ cents.

George A. Ranney, vice president in charge of sales, explained that the company is convinced that the farmers' reluctance to buy farm machinery is due to present unsatisfactory prices and that if they were assured of higher prices they would buy.

Statement by Ranney.

"To meet this situation and to evidence our faith that prices of farm products must soon improve," he said, "we are now offering assurance of higher prices with which to pay notes given hereafter and maturing this year. The machines to which this applies are farm tractors, harvester-threshers or combines, windrow threshers, and stationary threshers.

"On notes maturing in 1932, given hereafter in payment for these machines and representing not more than 40 per cent of the purchase price, there will be indorsed the equivalent number of bushels of wheat or corn or pounds of cotton computed at the prices named.

"If the average market quotation for the five day period prior to and including the maturity date of the note is less than the price named, the purchaser will be credited with an amount representing the price differential multiplied by the number of bushels or pounds indorsed on the note.

How It Works.

"For example, if the note due in 1932 amounts to $420, it will require 600 bushels of wheat at 70 cents Chicago to meet the obligation. Should the price at maturity be less than 70 cents, say 60 cents, the purchaser's note will be accordingly reduced $60.

"I take this opportunity of reiterating what the company said in its recent annual report for 1931: That the present abnormally low prices of farm products cannot long prevail and that only a slight improvement in farm prices would have an important effect in correcting the vicious circle in which all business has been forced."

N. & W. RAILWAY REPORT SHOWS FUNDED DEBT CUT

New York, March 27.—(AP)—The Norfolk and Western Railway company today made public its pamphlet report for 1931, showing a reduction of $10,594,000 in its funded debt due to payment at maturity of $7,235,000 general mortgage 6 per cent bonds and $3,270,000 4½ per cent equipment certificates.

The report also showed net income of $20,23[illegible]644, after all charges, as previously reported, equivalent to $14.39 a share on its common stock against $30,897,073 the year before, or $21.97 a share.

Current assets amounted at the end of the year to $12,155,776 against current liabilities of $4,110,742. Corporate surplus stood at $203,792,166. Investment in property used in transportation service was $324,841,861.

The statement points out that operating results in the year reflected the reduced demand for bituminous coal, which is the road's principal commodity of traffic. Gross operating revenues for 1931 stood at 79,854,748, a decrease of $20,675,710, or 20.57 per cent, compared with 1930. Operating expenses were $50,594,814, a decrease of $9,080,911, or 15.22 per cent.

At the close of the year there were 162 companies operating on Norfolk and Western lines for producing coal and coke, having a total of 229 mines, of which 159 mines were in actual operation.

MIDDLE WEST UNIT REPORTS '31 NET OF $4,040,324

Central and South West Utilities company, part of the Middle West Utilities system, yesterday reported net income of $4,040,324 for 1931 before special charges of $831,662 for write-down of notes receivable and investments. The earnings are equivalent to 76 cents a share on 3,258,905 shares of common stock outstanding after provision for dividends on the preferred and prior lien stocks.

In the preceding year the company reported net earnings available for dividends of $5,922,373, or $1.34 a share on common after preferred dividends.

Surplus at the close of last year was $2,878,593 against $3,040,684. The reduction was due to the special charge of $831,662 for write-down of investments and receivables. The surplus account shows no other charge-offs for investments which are carried at $53,521,528. "Investments" represent stocks of subsidiary companies and other holdings.

Reo Reports February Truck Sales Show Gain

February registration of new Reo trucks in thirty-seven states are ahead of February, 1931, making February the eighth consecutive month that Reo commercial vehicle sales have been above those of the same month a year before, according to Elijah G. Poxson, general sales manager of the company.

PRESENT CRISIS PART OF PRICE FOR NEW ERA

U. S. World Status Remade by War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 27.—Perhaps the position of the moment, in the markets and in the general field of industry, may best be described as one of lassitude and apathy.

It is one of the rather numerous phases through which the "depression period" has passed since 1929; each of those phases, as is usual in such episodes, having a distinctive character of its own. During most of 1930 the rapidly spreading trade reaction was regarded as the familiar and natural consequence of the crazy speculative boom of 1929 and of that year's October crash, and reasonably early regaining of equilibrium was expected.

In the autumn of 1930 morbid psychology began to play its part, but mostly in regard to the fall of wheat and other staple products.

Hit by Europe's Troubles.

By the beginning of 1931 the community seemed to have regained its mental balance and slow recovery in the markets, and even in some industries, was visibly under way. It was abruptly stopped, as every one remembers, by the midyear crash in Europe, the run on the central banks and the surrender of gold payments by Great Britain. That was for us a period of formless fright, of wild imaginings, of sale at any sacrifice of investment holdings, and of money hoarding on a probably unprecedented scale.

The nation-wide run on bank deposits by prospective hoarders and the formidable shrinkage of value for the banks' security investments brought the number of autumn bank failures to five or six times that of the same months in 1930.

In Fifth Stage.

Partly because of the extremely useful relief measures at Washington, partly because such excess of hysteria was bound to run its course in any case, the financial and business community passed with the opening of 1932 into what may be considered the fifth stage of the reactionary period. Markets steadied, bank failures fell to nominal proportions, hoarded money was released. The situation is now regarded soberly and in the main intelligently. But the consequences of the mental agitation and chaotic markets of a few months ago could not

The financial atmosphere has brightened, in the sense that the spirit of agonized despair no longer controls the markets. Still even the more thoughtful and intelligent survey of the situation which has replaced that blind hysteria finds enough of discouragement in the visible position.

Debt Tangles Still Draw Back.

One of these adverse influences, evidently enough, is the existing entanglement in home and foreign debt. But the absence of any tangible recovery of industrial activities probably attracts the greater notice, and that is particularly true of the continuing weekly reports of merchandise distributed by the railways. When these reports continue to show decrease of 20 per cent from the same weeks a year ago and of 35 per cent from 1930 they necessarily reflect a low ebb of consuming power. The question arises constantly, why is there not some turn for the better in that direction, even though it be temporary?

The matter undoubtedly is very puzzling—not less so when the records of railway freight tonnage during older after-panic depression periods usually increased after the first year or two, even though renewed decline came afterward. Two possible explanations exist for this postponement of visible recovery. Neither is based on the absence of that increase in the consuming population which once occurred, whether in good years or in bad. One explanation is the fact that in our pre-war depression periods European recovery usually came before our own and through European purchases while American prices were at an extremely inviting level. That helped out our markets and producers, whereas on the present occasion severe reaction in Europe's industry occurred when our own was beginning to struggle to its feet.

The contrast is not difficult to explain. Before the war we were the debtor country and Europe, whose own reaction was not in those days likely to be as violent as ours, was able to send its own capital to our relief. Today Europe is debtor and America the creditor; yet America, whose export of capital sustained the foreign economic position half a dozen years ago, has been increasingly pulling in capital away from Europe. For that our own extravagances prior to the period of depression are responsible.

Crash Affects More People.

In the matter of purchases by home consumers it is impossible not to recognize the unusual conditions created by our speculation of 1929. When the whole community was engaged in that disastrous mania, when the autumn crash of 1929 was more precipitous and far reaching than any other in our history, and when even the current income tax returns show how prodigious were the losses incurred as a consequence, the long delay in recovery of the community's buying power is not perhaps surprising.

Recovery, which has always come after similar periods of reaction, whether in this country or abroad, will come in due course on the present occasion. But meantime the penalty for past excesses is being paid in the slowness of revival, and British philosophers, who have their own country's shortcomings to cover up, are assuring us that but for this mischievous gold standard the troubles of today would never have happened.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 27.—Net income of the Philadelphia Electric company for 1931 amounted to $21,978,224, after all charges, taxes, and reserves, equal after $993,033 subsudiary company dividends to $20,985,191 and equal to $76.52 a share earned on 274,263 shares of $5 dividend preferred stock outstanding at the end of the year. This compared with $21,541,278 in 1930, equal after subsidiary dividends of $1,004,929 to $20,537,349, or $164.22 a share earned on 125,058 preferred shares the year before. Practically all the 10,349,230 common shares are owned by the United Gas Improvement system. The increase in net income was $436,946, or about 2 per cent.

The large increase in preferred shares, which more than doubled the amount outstanding at the end of 1930, was due to the sale of 150,000 preferred shares to customers at $100 a share in the period March 23 to April 1, 1931.

Notes payable of $4,500,000 at the end of 1930 were paid off early in the year, leaving none at the end of 1931. The company has no important maturity for the next 25 years. Over $14,500,000 was expended during 1931 for new facilities and for extensions and betterments of existing facilities.

Organize New Company to Deal in Sound Devices

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Organization of the Sound Engineering corporation, which will specialize in developing sound recording apparatus, was announced today. Edward H. Loftin, who served 20 years as naval engineer and was in charge of naval communications during the world war, is president of the new corporation. S. Young White, with whom Loftin formed the Loftin-White Laboratories, specializing in developing amplifiers, is vice president. The new firm was incorporated in Delaware with a capitalization of 10,000 shares no par common stock.

Corn at Season's Low.

Corn prices are down to the lowest this season, May selling at 35¼c Saturday, with July down to 38⅜c. A year ago during the same week the range on May corn at Chicago was 61⅛@61¾c. It is expected that farmers will plant one of the largest acreages known and with favorable conditions there will be a big surplus added to a liberal carryover that is in evidence at present.

Speculators in the main are bearish and prices are so low that farmers are not selling freely. There appears to be plenty of corn everywhere and the government report suggests an increase in acreage of 2.2 per cent over that harvested last year to 107,278,000 acres. With a normal failure to carry out the full intentions, there would be 106,485,000 acres for harvest, or 1,500,000 acres more than harvested last year, and 5,750,000 acres in 1930. There is an increase of 3.2 per cent in indicated acreage of the north central states, 2.2 per cent in the south central, 19.1 per cent for the western states, and a decrease of 1.4 per cent in the east north central group. Only Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Missouri plan smaller acreages than were harvested last year.

May corn closed at 35⅝@35¼c, July 38⅜@38⅝c and September 40⅜@40¼c, showing net losses for the week of 1@1¼c. Prices follow:

Liquidation in Oats.

Liquidation in oats was absorbed by cash interests and the close on futures was unchanged to ⅜c lower, on the basis of 23@23⅝c for May and 23¾c for July. Heavy oats are scarce in the sample market and bring good premiums. Prices for the week follow:

Rye was bought freely by speculators on reports of large export business at the seaboard aggregating more than 1,000,000 bushels. The market, however, ran into selling on all bulges and weakened with other grains, closing ⅞@1½c lower for the week, May being 43⅝c and July 45⅛c.

EAT MORE PORK

The slogan of the provision trade is for propaganda to increase consumption of pork products. Prices are unusually low. Hogs are selling too low for farmers to make any money and an increased consumption of pork would be a big assistance to livestock raisers. Speculative trading last week, however, was the smallest in recent years, and the range of prices narrow, with the close on lard 10@25c and bellies 5@15c lower than a week ago. Prices follow:

'AM. SUPERPOWER TO VOTE ON STOCK VALUE CHANGE

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—So that the company may continue to pay preference dividends stockholders of the American Superpower corporation will be asked to reduce the stated value of preference stock from $100 to $1 a share at the annual meeting on April 15. This move will result in the transfer of approximately $23,285,000 from capital to surplus.

This action is necessitated by the laws of Delaware which forbid the payment of dividends if there is a capital impairment. Dividends payable on first preferred and preference stocks on April 1 were declared on Jan. 12 and funds set aside for their payment. At that time, the company says, the net assets of the company at market value showed an ample margin over the capital represented by both classes. These dividends will be paid as declared.

The value of the preference stock in liquidation will continue to be $100 a share.
